Canada Dollar Slips To .869

Times News Services

The Canadian dollar slid below the 87 U.S. cent level in morning trading on New York money markets today as the U.S. dollar slumped in Europe and Japan.

At noon the dollar was quoted at 86.93 U.S. cents, down 17-100 of a cent from Tuesday's closing rate of 87.10 cents.

Word of the huge U.S. trade deficit in July drove the U.S. dollar down almost six yen at the start of trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange today. It recovered less than a yen to close at 189.725, 2.4 per cent lower than Tuesday's closing rate.

The drop, the biggest since the 1973 revaluation of the yen, came after similar action Tuesday on the European and New York markets following the announcement that the U.S. trade deficit in July was $2.99 billion, almost double the June amount. The dollar lost more ground today on all European foreign-exchange markets.

The British pound sold in London for $1.95 (U.S.), up from $1.93575 at Tuesday's close.

Uncertainty over the dollar kept trading in gold fairly steady in London and Zurich, the two major bullion markets. The price rose in London to $206.50 an ounce from $204.125 Tuesday night and in Zurich to $206.75 from $202.75.

"The trade deficit wiped out all the gains from American efforts to defend the dollar earlier," one trader in Tokyo said. "It will probably continue to slip back down tomorrow."

Hospital Award Upheld

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court judge has upheld an arbitration award on a new three-year contract for union workers at 103 provincial hospitals.

Justice George Murray ruled Tuesday that the arbitration panel which made the award performed all its functions properly, and dismissed a challenge by the hospitals' bargaining agent, the Hospital Labor Relations Association.

The association had maintained that the arbitration panel failed to do its work properly under the government's Essential Services Act.

The Hospital Employees Union, which was the first B.C. union to request arbitration under the new act, had countered by saying the decision by the arbitration panel could not appealed. The government backed the union.

CANNERY ROW could be the name of the ever-growing pile of empty beer cans, awaiting recycling in the Allan Paper Stock Co. Ltd. depot at 538 Hillside. A company spokesman says the cans are destined to be chomped by a special crushing machine purchased from Vancouver and expected to be delivered soon. The company took in 103,150 dozen empty cans and bottles from Victoria-area licensees in the eight-day period from Aug. 17 to 25. There are already two other temporary storage sites in use and the firm is still looking for additional warehouse space. Surveying the pile is Allan Paper employee Dave Mason.

BREWERY WORKER VOTE IN DOUBT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 1,000-member Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers, Local 300, began voting today on the latest contract offer from B.C. breweries.

Union leaders are neither recommending acceptance nor rejection.

However, union spokesman John Langley said Tuesday the workers were not likely to accept the offer because it seemed to contain little improvement over one made more than two months ago.

Eric Harris, chief negotiator for the breweries, said the strike-lockout would not be settled for some time if the the workers vote against the current proposal.

Negotiators for both sides held an unscheduled meeting in Vancouver Tuesday. The nature of the meeting wasn't known but there were hints it was connected with the pattern of returning to work should the contract offer be accepted.

Langley, contacted today, declined to comment on the meeting.

The offer was made Friday after five days of bargaining under mediator Clark Gilmour.

Both sides have agreed to disclose no details of the offer until after the union vote, but the outstanding issue when talks broke off in late June concerned a cost-of-living clause.

Meanwhile, local brewmasters said Tuesday that if the union votes to accept the offer and end the three-month dispute it will take up to 25 days to get new supplies to the stores and pubs.

The dispute began May 26 when Carling O'Keefe employees went on strike. Molson's, Labatt's and Columbia breweries locked out workers June 8.

Peacekeepers Killed 54?

BEIRUT (AP) — Syrian peacekeeping forces killed 54 Christians in their crackdown in northern and eastern Lebanon and left most of the bodies to rot, Christian spokesmen said today.

A spokesman for the Phalange, the biggest Christian party, said the bodies of 30 young men were decomposing in a valley of pines near the village of Kour, 56 kilometres north of Beirut.

Kour was the main target of Syrian operations begun Friday to disarm Christian militias outside Beirut. The village, on a hill commanding a road network in the Batroun region, was overrun by helicopter-borne Syrian troops backed by tanks.

The spokesman said 18 Christian bodies were recovered from Kour by a Red Cross team, "but the rescue team was not able to go down the valley to get the 30 other bodies."

After tightening their hold on Batroun, the Syrians turned to the neighboring province of Bcharre in a similar three-day operation of house-to-house searches for arms and Christians.

Six bodies of young men from Bcharre were reported found in woods near the city Tuesday. Bcharre's two representatives in parliament rushed to the presidential palace in Beirut to accuse the Syrians of "intolerable massacres."

President Elias Sarkis sent Col. Sami Khatib, the figurehead Lebanese commander of the peacekeeping forces, to

ICE CREAM CAN BE A REAL HEADACHE

MONTREAL (CP) — Many people have experienced it: A sudden, usually short-lived stab of pain in the forehead while eating ice cream.

It's called the ice cream headache, and Dr. J. M. Mumford, a British dental surgeon, told the Second World Congress on Pain here Tuesday it happens when the palate, or roof of the mouth, is exposed to cold.

Mumford, who has researched ice cream headaches at the University of Liverpool's dental school, said that since that type of headache is similar in sensation and location to the pain experienced by some in cold wind, it seems reasonable to associate it with the cooling of the forehead.

New Strike Threatened At AirCan

Times News Services

Air Canada braced for further labor trouble today as the airline's 2,700 flight attendants initiated a mail-ballot strike vote.

Merl Day, business representative for the Canadian Air Line Flight Attendants Association, said strike ballots had been mailed to members across Canada and results should be known within 10 days.

The flight attendants' union, without a contract since June, is seeking a 10-per-cent increase plus a cost-of-living bonus in a one-year contract retroactive to June 30. The union also wants sick leaves and maximum flying time untouched in a new contract.

Air Canada says supervisors can replace attendants in the event of a walkout.

Meanwhile, the Crown corporation's aircraft were idle for the sixth straight day after last week's wildcat strikes by members of the machinists' union.

A scheduled afternoon bargaining session between representatives of Air Canada and the International Association of Machinists was postponed today the IAM asked for more time to brief three new members of the union negotiating committee.

Union spokesmen said they were still hopeful they could meet with management later in the day.

The internal briefing session was made necessary when three of the four Montreal-area members on the national bargaining committee of the IAM resigned Tuesday, refusing to accept the union position on contract clauses dealing with job classification and disciplinary action.

Although the key union negotiators resigned abruptly, negotiations to end the total shutdown of Canada's major air carrier reportedly made "some progress."

Bargainers for both Air Canada and IAM said Tuesday's talks — their second day of meetings — reflected an improved atmosphere. A two-hour meeting Tuesday was the longest face-to-face encounter yet in meetings between the two parties.

Labor Minister John Munro said today it would be counter-productive for him to get personally involved at this stage of the dispute that has grounded Air Canada.

As long as Air Canada and negotiators for 7,500 ground-service workers are meeting, "I am not going to get involved."

Barry Shaw, chairman of the the IAM's negotiating

MORE JOBS OPEN, STATCAN REPORTS

OTTAWA (UPI) — There were 46,600 full-time, part-time and casual jobs open in the May-June-July period, when more than 900,000 Canadians were unemployed, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

The government agency reported that the average number of jobs vacant on a daily basis during the three-month period ending July 31 was up 20 per cent over the previous quarter.

Vacancies for full-time jobs increased by 19 per cent to 41,000 from 34,500 in the previous three-month period.

For every 1,000 existing jobs in the May-July period there were five vacant.

WEEKLY EARNINGS INCREASE BY 6.7%

OTTAWA (CP) — Average weekly earnings across the country rose by 6.7 per cent to $268.80 in June from $251.86 in the comparable month a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Highest weekly wages in the latest period were in the Yukon, where workers earned an average $369.44. In the Northwest Territories, average weekly wages were $318.19.

Average weekly wages in British Columbia were the third highest.

By province, average weekly wages in June were: B.C. $304.91; Alberta $278.01; Ontario $268.11, Quebec $267.46; Saskatchewan $254.08; Manitoba $240.34; Newfoundland $245.11; Prince Edward Island $193.26; Nova Scotia $224.79; New Brunswick $232.15.

Hijacker Asylum?

BERLIN (UPI) — An East German armed with a .22 calibre pistol hijacked a Polish airliner with 71 passengers to West Berlin today and asked for asylum in the West for himself, his wife and daughter and seven other persons aboard the plane.

The hijacker surrendered his weapon and himself to U.S. Air Police as the aircraft, a Soviet-made TU134 originally flying to East Berlin, landed at West Berlin's Tempelhof airport.

The remaining passengers were served coffee in an airport waiting room. Eighteen of them left in the same plane for East Berlin six hours later and the rest were driven there in buses, a U.S. Air Force spokesman said.

Officials said the U.S. is considering how to resolve a series of complicated legal questions.

'All Blame On Wolfe'

The wildcat strike by former public works employees at the Legislative Buildings Tuesday accomplished all it set out to do, a union spokesman said today.

Union representatives met for about two hours with Government Employee Relations Bureau (GERB) officials John Penny and Mike Davison on Tuesday.

After a "still unacceptable" revised offer of a Dec. 31 deadline from Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, the British Columbia Government Employees Union (BCGEU) finally won its position, said BCGEU Victoria representative Don Burns.

The union now has a clear, written document extending the contentious severance pay option to next March 31, Burns said.

At the same time, the union continues to blame Wolfe for the three-hour strike.

Burns said the strike that shut down the process of government for three hours was caused by Wolfe's interference in an agreement that had earlier been worked out between the union and the Government Employee Relations Bureau (GERB).

Wolfe issued a letter Aug. 14 to the 250 workers whose public works jobs are being phased out telling them the option of taking severance pay would be dropped Sept. 30.

But the union's existing agreement with GERB was that the severance pay option would continue until all employees had been offered alternative jobs within the government service.

Most of the men had not received other job offers when the Wolfe letter was sent out imposing the Sept. 30 deadline for the severance pay option.

The job alternatives often involve different types of work at different pay scales; and as most of the men hadn't yet been told what other jobs were available, they felt it unfair to have to decide whether or not to accept the severance pay option.

In some cases the severance pay could total six month's work or about $8,000.

Gas Price Jumps 4 Cents

Victoria gasoline prices went up between four and five cents a gallon today in response to an increase in the costs of crude oil.

Major service stations today are charging 92.9 or 93.9 cents per gallon regular and $1 a gallon for premium gas.

"We're charging 99.9 cents a gallon for premium gas but only because we can't show $1 on our pumps," a spokesman for Esso said today. "The price really should have gone over $1."

Stations are passing along a price increase in crude oil of three cents per gallon plus 1.2 cents for transportation and refining costs allowed by the federal government. These are maximum increases at the wholesale level.

This follows an increase of three cents per gallon earlier this month at the retail level by major service stations to provide more income for retail outlets.

Ironically, the price of gasoline was reduced by the same three cents per gallon later this month when the federal government cut its tax surcharge from 10 cents to 7 cents.

Heating oil prices today also went up about four cents per gallon.

Federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie in Ottawa said today much of the increases that are passed along to consumers will depend on market conditions.

Warplanes Bomb Anti-Somoza Students

MANAGUA (UPI) — National Guard warplanes today bombed and strafed sections of Matagalpa city held by anti-Somoza students armed with machetes, homemade bombs, pistols and rifles, killing at least five people and starting scores of fires.

On the ground, troops led by the son of President Anastasio Somoza poured heavy machine gun fire on the municipal palace, overrun by the estimated 500 students who were said to control two-thirds of the city.

A UPI reporter said at least five people died in the pitched battle, and several bodies could be seen lying in the streets, flies swarming over them in the tropical heat.

Four National Guard warplanes bombed, rocketed and strafed the municipal palace and other areas of the city for more than five hours Tuesday, sparking many fires, but heavy rains stopped the bombardment until shortly after dawn.

The students strung barbed wire Sunday throughout downtown Matagalpa, 90 miles north of Managua, and created a no man's land that the National Guard could not enter because of the gunfire.

Witnesses said the students, who declared the areas they held "Free Territory of Matagalpa," were poorly armed with homemade bombs, machetes, pistols and rifles.

Residents were calling the outbreak "The War of the Youths" and many of them were offering the students food, water and shelter.

The National Guard, commanded personally by Mayor Anastasio Somoza Portocarrero, the president's son, sent in reinforcements by helicopter Tuesday to prevent a complete takeover by the students.

The National Guard controlled only the Matagalpa army barracks and some suburban areas, witnesses said.

Violent anti-Somoza outbreaks were also reported in Diribamaba, 30 miles south of the capital, where one person was reported dead and two wounded in street clashes, and Jinotepe.

President Somoza Tuesday defied demands, including some by right-wing National Guard officers who allegedly were plotting to overthrow him, that he step down.

Huge Namibia Force Urged

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim recommended to the Security Council today that it approve a force of more than 9,000 military, police and civilian personnel to prepare the way for free elections and independence for Namibia.

It would be the largest force ever assembled by the UN in peacetime and would be in place for a year. It would supervise a ceasefire in the 10-year-old bush war, monitor withdrawal of South African troops and set up the machinery to supervise the elections.

The recommendation for the force, to be known as the United Nations Transition Assistance Group (UNTAG), was based on assessments by UN Commissioner Martti Ahtisaari of Finland.

Ahtisaari spent two weeks earlier this month on a mission to Namibia, also known as South-West Africa, and his own recommendations were the basis for Waldheim's decision to form such a large force.

Waldheim said the cost may be as high as $300 million.

Deployment of both the military and civilian components of UNTAG must take into account conditions in Namibia, including vast distances in an area of more than 300,000 square miles and lack of roads which make logistics a major problem.

Waldheim recommended the military component of UNTAG consist of seven infantry battalions totalling about 5,000 men plus 200 monitors.

In addition, there would be command, communications, engineer, logistic and air support units totalling about 2,300.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the external affairs department said Canada has not yet been asked to participate in a United Nations group in Namibia.

Meanwhile, South Africa said today Angolan troops fired across the Namibian border as hundreds of refugees fled into the territory from Angola.

The shooting took place Tuesday night when about 400 refugees crossed into Namibia (South-West Africa) after Angolan government troops moved into the Angolan border town of Calai, said a statement by the South African military commander in the territory.

Elsewhere on the continent, official figures show whites are leaving Rhodesia in dramatically increasing numbers.

The Central Statistical Office says 1,342 whites left Rhodesia last month, the most in any month since last December.

Only 231 immigrants arrived in the breakaway British colony for a net loss of 1,111, the biggest drop in the dwindling minority white population of about 250,000 since May, 1977.

Syria. An announcement afterward said a number of Syrian officers and soldiers were to be questioned about "transgressions inconsistent with standing orders."

Syrian troops intervened in the Lebanese civil war to prevent defeat of the Christians by the Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies because Syrian President Hafez Assad did not want a radical government in Lebanon even if it was Moslem.

Meanwhile, in Washington, state department officials said the use of U.S. troops to guarantee a peace agreement may be discussed by President Carter and Middle East leaders at their conference next week.

But the officials dismissed as speculation reports that the administration was preparing major new proposals in the area of stationing U.S. troops in the Middle East to secure the peace.

The Washington Post says Carter has some emergency conference proposals up his sleeve, including establishment of a U.S. air base in the Sinai peninsula and posting U.S. troops on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

The newspaper says Carter hopes those steps won't be needed but is holding them in reserve as a way to break a negotiating deadlock.

But state department officials, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press that the possible use of U.S. troops is an old idea that was being "dusted off and refurbished" for possible use at Camp David. They said there is little likelihood it will play a significant part in the talks.

Law Change 'Garbage'

HALIFAX (CP) — Delegates to the Canadian Bar Association's annual convention began a special session today by criticizing even the cover of a special report on constitutional change in Canada.

"It implies that Canada is a shattered country that needs to be put together," Brendan O'Brien of Toronto said of the black cover which includes a map of Canada.

The second speaker, Bill Thompson of Peterborough, Ont., said the report contains more nonsense about founding cultures and would create dissension in Canada.

"Let's take this and throw it in the garbage," Thompson recommended.

$70,000 Welfare Cheques Stolen

Victoria police today issued a warning to merchants and bankers following the overnight theft of 180 welfare cheques with a face value of $70,000.

A police spokesman said persons should not cash any welfare cheque unless the bearer is able to supply at least three different types of identification.

The cheques were taken from the human resources office on Blanshard.

Some of the cheques are handwritten, pale yellow, and made out to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce at Douglas and View.

The others are standard Province of B.C. computer cheques, pale green.

All are dated Aug. 31, 1978.

The cheques range in amount from $120 to $600 and were made out to clients of the Blanshard Street office.

A spokesman for human resources said replacement cheques are being prepared.

EDMONTON MAN DIES IN CRASH

A 28-year-old Edmonton man is the fifth person to die in traffic mishaps in Victoria this year.

Allan Grant Zane died in Victoria General Hospital Tuesday night about an hour after a car he was driving hit a lamp standard at Broad and Pandora.

Zane's wife, Sheila Marie, 23, and Alexandra Elizabeth Sefton, 21, of 3907 Ascot Place, passengers in the vehicle, received minor injuries in the 8:21 p.m. accident. They were treated at hospital and later released.

A Victoria police spokesman said an inquest will probably be held but no date has been set.

Help too Late to Save Him

TORONTO (CP) — A 51-year-old Toronto man, depressed and ashamed of his debts, jumped in front of a subway train two hours before the arrival of a letter saying he had been granted a disability pension.

Gerard Moran, a diabetic, applied to the federal government for the pension when he left his federal government job in March because he had been finding it increasingly difficult to cope with his illness.

"The disability pension seems so hard for me to get and I can't work," Moran told the superintendent of his rooming-house in July.

The superintendent, who does not want to be identified, said he had felt compassionate toward the bachelor and never had pressed him for the rent, which was a month in arrears.

Last week, however, after months of depression during which he hardly left his room, Moran slashed his wrists. Then he changed his mind and knocked on the door of a fellow roomer to ask for help.

Moran was taken to hospital, where his wrists were patched.

The following day, he was released and referred to a psychiatric out-patient clinic. He did not return to his room.

"He was ashamed," his superintendent said. "He had waited for six months for his disability pension to be approved.

"I guess he thought he was a beggar."

On Sunday, Moran phoned the superintendent and asked whether his pension approval had come in the mail. It had not.

When police went to Moran's room after his suicide Monday, they found lying inside the door a letter from the federal government saying the man's disability pension had been approved. A cheque for $691.16 was enclosed.

Police said Moran had no known relatives. He had lived in the room four years.

Wilfred Wright, Ontario regional director for Health and Welfare Canada, said Tuesday that Moran's cheque was delayed because the man failed to provide necessary medical certificates during the 13-week mandatory waiting period for the pension.

Wright said two health-and-welfare officers went to Moran's home June 20 to assist him with the claim and reported him in fair condition but short of money.

He said that if the deparment had not stepped in and instructed Moran on what to do, the claim never would have been processed.

'Big Money' Payoff To Gov't Workers?

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. federal agents are tracking "big, big money" to Swiss banks, where they believe General Services Administration employees channelled it after demanding payoffs from contractors, a source close to the investigation says.

"They're over in Switzerland working on it through FBI liaison people," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

The Swiss connection is part of a larger investigation by justice department prosecutors and other federal investigators into alleged corruption involving millions of dollars in the GSA, which oversees construction and maintenance of federal buildings.

The source said he did not know whether U.S. agents had obtained much information so far from Swiss banks, long considered havens for illicit money from abroad, but he said that the banks "have opened up somewhat in recent years in disclosing information if you meet certain criteria."

Spokesmen for the justice department would not comment on the investigation Tuesday night.

Unnamed sources said the FBI has uncovered a network of U.S. bank accounts they believe were used to hide millions of dollars in payoffs.

Those sources said the alleged scheme worked like this:

A GSA employee would approve a contract for more work than was actually to be done. The contractor would then take the money awarded in the contract and shift it among various bank accounts — involving U.S. and perhaps foreign banks — to make it difficult to trace.

Finally, the contractor would draw out part of the money and kick it back to the GSA employee who originally approved his inflated contract.

4-H BANS LAMB SALE BECAUSE CURFEW VIOLATED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific National Exhibition has barred four 4-H teen-agers from selling their lambs in the annual auction because the four broke strict curfew regulations imposed this year.

The four, two boys and two girls, all aged 16 and 17, failed to show up Monday at the 10:30 p.m. curfew and a search was started for them about an hour later.

They were eventually found in a park near the PNE grounds shortly after 3 a.m. sitting around talking.

The disciplinary action is believed the most severe ever imposed on 4-H members in the history of the PNE and it means financial losses for the teenagers.

Teacher Can Return

COQUITLAM (CP) — A teacher suspended after being charged with possession of marijuana has now been reinstated, Eunice Parker, Coquitlam school board chairman Eunice Parker said Tuesday.

She said that reinstatement of Dennis Hilton was approved at a special board meeting Monday. However, the board decided that Hilton would not be given back pay for the suspension period.

Reinstatement came after a prosecution appeal of a conditional discharge on the possession charge was rejected.

Parker said that under the Public Schools Act the board had no choice but to reinstate Hilton to his teaching position at Centennial School.

Parker said the board has the option under the act on whether to allow back pay and decided Hilton wouldn't be paid because he wasn't teaching.

Guide Probe Brings Branch Overhaul

VANCOUVER (CP) — The administration of the provincial fish and wildlife branch is being reorganized as a result of a public inquiry into the licensing of guide outfitters by the branch, according to Bob Ahrens, deputy recreation and conservation minister.

Ahrens said that some ministry employees criticized in the public inquiry report have been disciplined through wage freezes and loss of job responsibilities.

The employees were criticized in a report made by provincial court Judge J. L. McCarthy and tabled in the legislature in June.

The inquiry, which opened in January, resulted from allegations by the Sierra Club that there were irregularities in the issuing of a guide outfitter's licence and certificate to Howard Paish, an environmental consultant. The club also claimed Paish gave favors to some members of the branch.

The judge, in his 93-page report, criticized Dr. James Hatter, former branch director, regional director David Spalding, Joseph Gibault, regulation and guide co-ordinator, and David Hurn, assistant director in charge of wildlife, fisheries and habitat protection.

Errors of judgment were also attributed by the judge to Don Robinson, acting branch director and Les Cox, Smithers regional protection officer.

Ahrens said an interview that Hatter, who was removed as branch director Aug. 1, 1976, and then became wildlife policy adviser to Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, has had his salary frozen for an indefinite period. He will remain as adviser.

He said Spalding has been placed on a year's probation in his present position.

Ahrens said Gibault is no longer responsible for the guiding part of his job but that will be the extent of disciplinary action against him because he is only months away from retirement.

He said he recommended that no action be taken against Hurn.

"The judge cast serious aspersions on his work but I don't agree with the judge," said Ahrens.

"The judge gave a good opinion in so far as he knew the facts. But there was considerable background history in this case that the judge was not aware of. So I felt his criticism was not justified."

Ahrens said he also recommended no action against Robinson, who remains as acting branch director, and Cox.

He said he has determined that Cox was on vacation when the events which the judge criticized took place.

'Dead' Letter Whimsy By New Pope

ROME (Reuter) — A book of whimsical letters written by Pope John Paul I to long-dead authors such as Charles Dickens and Mark Twain has become an overnight best-seller since the papal election on Saturday.

The letters, written for an ecclesiastical magazine in Padua during the 1960s and early 1970s, have come to the attention of the public since the election of the new pope.

One of the letters was addressed to the Hollywood cartoon character, Pinocchio—"I was poor and hungry like you, Pinocchio"—and another to a legendary bear who gave up bestiality after eating the horse of a saint.

Pope John Paul chose to write to the French opera hero, Figaro, a light-hearted attack on the Beatles when the group was at the height of its fame in the mid-1960s.

"Four young dishevelled singing birds . . . about whom the Queen of England has to shut up, but on whom she has conferred high honors," he wrote.

As his focus roamed from socialism to marriage and abortion, the Pope shows a puckish sense of humor masking rigid beliefs on the issues of the day.

"Dear Dick," he wrote to the English novelist, "I am a bishop who has taken up the strange job of writing a letter every month to some illustrious person."

Dickens is Pope John Paul's favorite author, read since his childhood in northern Italy. It is the novelist's love of the poor and his desire for social change that delighted the Pope in David Copperfield and A Christmas Carol.

His comments in the letter to Figaro were contained in a strident dissertation on the nature of modern revolution which he saw in pop groups and armed movements led by Ho Chi Minh, Fidel Castro and Ernesto (Che) Guevera.

"With their electric guitars, young singers . . . excite spectators, overheating them psychologically and leading them to paroxysms of participation," he wrote.

His harshest words were reserved for big business, which used the Beatles to exploit the young generation, selling them millions of records and modern clothes, teaching them to think only of what he calls "up-to-date elegance and fashion."

"I don't wish to seem as though I see Satan in everything, but I think rather sadly that all this does not help the young to be virtuous," he said.

On Ho Chi Minh, Che Guevara and Fidel Castro the new Pope warned that, for all their professed good intentions, they only destroyed and divided nations in the search for utopia. "They cannot see that disorder, in their spiral of violence, usually slows progress, sowing only discontent and hate."

Carter Tackles Some Tough Issues

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

When a federal grand jury charged agents of the Chilean dictatorship with murdering Orlando Letelier, a good deal was written about the determined investigation needed to solve the crime. But political commitment was just as necessary.

If Gerald Ford had been elected in 1976 — and Henry Kissinger, the Colonels' friend, had remained in power — can anyone believe the investigators would have been allowed to follow the trail into the Chilean regime? The responsibility for demonstrating that the United States will not stand for political murder in the streets of Washington was Jimmmy Carter's.

The point is worth making because so little credit is given to President Carter for anything these days. Sneering at him has become a national sport. And of course he has had his share of mistakes, fumbles, uncertainties. But I think he has been right, and courageous, on a large number of important questions.

In foreign policy he has tackled a series of problems that could do him no good politically but that required action in the national interest:

- The Panama dispute had festered for years, with no president willing to push the Canal negotiations to a conclusion and risk a Senate fight over ratification of the treaties. Carter acted.

- In Africa the rebellions in Namibia and Rhodesia, posing serious threats of wider war, had defied solution. The Carter administration set out to deal with them not by bluster, which might have been popular, but by patient diplomacy. And in Namibia, at least, it has made remarkable progress.

- The Turkish arms embargo was right originally, as a matter of both law and policy, after Turkey misused American arms in her invasions of Cyprus. But the embargo had become counter-productive, and there was an opportunity to work with a sensible Turkish government. Carter took the political risk of offending the Greek-American community and took the necessary step to end the embargo.

- Even more prickly was the sale of war planes to Saudi Arabia and Egypt as well as Israel. The concerns of Israel were understandable, but on balance her interests and this country's would both be served if conservative Arab powers looked to the United States for security. Carter understood that and acted despite the greatest political risk.

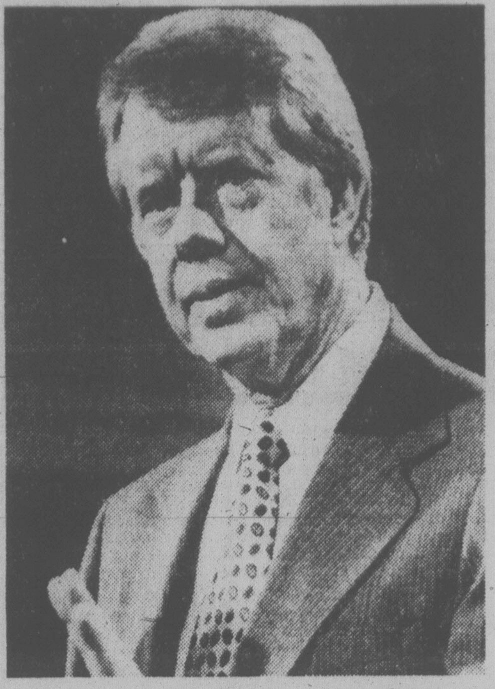
In domestic affairs too, Carter has been willing to challenge vested interests.

- Civil Service Reform sounds dull, but it is vital to the restoration of public confidence in government. It is fraught by what has become one of the most deeply-entrenched and reactionary interests in the country: the federal bureaucracy. Carter is fighting for reform as no other president has.

- The Carter energy program is a melange, but it has one central purpose: To raise American energy prices to somewhere near the world level. There is enormous political resistance to that end, and to the means he has chosen of minimizing the impact on individuals. But doing nothing, as past presidents have done, has undermined the dollar.

- Like President Ford, Carter has proposed to remove some of the anti-competitive cushion from regulated industries, starting with the airlines. While Congress dithers on that legislation, Carter's Civil Aeronautics Board Chairman, Alfred Kahn, has changed air travel for millions by encouraging competition and lower rates.

Those are some examples of Carter's taking on tough issues, and with some success. He has done so, moreover, in the open, not trying to avoid controversy by secret executive action. The record hardly amounts to a New Deal, but it deserves some credit — especially at a time when right-wing, antigovernment sentiment is growing.



CARTER . . . doesn't deserve the sneers

THE ECONOMIST

Single-issue activists are becoming the bane of U.S. political life and a serious problem for government at every level. So says the chairman of the Replublican national committee, Bill Brock, and many other politicians agree. Candidates are judged by their stand on one issue — abortion, or guns or women's rights; when the word goes out for a flood of letters or protests or contributions on the pet topic, it is obeyed with almost military precision. Legislators who vote the "wrong" way are threatened with the end of their political careers, regardless of how admirably they may have dealt with a host of other problems.

No issue illustrates the development better than the struggle over abortion law. Ever since 1973, when the Supreme Court determined that states must leave the question of abortion during the first three months of pregnancy to a private decision by the woman and her doctor, the opponents of abortion, strongly supported by the Roman Catholic church, have cherished the idea of outlawing abortions by constitutional amendment. But congress, which normally sets the amendment process in motion, has been unreceptive. Over 30 "pro-life" amendments have been introduced in the present session, but no action has been taken on any of them.

The critics of abortion have not been idle, however. They have persuaded congress to deny federal money for most abortions for poor women (last year's fight over just how narrowly the exceptions should be drawn is being repeated this year); 34 states have been persuaded to follow the federal guidelines with, for example, state financed abortions dropping in New Jersey from 10,000 a year to 240. Abortion clinics have been wrecked by vandals and women awaiting abortions have been harassed. City councils have been led to adopt regulations which delay abortions or make them much more harrowing for the women.

Yet the number of abortions does not seem to have dropped noticeably. This is largely because the 16 states that have shouldered the cost of abortions for the poor include the two largest, New York and California. But in the wake of Proposition 13, California may be less generous. In 1976, the last year for which national figures are available, there were just under one million legal abortions, 312 for every 1,000 live births.

So it is not surprising that many of the anti-abortion groups, particularly at the state or local level, are considering an alternative method of amending the constitution, which would get round the need for congress to take the initiative. If two-thirds (34) of the states petition congress, it "shall", according to the constitution itself, call a convention for the purpose of drawing up amendments. These would still have to be ratified by three-quarters (38) of the states before they became part of the constitution and thus out of reach of the Supreme Court. This route has never succeeded, although many attempts have been made to use it, notably in the late 1960s when 33 states petitioned for an amendment that would have diluted the "one man, one vote" decision of the Supreme Court as it affected elections to state legislatures.

So far 13 states, most recently Pennsylvania, have voted to ask congress to call a convention to deal with abortion. Another cause, balanced federal budgets, has collected more support; 20 states are on record as petitioning for an amendment that would outlaw federal deficits except in time of war. Milton Friedman, the monetarist who backed Proposition 13, recently announced the appointment of a "blue-ribbon" panel to draft an amendment to the constitution limiting federal spending and deficits. Neither the monetarists nor the anti-abortionists are likely to succeed, but there is little doubt that their one-issue fervor will continue to distort the political balance.

'Creativity' a Cop-out for Learning

By ROY H. COPPERUD
Editor and Publisher Magazine

Julie Carson, a member of the English faculty at the University of Minnesota, attempted to rationalize the low reading and writing scores among high school and college students by flaunting that old shibboleth, "creativity." I thought apologists for the non-education that has been going on had grown ashamed of the excuse that emphasis on creativity justifies ignorance of fundamentals.

As Professor Carson correctly commented in a speech at a meeting of Women in Communications, Inc., in Minneapolis, the critical reports of student performance miss what the test-scoring machines miss as well — any sign of creativity or imagination. But there is no evidence that ignoring grammar and spelling and accurate use of words has produced any surge of creativity.

Creativity is something that can be encouraged, but not taught, and it seems evident that it cannot develop without discipline, something that has been mostly abandoned. Too many teachers do not correct errors in composition, very often because they do not know how to write well themselves and cannot recognize errors. It all goes back, ultimately, to the universities and the strange notion that flowered in them 30 years or so ago that the principles of democracy (a political concept) can be applied to education (an intellectual activity). The assumption was that every student has within him some untapped streak of genius that can best be brought out by letting him write his own ticket. In other words, that students, like voters, are created equal.

So now we have graduates who may have been taught the new math, but cannot reconcile a chequebook or use arithmetic effectively for everyday purposes; students who may have studied literature, but very little composition, and consequently can neither spell, nor express themselves coherently, nor understand what they read.

I think a useful analogy can be drawn between instruction in writing and instruction in music. Any student possessing enough intelligence to be in school can be taught to perform creditably in either art, though no teacher can put into him the innate aptitude that may develop into talent or even genius. I am convinced that while people cannot be taught how to write beyond a certain point, they can be taught how not to write. But they are not being taught this either.

Have you ever heard of a music teacher who ignored wrong notes, breaking into rests, indications of tempo, and wooden interpretation lest the pupil's creativity be impaired? The fact is that the more advanced the student of music, the more rigorous the emphasis on discipline and fundamentals.

Students who score low in reading are bound to be poor writers, because writers learn to write by reading, primarily. Spelling, to be sure, is arbitrary and mechanical, but since there is an educated consensus on the subject, it must be learned just as surely as the multiplication table must be learned. Thorstein Veblen fairly described the situation when he said of English spelling, "It is archaic, cumbrous, and ineffective; its acquisition consumes much time and effort; failure to acquire it is easy of detection." And there's the rub; misspelled words in, say, a letter of application are a sure ticket to rejection. Any teacher who encourages a lighthearted approach to spelling should be ashamed of herself.

It is only natural for pedagogues like Professor Carson to attempt to rationalize the flood of incompetence among teachers and students alike that has brought widespread public demand for effective teaching or reading; writing, and arithmetic. But it would seem more constructive to admit the gross deficiencies that are glaringly evident everywhere and to set about attempting to correct them.

Those Good Old Days

russell baker

The old-timer was sitting on the porch talking to the boy when Earl came home from work. Earl was tired of the old-timer with his stories about all he had seen in the old days. Earl had heard them all hundreds of times.

"Hi there, Earl," said the old-timer.

"I guess you're telling the boy about all the things you saw in the old days," said Earl.

"Guess what, Dad?" cried the boy. "The old-timer was just telling me about the time he was watching television in a motel room and saw a woman win a Naugahyde den chair shaped like a beer keg."

"I've heard that story," said Earl. "It was a game show."

"That woman was so happy she jumped up and down in the air squealing like a pig in his first pair of spats," the old-timer said to the boy.

"Did you really see Joe Namath wearing pantyhose?" asked the boy.

"Sure did, son," said the old-timer. "Right there on television. Joe was wearing the pantyhose and grinning like a boll wevil in deep cotton."

Earl scowled. He didn't like this attachment between the boy and the old-timer. He wanted the boy to grow up and learn how to beat the income tax, not spend his life exploring the marvels of the world as the old-timer had done. "It's time to come in and study your tax shelters, boy," he said.

"Earl," said the old-timer, "did I ever tell you about the time I happened to wake up in front of the television set and see two people squeezing toilet paper?

"Dozens of times," said Earl.

"Gosh," said the boy. "What did you do, old-timer?"

"Didn't do nothing," said the old-timer. "Just sat there playing it real cool and keeping my eye on that toilet paper. Pretty soon, along come some jasper, tells them to stop that squeezing and they leave. The fellow's all alone, see, and what do you think he does?"

"What?" asked the boy.

"He squeezes the toilet paper himself."

"You're kidding!" cried the boy.

"Just as sneaky as a mole in the pea patch he was," said the old-timer.

"You must have seen it all," said the boy.

"I wouldn't say that," said the old-timer. "There was a heap of seeing to do in those days. There wasn't time enough to see it all. Take the time they killed the president's killer on the television. I missed that. My tube was in the shop that day."

"Boy," said Earl, "if you don't get in the house and start studying investment credits, you're going to grow up tax poor."

"Earl," said the old-timer, "did I ever tell you about the time I saw them shave sandaper with a razor blade?"

"You told me just last night," said Earl. "It was a fraud.

"That's right, boy," said the old-timer. "It turned out they weren't really shaving sandpaper. It just looked like sandpaper on television. What it was, was they put a lot of loose sand on a piece of glass. There were sights in those days, son."

"If you'd spent your time studying the tax laws instead of sitting around seeing the sights," said Earl, "you'd have enough money now to be telling these stories on the Riviera instead of my front porch."

"I'll bet you saw a lot of people killed on television," said the boy.

"Thousands of them" said the old-timer.

"The real killings went on at dinner time during the news shows, then afterward they'd taper off with a few make-believe killings to get everybody's mind soothed down."

"Those must have been the days," said the boy.

"Of course, sometimes you saw people getting born, or people getting divorced. One of my favorites was seeing people who were being crushed under overturned trucks while this television reporter with the microphone would go up to the next of kin and say, 'How does it feel seeing your next of kin being crushed under that overturned truck?' "

"It sure sounds more exciting than tax-free bonds," said the boy. "Daddy," he said, "when I've beaten the income tax, can I see the marvels of the world the way the old-timer did?"

"We'll talk about that later," said Earl, sending the boy inside to his depreciation tables.

"Tell you what, Earl," said the old-timer. "Invite me in for a bite of supper and I'll tell about the time I saw cigarette packages dance back in nineteen-and-five-naught."

"You already told me," said Earl. "You must go on home and turn on the box, and maybe you'll see something you never saw before."

The old-timer lumbered off unhappily. "Ain't much chance of that," he said. He was right, but he turned on the tube anyhow. He didn't know how to do anything else,

When Steven Cristelli asked his mother to drive him to a branch of the Suffield Savings Bank on Old County Road on Monday morning, he said he wanted to withdraw money to buy a car.

"She had no knowledge of what was happening, as far as we know," said Detective John Murphy.

"GOLDIE HAWN HAS CAPTURED MY HEART. 'Foul Play' is her oyster from start to finish, and she swallows it whole. Never has she looked lovelier, nor has she ever been in a film better suited to her. A deliciously high-spirited romp with the screen's most gifted comedienne in the driver's seat. A real sleeper. The perfect movie escapism to combat heat rash and the heartbreak of psoriasis. 'FOUL PLAY' IS AN ANTIDOTE TO URBAN HUMIDITY, LIMP COLLARS, AND SUMMER LISTLESSNESS."

Ex-Liberal Hopeful Airs Details of 'Dirty Deal'

TORONTO — John Tsopelas says a smear campaign and an offer of money were behind his resignation last month as a federal Liberal candidate for the Metropolitan Toronto riding of Scarborough Centre.

Tsopelas, 53, owner of a Toronto dry-cleaning business, won the nomination for the riding in January but resigned earlier this month. Maurice Strong, former chairman of Petro-Canada, was chosen Monday as the Liberal candidate for the new riding in the next federal election.

At the time of his resignation, Tsopelas said it was for personal reasons.

But Tuesday he said a campaign to get rid of him as Liberal candidate was "a really dirty deal."

He said the campaign to stop him from running for MP was not from within the Liberal party.

"It comes from invisible sides," he said.

"There was an offer made to me, through a friend, that if I resigned I would get money covering my expenses.

Tsopelas said Strong's nomination is "for the good of the party — the people who tried to get me are not strong enough to get him."

Tsopelas said at least three letters about him have been written anonymously to Prime Minister Trudeau. One letter said that in 1965 Tsopelas had a dry-cleaning business that went bankrupt.

He said the bankruptcy allegation was true and that "we were worried that this sort of thing could have leaked out a couple of weeks before an election."

SHROUD DRAWS

TURIN, Italy — More than 160,000 pilgrims have thus far flocked to view the Holy Shroud, on display here for the third time this century.

Religious officials were worried Tuesday about a possible overflow of faithful if Pope John Paul I follows through on an earlier commitment to view the relic. The sheet bears an image of a tall, bearded man, said to be a miraculous portrait of Christ.

Pilgrims have been crowding into the Turin cathedral from 7 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. since early Sunday. Church officals estimate more than three million persons will have seen it by the time is it enclosed again in its silver casket Oct. 8.

80-DAY MARATHON

MEDFORD, Mass. — David McGillivray ran home Tuesday.

The 24-year-old marathon runner finished his 3,452-mile, 80-day jaunt from Medford, Ore., to Medford, Mass., to the cheers of 4,000 supporters.

Church bells rang and an air raid siren sounded as McGillivray made his final burst to the finish line at the steps of city hall.

McGillivray crossed 13 states, scaled the Rocky Mountains and traversed the plains and prairies of the Midwest to become the seventh person ever to run across the continental United States.

He began his run June 11 in Medford, Ore., at a Seattle Mariners-Boston Red Sox game to benefit the Jimmy Fund, a Boston-based charity that supports research of cancer afflicting children.

His cross-country odyssey came to a ceremonial finish Tuesday night at another Mariners-Red Sox game when McGillivray, dressed in red shorts, a white shirt, white sneakers and red-and-white striped socks ran twice around Fenway Park.

On his second circumnavigation of the field McGillivray received a standing ovation from both teams and the fans.

"I don't have a lot of money to give to the Jimmy Fund, but I do have a strong pair of legs," McGillivray said. "I figured I might help those who are unfortunate and cannot walk."

'MIRROR MIRROR, ON THE WALL'

MANILA — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi said today he would no longer play in the World Chess Championship unless a one-way mirror is put in the playing hall to neutralize the effects of a Russian parapsychologist.

"I will not play unless the one-way mirror is installed," he told a news conference.

He said the mirror should separate the stage, where he and world champion Anatoly Karpov play, from the gallery, from where Korchnoi claims Dr. Vladimir Zoukhar is trying to hypnotize him into losing.

Korchnoi said installation of the one-way mirror, allowing spectators to see the players without the players seeing the crowd, was recommended by a Jesuit psychologist Rev. Jaime Bulatao, 55, who holds a doctorate in clinical psychology.

Korchnoi spoke an hour before the world chess jury met to discuss his request to throw Zoukhar out of the playing hall or make him sit in a back row.

Korchnoi said banning Zoukhar from the playing hall is not the final solution because the Russians could send another hypnotist.

The game was reset for Thursday.

Texas Woman Faces Needle

WHARTON, Texas — Convicted of hiring an assassin to kill her father so she could collect insurance money, Mary Lou Anderson is the first woman to be sentenced to death under the state's new lethal injection law.

Miss Anderson, 35, of Lake Charles, La., could become the first woman to be executed in Texas.

She was charged with hiring Feryl Granger, 29, of Lafayette, La., to kill her father and stepmother for the insurance money. However, she was being tried specifically for the Jan. 3 execution-style shooting of Steve Anderson, 55, of Sugar Land.

She still faces a capital murder charge in the death of her stepmother and Granger is awaiting trial on identical charges.

In a March 11 statement to police, she admitted hiring Granger but later took the stand during her trial to repudiate it. She also said Granger had forced her at gunpoint to accompany him to Texas and had threatened her son.

Miss Anderson is the first woman sentenced to die in Texas since the 1977 legislative session threw out the use of the electric chair.

GM Pushes Integration Of S. African Plants

DETROIT — A $4.5-million program is under way in South Africa by General Motors to speed integration in GM plants and triple the number of non-whites trained for management jobs.

President Elliott Estes said Tuesday the program will fully integrate the dining areas, locker rooms and restrooms in GM's three major South Africa plants.

Training facilities will be expanded to nearly triple GM's capability to prepare Africans for supervisory and management jobs, Estes said.

GM South African Ltd. employs about 4,000 people, all in the Port Elizabeth area. Forty-eight per cent of the work force is non-white, including 69 per cent of the hourly workers.

The subsidiary builds cars, commercial vehicles and locomotives.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Surging oil and gas issues sent the Toronto stock market sharply higher in active mid-afternoon trading today.

The TSE 300 index was up 6.41 at 1215.35 with gains in two of its four most heavily-weighted groups.

Oil and gas issues, boosted by a $5¾ jump from top-weight Dome Petroleum, rose 41.13 to 1564.95. Industrial products were up 1.10 to 988.09. Financial services fell 6.52 to 1124.06 and metals and minerals 1.23 to 1016.61.

Forest issues led the eight gainers among the other 10 groups within the 14-unit TSE composite index. Buildings issues led the two losers.

Dome Petroleum was halted by the TSE following a halt at the American Stock Exchange because of an imbalance of orders there.

Prior to the 1½-hour TSE halt, Dome Petroleum was up $6¼ in heavy trading. The company said there are no developments to account for the active trading in its stocks.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. EDT totalled 2.92 million shares compared with 2.74 million at the same time Tuesday.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rose here today as a rally gained momentum despite a quarter-point jump in the prime rate.

At 2 p.m. local time, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead 3.12 at 883.32.

The Dow, off by nearly seven points late Tuesday, began gaining toward the close and cotinued its rise today. Advances outnumbered declines 3-to-2 among New York Stock Exchange-listed, and NYSE volume totaled 25.94 million shares in the first five hours of trading.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices moved lower in moderate activity at noon Wednesday on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 11:30 a.m. EDT was 333,400 traded, up from 124,600 shares exchanged up to the same time Tuesday.

The 85-stock composite index was off 0.19 at 204.25, industrials 0.24 at 195.51, utilities 0.05 at 186.52 and banks 0.14 at 283.26. Papers were up 0.54 at 133.24.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — Share prices drifted lower on lack of interest after an attempted rally today, but many closed slightly above the day's lows, dealers said.

Government stocks were neglected and lost around 3-16 to ⅜ while leading equities had falls of from one to three pence, with buyers holding back due to continuing election uncertainties, dealers added. The Financial Times index closed at 503.0, off 2.8.

41-Cent-an-Acre Offer Real Pain to Indians

FREDERICTON (CP) — Inuit will receive only 41 cents an acre for giving up their aboriginal rights to a vast land area in the western Arctic region of the Northwest Territories, Noel Starblanket, National Indian Brotherhood president, said Tuesday.

That is six cents an acre less than what many United States Indians received in the treaties of the 1870s, he told the Brotherhood's annual assembly.

He was basing his calculations on a tentative land claims agreement signed this summer by the federal government and the Committee for Original Peoples Entitlement (COPE).

COPE represents 2,500 Eskimos and persons of Eskimo ancestry.

The agreement calls for the people to give up their aboriginal claim to 400,000 square kilometres along the Arctic coast and in the High Arctic Islands. In return they are to receive $45 million, ownership of 95,830 square kilometres and special rights pertaining to wildlife, among other things.

Starblanket said $45 million sounds like a lot of money for selling aboriginal rights. But, when looked at closely, it worked out to less money per hectare than what the U.S. tribes received more than 100 years ago.

"No wonder Hugh Faulkner (federal Indian affairs and northern development minister) wants to impose the COPE agreement on the rest of the areas involved in land claims," he said.

"He knows a good bargain for land title and resource rights when he sees one."

He added that even the James Bay land claims agreement, made final last year, was a better deal in terms of dollars and cents. The Cree and Inuit who signed that agreement received 85 cents an acre for their land, he said.

Money aside, neither deal was any good because they contradicted the Brotherhood objective of developing Indian self-government and control of Indian land and resources.

The Brotherhood fears Otttawa plans to use the COPE and James Bay agreements as models for settling land claims in the Mackenzie River Valley of the N.W.T., in the Yukon and British Columbia.

Starblanket quoted Faulkner as saying no native group in the country will receive a better deal than the one given COPE.

He said the Brotherhood stands behind the Dene Nation's condemnation of the COPE agreement.

DUPLICATION OF SERVICES TALKS URGED

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has proposed a meeting with the provinces be held next month to find ways of eliminating duplication of services by the two levels of government.

The invitation was in a telegram from Marc Lalonde, federal-provincial relations minister, to premiers or their intergovernmental affairs ministers. The telegram, released to the news media Tuesday, was dated last Thursday.

Earlier this month at a conference in Regina, the 10 premiers condemned the federal government for intruding in many areas they considered provincial responsibilities. The premiers demanded an end to duplication of services in such areas as housing, consumer affairs, environmental protection, justice and natural resources.

In a position paper released in June, the federal government admitted that the current state of federalism "is sometimes inefficient and results in some duplication of effort."

The paper, the forerunner of Prime Minister Trudeau's package for constitutional reform, suggested a plan of action for eliminating the duplication. The help of non-governmental personnel would be solicited.

"Some of them would have expert knowledge on how to eliminate wastes and duplication; others might be representative of those affected by government programs, particularly where competing government services seem to exist."

Trudeau also proposed public hearings be held into the issue.

Lalonde's invitation asked the provinces to consider a meeting Sept. 18, or the following week, to decide which areas should receive priority attention.

Trudeau's constitutional package envisages changes touching the Senate, monarchy and human rights to be enacted by July 1, 1979. Revisions to the division of powers would not be ready until 1981.

$5M FOR BURMA

OTTAWA (CP) — Burma has been granted $5.65 million by the Canadian International Development Agency to help fight insect-borne disease, it was announced Tuesday.

An agency statement said the money will be used in a World Health Organization program to reduce by 25 per cent the rate of death and sickness due to malaria, plague, dengue hemorrhagic fever, filariasis and Japanese encephalitis.

It said that one in 10 of the 31,200,000 Burmese is affected by one or more of those diseases.

U.S. Border TV Stations Seek Ad-Ban Retaliation

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. northern border television stations continued their fight against a Canadian law on advertising by filing a complaint Tuesday seeking retaliation against Canada.

Spokesmen for the broadcasters told a news conference, however, that they hope their complaint, filed with the Office of the Special Trade Representative, will result in a negotiated solution to the tax problem rather than retaliation.

At issue is a 1976 Canadian tax law prohibiting Canadian companies that place advertisements directed primarily at Canada on U.S. television stations from deducting the advertising expenses.

Leslie Arries, president of Buffalo Broadcasting Co. Inc. of Buffalo, N.Y., said the law has resulted in a decline in the Canadian revenue of U.S. stations to $9.2 million in 1977 from $18.9 million in 1975. Further declines are expected this year, he said.

Thirteen television stations, charging that the law is discriminatory, unreasonable and unjustifiable, said in a complaint that the special trade representative should urge President Jimmy Carter to "impose duties or other import restrictions on the products or services of Canada as he deems appropriate."

The stations involved in the complaint have developed three compromise proposals which they hope will be acceptable to both countries.

One proposal would involve setting up Canadian entities for the border stations, and as a result, the stations would pay Canadian taxes on any income from Canada.

The television owners also proposed re-investing a portion of their earnings from Canadian advertising in Canadian production of television shows and films. They also might lend or invest some of their earnings in a production fund for Canada.

Canadian Programs Bumped?

TORONTO (CP) — Program substitution by cable companies makes Canadian stations dependent on U. S. network schedules, the president of the Canadian Cable Television Association said.

"The danger of substitution is increasing," Michael Hind-Smith said in an interview. "Canadian programs wind up being slotted in between substitutable U. S. shows."

Under regulations of the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission, cable companies with more than 3,000 subscribers must substitute the signal of a Canadian television station for that of a U. S. station when both are showing the same program, if the Canadian station requests it.

The rules are intended to discourage Canadian advertisers from buying time on U. S. border stations. Substitution increases the audiences of Canadian stations and permits them to charge more for advertising.

United Canso Under Probe

CALGARY (CP) — United Canso Oil Gas Ltd. says it is being investigated by the United States securities and exchange commission.

The company reported the investigation while filing its report with the commission for the 1978 fiscal third quarter ended June 30.

United Canso's attorneys have been notified by the commission that the investigation is of a confidential nature, the company said in a statement.

INSANITY PLEA MADE

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Fred Kaufman of the Quebec Court of Appeal made a strong plea Tuesday for changes in the legal definition of insanity and criminal responsibility.

In notes explaining why he disagreed with two colleagues on an appeals court panel who ruled against granting a new trial to a convicted murderer whose defence was insanity, Mr. Justice Kaufman said the legal concept of insanity is about 150 years old and is still giving difficulties in interpretation.

The Criminal Code of Canada's definition of insanity is "a state of natural imbecility," or a disease of the mind that renders a person "incapable of appreciating the nature or quality of an act or omission or knowing that the act or omission is wrong."

Mr. Justice Kaufman said: "It is not easy to explain the law to a jury, and even the most patient trial judge must have at times a feeling of frustration."

Old Relationship Rekindled

TEHRAN (AP) — Chinese Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi began their first round of talks today aimed at rejuvenating a 2,000-year-old relationship and reaching common ground on the sensitive issue of security.

The shah greeted the Chinese leader at the entrance stairs of the ornate Saadabad summer palace, where they had two hours of discussions.

Details of the talks were not reported, but informed government and newspaper sources indicated that the question of big-power rivalry in the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean region was high on the agenda. The presence of top Chinese and Iranian military officers at the first round tended to support this speculation.

Tehran and Peking agree that this strategic oil-rich region is vulnerable to superpower designs, particularly from the Soviet Union.

Within hours after arriving to a royal welcome Tuesday, Hua indirectly attacked Russian intentions with the familiar Chinese criticism of superpower "hegemony" but the shah concentrated in his opening remarks on reaffirming Iran's insistence that the states of the region should be solely responsible for their own stability and security.

Both Hua and the shah have said their countries will sign a cultural co-operation agreement and agree on a scientific-technical co-operative program during the Chinese leader's three-day visit.

Iran has taken care not to irritate its Russian neighbor to the north over the visit by the leader of Moscow's Communist arch-rival. The official Soviet press showed particular annoyance at Hua's earlier remarks in Romania and Yugoslavia, the most independent countries in Eastern Europe.

This is the first trip by a Chinese Communist leader to a capitalist country, and Iranian demonstrators have made efforts to have him notice protests over government policies. Hua's quarters at the Golestan guest palace overlook south Tehran where disturbances resumed Tuesday night, but it is not known whether the Chinese leader saw them.

PSYCHIATRIC TEST SET

SEATTLE (AP) — Diana Benson, charged with making a threat against an airplane in the weekend diversion of a United Airlines DC-8 to Vancouver, was remanded in court here Tuesday for psychiatric evaluation.

Francis Diskin, assistant U.S. attorney, said U.S. Magistrate Phillip Sweigert declined to set bail for Ms. Benson, 27, formerly of the Mount Vernon, Wash., area.

Diskin said she was ordered to undergo psychiatric examinations to determine if she is able to assist in her own defence.

Ms. Benson faces up to 20 years in jail and a $10,000 fine if convicted.

Cambodia Probe Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is urging an international investigation of human-rights violations in Cambodia.

The state department this week delivered a lengthy indictment of the Khmer Rouge government to the United Nations Human Rights Commission in Geneva. It alleged that the Khmer Rouge have instituted one of the most brutal dictatorships in world history.

In a covering letter, the department suggested that refugees' accounts of Cambodian horrors recounted in the report "underscore the need for further investigation."

The department recommended that "the government of Democratic Kampuchea (as the Khmer Rouge call Cambodia) agree to an inquiry on its territory by a neutral, responsible body."

"If this is not possible, it would be desirable for an international body such as the Human Rights Commission to collect evidence and personal accounts from Cambodians who have left the country since 1975."

There was no mention, however, of a recent suggestion by a U.S. senator that an international armed force, drawn from smaller countries, intervene in Cambodia.

State department officials acknowledged that there is no chance that the Khmer Rouge will allow the Human Rights Commission or any other international body to conduct an investigation inside Cambodia.

Neurosis Claimed In Abortion

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Marla Elaine Pitchford was suffering from hysterical neurosis when she aborted her 20- to 24-week-old fetus with a knitting needle, a psychiatrist has testified.

The former psychology major, believed to be the first woman to stand trial on charges of performing a self-induced abortion, was expected to take the stand in her own defence today.

Miss Pitchford, 22, is charged with performing an illegal abortion on herself with a knitting needle. Her mother also was expected to testify in what lawyers predicted would be the last day of the Circuit Court trial. If convicted, she might be sentenced to 10 to 20 years in prison.

Dr. Lawrence Greene, a psychiatrist and one of 18 defence witnesses called Tuesday, testified that Miss Pitchford was unable to control her actions at the time of the abortion.

The former Western Kentucky University co-ed was in "a mental state where her conscious controls were gone, her ability to reason was gone, where the only thing left was her instinct to survive," he said.

Greene, who first examined Miss Pitchford Aug. 19, said she has a history of chronic depression and attempted suicide at the age of 18.

She was suffering from hysterical neurosis at the time of the incident, Greene said. "For this reason, I feel she was not responsible for her actions."

Earlier Tuesday, police detective Martin Scott, a prosecution witness, read a statement quoting Miss Pitchford as saying she attempted the abortion after being turned down at a Louisvillle abortion clinic because her pregnancy was too advanced.

A 1974 state law under which Miss Pitchford is charged says an abortion may be performed only by a licensed physician except during the first three months of pregnancy, when a woman may perform the abortion herself under a doctor's supervision.

After her examination at the abortion clinic, Miss Pitchford was quoted in the statement as saying: "I had no way out. I felt like dying. I was worried, upset and crying. When I woke up the next morning, I thought I could give myself an abortion. So I put a plastic knitting needle in my uterus and it worked. I didn't tell anyone what I had done."

In a surprise move, the prosecution called Dwight Mundy, identified as Miss Pitchford's boy-friend, who testified it had been his idea to go to the clinic.

Under questioning by prosecutor Morris Lowe, Munday testified he had never refused to marry Miss Pitchford, but said under defence cross-examination that "we discussed plans of marriage before this ever came about."

"After I found out she was pregnant we no longer discussed plans of marriage."

$632M Consumer Rip-Off In Foods Claim Refuted

WINNIPEG (CP) — Agriculture industry spokesmen Tuesday rejected claims that consumers paid at least $632 million more than they should have for specific food products between 1974 and 1976.

They were reacting to a report released Monday by the federal consumer affairs department which was based on an analysis of monthly price spreads between Toronto and selected United States markets for pork, beef, chicken, turkey and eggs between 1970 and 1976.

It said prices to Canadian producers from 1974 po 1976 were consistently higher than U. S. prices.

"It is completely specious to say the Canadian consumers paid more than they should have," said Charles Gracey, manager of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association.

"It is a ridiculous conclusion," Gracey said in telephone interview from Toronto.

The report said farm-gate prices in Canada during the period averaged eight per cent higher than in the U. S. for pork, 19 per cent for beef, 47 per cent for chickens, 37 per cent for turkey and 25 per cent for eggs.

"As far as beef is concerned," said Gracey, "prices are equivalent when you take into account such factors as the difference in dressing methods, tariffs, the exchange rate and transportation."

He said prices Tuesday on the U. S. beef market were about $53 a hundredweight while prices in Toronto were $63.

"So you might say why can't we buy the $53 carcass here?

"You have to add to that $53, about 1.5 cents a pound for tariff charges, about 14.5 per cent for the exchange rate and about $1.50 a hundredweight for transportation to the Canadian border."

Gracey also said that beef carcasses in Canada are less the fat weight while those in the U. S. include fat.

Bert Hall, chairman of the Manitoba chicken broiler producers marketing board, said he doesn't go along with figures drawing comparisons between producer prices.

"The production systems are not comparable," Hall said.

For instance, he said that while on a recent trip to the U. S., he found many workers in the poultry industry there are paid below the Canadian minimum wage.

Hall also said researchers fail to point out that the Canadian consumer pays a lower percentage of disposable income on food than any country in the world and that, on the average, most consumer items cost less in the U. S. than in Canada.

Bill Munro, manager of the Manitoba hog producers marketing board, said the Canadian hog market has traditionally been higher than that in the U. S., due partly to a higher quality product.

Munro said while there has been a relatively free movement of pork between the two countries, for many years American live hogs have not been allowed into Canada because of precautions against the spread of diseases.

"If the health problem had been cleared up, then the market may have been closer."

Church Terrorist Support Misunderstood: Bishop

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Opposition to international church support for the Zimbabwe Patriotic Front in Rhodesia is based largely on a misunderstanding, according to Anglican Bishop Roy Gartrell of British Columbia.

In an interview Tuesday on his return from the 11th Lambeth Conference of Anglican bishops held in Canterbury, England, Gartrell acknowledged that many local church members are deeply concerned about the recent controversial decision by the World Council of Churches to help support the terrorist organization now waging a guerilla war in Rhodesia.

"I get phone calls all the time from people who don't understand that it (the $85,000 grant to the Patriotic Front) comes from a special fund and that the money does not come from the council's general budget derived from donations by the churches," he said.

Gartrell explained that the special fund, supported entirely by special gifts for that purpose only, is the one designated to finance the World Council's Program to Combat Racism.

The fund of about $300,000 represents only a small fraction of the council's total budget, he said, and the money is specifically intended for such needs as education, medical equipment and the amelioration of the lot of the refugee.

"Obviously I am not going to be so naive as to think that some of the money doesn't find its way toward buying weaponry," Gartrell said. "But what would $300,000 buy anyway?"

He said the 450 bishops attending the Lambeth Conference, representing about 65 million members of the worldwide Anglican Communion, pledged overwhelming support for the program of the World Council of Churches.

The resolution passed described the WCC as "not only the most comprehensive expression of the ecumenical movement, but also the chief vehicle of world-wide ecumenical co-operation and service."

The first Lambeth Conference was in 1867 and they are held every 10 years. Gartrell noted that while the conference has no legislative authority, it does exert a significant moral influence on the thinking and actions of Anglicans everywhere.

In a departure from tradition, the 1978 conference from July 22 to Aug. 13 was switched from its usual London locale to a residential setting at the University of Kent, in the historic cathedral city of Canterbury.

Gartrell says this was a stroke of inspiration because it created an atmosphere of intimacy and fellowship which other conferences, with their scattered residential accommodation, had lacked.

"The bishops prayed together in the morning, talked to each other at night. We ate together and even drank together.

"Thrown together like that for three solid weeks made us conscious of the Anglican Communion as a world fellowship such as nothing else could have done."

More than anything else, Gartrell says the experience for him was a learning one, because the conference was virtually a "school for bishops."

More than half the bishops present were black. Sleeping just down the corridor from him were bishops from Uganda, the Philippines, England, the United States and from almost every corner of the earth.

The widely differing problems they represented made for some fascinating diversity in discussions on topics such as: What is the function of a bishop in the Church today?

Gartrell laughed as he recalled how a typical western view differed from that of someone like the Bishop of Papua-New Guinea: "He does all his work in a dugout canoe and he has 40 priests and 40,000 Anglicans to look after. It's no wonder he looks so skinny."

Show Set Sept. 15

The Victoria Horticultural Society will hold its annual fall show on Friday, Sept. 15, and Saturday, Sept. 16, in the First United Church hall, 932 Balmoral.

Even those who only grow house plants can compete in about 20 classes. These include ferns, cactus, geraniums, bonsai, orchids, foliage plants and African violets.

New exhibitors are welcome. Any one may enter the competitive classes and there are special sections for new exhibitors.

A special class this year is for the longest carrot.

Schedules may be obtained from show secretary Mrs. Shirley McMinn, 3557 Quadra.

Deadline for entries is midnight, Sept. 12.

PEOPLE, PLANTS AWARDS

Green-thumbed tenants of provincially and federally owned housing units will be at the Garth Homer Achievement Centre tonight for the People, Plants and Homes awards.

The gardening program is sponsored by the Municipal Affairs and Housing ministry's housing management commission.

A total of 140 Greater Victoria residents participated in the program which was designed to create a sense of community and positive feeling among residents living in high-density buildings.

The Horticultural Society of Victoria judged the flower and vegetable gardens and Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis will present a plaque to the winner.

The commission, providing topsoil and planting material, believes vandalism has decreased because of a newly-developed community pride.

New Strike Threat Looms at AirCan

committee, said despite the resignations, his committee would be able to continue bargaining on behalf of the union's 7,500 members.

The three negotiators who resigned were Alfred Tardif, Pat Carey, and Ken Deshauer. They were reported by Shaw to have quit over Air Canada's adamant refusal to modify its position on two contentious clauses.

They represented the powerful Montreal local where more than half the union's membership is based.

The IAM represents the airline's maintenance workers, ramp attendants and baggage handlers.

Charles Phair, vice president of the Montreal local said it would send alternate members Roger Mercure and John Skea, both of Montreal, and Bill Wilie of Halifax to the negotiating committee, to maintain the full complement on the eight-man committee.

"They are strong enough to make their position and the position of the members they represent understood," Phair said.

Air Canada chief negotiator Norman Radford questioned whether viable negotiations could continue with a divided negotiating committee, and conceded, "it will be more difficult, but I guess everything is always possible."

Both Shaw and Radford said the issue of a return to work had not been discussed — a return to work that would end a shutdown that has so far cost the airline some $12.5-$15 million.

Shaw said the union was not in a position to guarantee against further wildcat walkouts which triggered Air Canada's systemwide shutdown last Friday.

Tueday's resignations from the IAM negotiating team left the 4,000-member Montreal local represented by only Jean Quesnel, who said he would not quit because it would be "irresponsible."

The resignations came after the IAM negotiating committee had spent more than 26 hours over four days in private talks apparently trying to overcome severe differences of opinion.

Twice the rank-and-file has rejected tentative contracts that were recommended by the committee, leading to charges by the militant Montreal local it had lost touch with the membership and should resign.

The airline told IAM members Monday that no matter how long the labor dispute continued it would not budge on issues involving an extension of disciplinary suspensions and creation of a new job category involving cargo handlers, Shaw said.

It was learned reliably that Air Canada has taken a similarly tough line on a clause involving time off for union travel and length of the contract. IAM members have twice rejected a 25-month contract and Air Canada has indicated it was prepared to shave only one-month off that term.

In Europe, the French air controllers' work slowdown delayed international flights arriving at Paris' Orly Airport by several hours today, but other airports reported few delays, officials said.

Flights from Spain and Athens, for example, were three to six hours late and one flight from New York was six hours late.

Fallers Back At Caycuse

Twenty-seven fallers returned to work today at the Caycuse logging division of B.C. Forest Products at Cowichan Lake after a one-day stoppage to protest a foreman driving the company's crew bus into the woods.

The issue which prompted the stoppage will be submitted to arbitration, said Roger Stanyer, president of Local 1-80 of the International Woodworkers of America.

The fallers had been driven from the marshalling yard to the work site and back by a foreman. The fallers felt an employee rather than a supervisor should do the driving, in line with practice in other operations in the Cowichan Valley.

Summer-Long Survey Shows We've Got a Good Deal Here

Two University of Victoria students who spent the summer conducting a pricing survey in city supermarkets say local shoppers are getting a good deal compared to Vancouver.

But they say there's a big price spread between the most expensive and the cheapest local stores, and consumers won't get bargains unless they're aware of pricing differences.

In an effort to help educate Victoria shoppers Peter Kappel, fourth year economics, and Deborah Golby, first year law, did weekly reports on prices in 28 of Victoria's retail food stores. They rated the various outlets by using a 65-item food basket.

The Victoria Times published the reports, including a list of the stores involved and how they ranked.

Ranking was determined by summing up the total cost of the 65 items after using a multiplying factor known as weighting. Under the system food items were given different "weights" according to their importance to the average family. Hamburger, for instance, had a weight of one, while milk had a weight of four.

So at any given store the cost of a pound of hamburger was multiplied by one while the price of a quart of milk was multiplied by four.

A food's "weight" is determined by Statistics Canada which does research to determine what food, and how much of it, is consumed by the average family.

Stores having the lowest prices on the most important items in an average family's budget were rated the highest, because they offered the best over-all saving to consumers.

The 65 items in the food basket were selected to reflect as much as possible the shopping lists of the average family. Consequently a large number of heavily weighted items were chosen, and then the basket was fleshed out with items representing food stuffs from all areas of the store.

Brand names were used when possible to provide consistency from store to store (it would not be fair to choose Green Giant corn at one store and York at another), and where the same brand was not available in all 28 supermarkets the researchers chose either a high or low price for the product. Not all stores, for example, carry Mom's margarine, so the study team simply selected the cheapest margarine available.

The methodology was based on a nearly identical study undertaken by the federal government in Ottawa a few years ago.

The purpose of the study was to see if the public availability of food pricing comparisons would lower prices and shorten the pricing spread between stores.

In an interview, Kappel and Golby said a full analysis of the project, which was funded by the provincial department of labor, will not be finished for some weeks. But based on their experience they felt able to make some personal observations.

Kappel said Victoria supermarkets do a good job, especially when compared to Vancouver operations.

"Because of all the independents here our prices are lower than in Vancouver which is pretty hard to believe," said Kappel.

He said there are more large independent food stores in Victoria and they are aggresive, which forces the major chains to remain competitive.

In Vancouver and some other centres a few large stores can capture the bulk of the market and set prices with little regard for what the competition is doing.

Golby said, however, this is not to say Victoria shoppers have it made.

She said consumers should still pay a lot of attention to where they shop, otherwise they'll pay a lot more than they have to.

"We really noted a lot of items that were way out of line from store to store," she said.

The bargains are there, but shoppers won't get them unless they do a little bit of comparing.

Golby said it would be unrealistic to expect shoppers to check out 65 items week after week, but a quick mini-survey could be done by checking the prices on some major items at a few different stores.

If you want to get a rough idea on how a store's prices rank, look at the meat (especially the bacon), the produce, and at tinned goods.

Add to that a few of the special items you buy each week and you'll be able to determine which store in your area gives the best deal.

Golby said there was a large gap between the cheapest and most expensive stores in the city — so shoppers stand to save a lot of money.

"It's not just a matter of a few dollars," agreed Kappel.

Did stores increase their competitiveness and lower prices because of the survey?

The researchers say they're not sure of that yet, but certainly there were a few stores that did respond, although most seem to have remained fairly stable in their ranking throughout the summer.

"One store apparently kept pretty close tabs on the survey, comparing themselves with other stores, and made themselves competitive," said Kappel.

When the first report was published, June 7, this storeranked 28th, making it the most expensive supermarket in the area. It apparently changed its pricing policy over the summer. Its ranking varied over the four-month study, dropping to 19th for a number of weeks before climbing back up to the 24th spot for the last report, Aug. 28.

The store that started out as number one was ranked third in the final survey after dropping to 11th spot in early August.

Kappel and Golby said that had their survey received better media coverage it probably would have had more of an impact.

The Daily Colonist ignored the study.

The researchers said that although many of the retailers were a bit upset by the project, none of them tried to apply pressure, or to fix results by altering prices on target items.

"They pretty much took a hands-off approach," said Kappel.

He went on to give area supermarkets a few words of praise, saying that the big food stores are often unjustly blamed for high food prices.

"Supermarkets have been getting the short end of the stick . . . I really don't think that's where all the criticism should go."

Kappel said that food marketing boards disrupt the market and generally lead to higher prices on the grocery store shelf.

"The consumer shouldn't be misled into believing that marketing boards work in their favor — they are designed to promote the interests of only one group, the producers."

JESTER'S JAPE GOT NO SMILES

A prankster who dressed up Tuesday to play a "little trick" on some friends ended up getting a dressing down from Saanich police.

A police spokesman said today the man, whose name has not been released, donned a silver beard and long black trench coat before entering a clothing store in Town and Country Shopping Centre to pull a prank on employees.

However, a woman shopper spotted the man as he was getting into the attire in his car parked opposite a bank in the centre at 3:15 p.m., and, suspecting a robbery, alerted police.

Ten officers in seven cars moved in, surrounded the store, and seized the bewildered man as he emerged from the store.

The man explained sheepishly it was only "a little trick." But police were not amused.

"I guess you could say he was cautioned severely," the spokesman said.

Four Charged After Breakin

A 16-year-old juvenile and three 17-year-old youths were to appear in court today charged in connection with an early morning break-in at the Medical Arts Building, 1105 Pandora.

The four were arrested, two inside the building and two outside, after an intruder alarm was activated at 12:30 a.m. and alerted police.

A city police spokesman said three offices were entered including a medical laboratory, the building superintendent's office and a doctor's office.

The thieves entered the building after smashing a basement window.

PENINSULA WATER COSTS CUT

$3M Helps, But Not Parity

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis' announcement of $3 million fund to help pay for peninsula water is welcome but will not bring price parity with the core municipalities in Victoria, Saanich Peninsula Water Commission chairman Joe Taylor said today.

"I am pleased and surprised by the announcement from Mr. Curtis but I don't want people to get their hopes up too far."

For example, Victoria City charges only 35 cents per 1,000 for water while Sidney charges $2.

In one year's time, Sidney's price will be able to be cut about 32 cents, which would make it about $1.78, which will still be $1.43 above the Victoria City price.

"The announcement by Mr. Curtis is very welcome, very welcome indeed, but we are a long way from parity."

The main expense in peninsula water is for local distribution which is not reduced by the pipeline or the Curtis announcement. For example, Sidney buys water for 77 cent per 1,000 gallons but must charge $2 per thousand. The extra $1.23 is the high cost of distributing water to a small number of customers. As Sidney grows, this cost will decline.

Tuesday night Curtis announced the province is setting up a $3 million fund, the interest from which would pay the annual debt on $4.6 million to construct a water pipeline to the peninsula reservoir.

With the $4.6 million figure declining each year the $3 million should be more than enough to cover all debt costs over the 20-year period, Curtis said.

He said that, in addition, the wholesale price the peninsula pays the Greater Victoria Water District may be rolled back to 18 cents per thousand gallons from 30 cents. The Victoria area pays only 18 cents.

Taylor said both moves are welcome and will reduce costs for Sidney-area water.

At the present time, he said, it is costing the commission 70 cents per thousand gallons for water.

A rollback of the price to the GVWD would reduce the cost by 12 cents from 70 cents to 58 cents on the day it takes effect. Date for the rollback has not been announced

In addition, when the water pipeline is completed in September, 1979, costs will be reduced about another 20 cents, Taylor said.

But the significant cost remains local distribution charges, currently $1.23 per thousand, and while this cost can be expected to decline it will drop only by small amounts, Sidney sources said.

OFFICIAL INNER TUBE RACE ENTRY FORM

Category: .... Men's .... Women's .... Mixed ....

Return with $5 entry fee to Victoria Times Great Inner Tube Race, Victoria Press Box 1978, 2621 Douglas, Victoria. Make cheques or money orders payable to Hampton Park Hustlers. No entries under 16 years of age. All entries must be received by Sept. 6.

Will Grace Accept Offer?

After two years in the Great Inner Tube Race, Saanich alderman Whitey Severson was about to hang up his bathing suit.

"But I don't know. Maybe one more time. It's great fun, you know, even it you do get a little wet.

"Tell you what, if I can get someone interesting to join me I'll do it one more time.

"Let me see, maybe Mel (Saanich Mayor Couvelier) would be available or hey! Grace McCarthy! Find out if she's available on that day."

That day is Sunday, Sept. 10, when the Great Inner Tube Race will be held in the Gorge.

Two people obtain an inner tube and paddle their way from Craigflower Bridge to Gorge Park, cheered on by thousands of spectators on the shore.

Trophies are awarded to winners in three categories: Mens doubles, womens doubles and mixed doubles.

Inner tubes can be obtained from most tire shops and junkyards.

All competitors must register in advance. An official entry form is printed above. The event is organized by Hampton Park Hustlers and sponsored by the Victoria Times.

The $5 entry fee goes to help amateur sports in the district. Most teams will be entering at least one tube in the race. Entries from lacrosse and hockey teams have done particularly well in previous races and Vancouver Canucks always have a strong entry.

But inner tube racing is a . . . well, unusual sport and anyone can win. In addition to races, there are trophies for best costume, oldest entry and to the team that has come the furthest to participate.

Entries in past years have come from Washington, Oregon, and Alberta as well as from across B.C.

There is also a parade competition, which will be held immediately before the race. Cars or pickup trucks are decorated with or without inner tubes and many entries this year are expected to have a Capt. Cook theme. There is no need for advance registration for the parade but anyone going in the inner tube race must register in advance.

With only a few days left until race day, challenges are being tossed back and forth between athletic teams, community organizations and other groups.

Individual challenges are also being hurled. What are you doing on Sept. 10, Grace?

Konopacki Spark In Budget Victory

SAINT JOHN, N.B. — Andy Konopacki played a powerful dual role to lead Victoria Budgets to victory in their opening game at the Canadian senior men's fastball championships.

Konopacki pitched a two-hitter and hit a triple and a single in two trips to the plate as the defending-champion Budgets blanked Fort MacMurray of Alberta 5-0 in a game that started Tuesday night and finished this morning.

Budgets had taken a 3-0 lead in the bottom of the second inning Tuesday night when umpires decided to suspend the game because of fog and drizzle.

Bob Burrows led off the inning with a triple, Bob Holness grounded out and Dennis Eckert singled to score Burrows. Eckert advanced to second on a sacrifice by John Green and went to third on a passed ball. Rudy Teichrob, a Victoria pickup from Abbotsford, singled to score Eckert and Konopacki followed with his triple to drive in Teichrob.

After the game resumed this morning, Budgets capped their victory with two runs in the fifth.

Konopacki and Dave Williams hit singles, Carl Walker connected on a fielders' choice that forced Konopacki out at third and Reg Underwood singled to score Williams. Walker scored on the same play when the Alberta centre-fielder misplayed the ball.

Fort MacMurray players committed two errors and Victoria came up with six hits during an error-free performance.

Budgets, one of six teams in the Blue Division for preliminary single round-robin play, were scheduled to face Newfoundland today and take on Nova Scotia in a 5:30 p.m. (Victoria time) game Thursday. They wrap up preliminary play by facing New Brunswick at 11 a.m. (Victoria time) Friday.

Seven teams are competing in the Red Division.

In other games, New Brunswick teams took turns drubbing the Northwest Territories entry 5-0 Tuesday.

Peter Briggs of Saint John pitched a no-hitter as he led his team to a win early in the day over Uranium City, Sask., which represents the N.W.T. in the tournament. Briggs struck out three and walked none.

Fredericton Medjucks, New Brunswick champions, repeated the score againt Uranium City later in the day led by the eight-strikeout pitching of Sonny Phillips.

Two games were postponed because of rain and other games were played in fog and drizzle.

Tournament officials said the postponed games — Alberta against the N.W.T. and Manitoba against Ontario — would be worked into today's schedule if possible.

Today's forecast called for sun.

In another game, Charlottetown blanked Saskatoon Merchants, 2-0.

Evans Joins Irish For Cup Struggle

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Brian Evans of Nanaimo Timbermen will be a Victoria Shamrock for the Mann Cup Canadian men's lacrosse championship opening Monday in Peterborough.

Western Lacrosse Association scoring champion for the past two seasons, Evans Tuesday agreed to join the Shamrocks, who are allowed to pick up one additional player for the championship.

Goalkeeper Mac Maude of Nanaimo will be in the role of a standby goalkeeper, as will veteran George Grover, who came out of retirement to play in a backup role for the Shamrocks in their final game against Coquitlam. Neither will make the trip east unless needed.

This was decided when it was determined that the injury to regular goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer was not as serious as at first feared.

Shamrock doctor Bert Ingram says that Smeltzer should be able to play. Smeltzer was taken out of the third game of the Victoria-Coquitlam series midway through the third period suffering from a stretched Achilles tendon.

Scott Marshall is the other Shamrock goalkeeper. He replaced Smeltzer in that third game and allowed only one goal in 20 minutes in the Shamrock win. He also played a key role in the Shamrocks 14-11 victory in the final game Sunday.

Coach Nirmal Dillon reported that Larry Bell, who has been out of action with a rib injury, should be able to play. The only doubtful starter is Rick Baker, who has been out of action for the past month because of a torn knee cartilage.

All of the players, with the exception of Andy Reid, will make the trip east. This includes juniors Doug Angrove and Jeff Whitney-Griffiths, who played for the Shamrocks in the playoffs. Reid is unable to join the club because of work commitments.

For Evans it will be a case of going home. He was a star player with the Peterborough juniors before coming west to join the Timbermen three years ago and after one season as a professional.

It is a brilliant record of accomplishment he will take back with him.

Evans, 24, scored 44 goals and had 60 assists for 104 points in 1976; he scored 47 goals and had 91 assists for 138 points in 1977; and this season he had 40 goals and a record 106 assists for 146 points. He also set several individual WLA records this season.

Evans' appearance will make the series a family affair as his brother, Paul, is the leading scorer on the Peterborough team.

Shamrocks returning to where they learned their lacrosse, in the east, are Joe McCrea, Gerry McKenna, Gord Lyons, Art Webster, Jim Gow, Ivan Thompson, Ron MacNeil, Smeltzer, Bell, and Marshall. Dan Green played at Peterborough as a junior.

Members of the Peterborough club who may be recalled here are the Wasson brothers, Bob and Jim, who played for Nanaimo in 1976, and Jim Johnston, who played for New Westminster Salmonbellies in '76.

Peterborough is said to be a smaller team than the Shamrocks, featuring a fast-break style and with an excellent power play.

Peterborough is allowed to strengthen with two additional players for the time being; then, after the second game, if the feeling is they need additional help they may apply for two more replacements.

One of the players expected to join them is Stan Cockerton, hero of Team Canada's win in the world lacrosse championships in England this summer, and a player who may be recalled as having played here with Bramalea against Victoria McDonalds in the Minto Cup final, won by McDonalds, in 1976.

BOXER KILLED IN CAR CRASH

TORONTO (CP) — Paul (The Investment) Nilsen of Toronto, killed today in an auto accident near Myrtle Beach, S.C., was two months away from the biggest fight of his professional boxing career.

Nilsen, whose car overturned on a private road, was to have met George Chuvalo in an October bout for the undisputed Canadian heavyweight title.

Own Exhuberance . . . . . . Victoria's Downfall

Loggers Chop Mussels

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

One thing about professional baseball at the minor league level. They always manage, now and then, to come up with strange ways to win or lose games.

So shed a tear for Victoria Mussels, who had Grays Harbor Loggers on the ropes Tuesday at Royal Athletic Park but allowed the Northwest League's Northern Division leaders to get off the hook because of the local team's own exuberance.

Loggers recorded a 7-6 decision in the zany encounter, which was finished under protest after a controversial ninth-inning out that may have deprived Mussels of victory.

Trailing 4-1, the home run bats of former Mussel Vito Lucarelli and Rick Hill pushed Grays Harbor into a 7-4 lead heading into the bottom of the ninth. Lucarelli connected for two over-the-fence shots, a solo homer in the eighth off brother and loser Frank (1-8) and a two-run job in the ninth off Don Rogelstad. Hill capped Loggers' four-run uprising in the eighth with a three-run homer.

Still, Mussels appeared headed for a comeback of their own.

Singles by Bob Potts and Paul Kirsch and a walk to John Bush loaded the bases with Victoria outfielders. None out.

Catcher Jim Thamann stepped up and cracked a towering shot towards the left-field fence. A grand-slammer? Not quite. The ball hit about six inches below the top of the fence and rebounded back into play. It was to be, almost certainly, for extra bases.

With none out, Victoria's runners couldn't take undue risks. Bush, however, was prepared to tag up at first and didn't venture too far towards second. Thamann, in his desire to stretch for extra bases, passed Bush and was called out.

Only Potts scored one what turned out to be a 375-foot single, Thamann's third of the night.

Kirsch scored Victoria's sixth run moments later when Greg Schultz grounded out, Bush advancing to third. But the tying run was left stranded at third when Al Alpaugh grounded out to end the game.

The victory went to Dave Jannusch, the league's big winner and now 13-1. But it was a shaky night for the righthander, who walked nine, allowed nine hits but was bailed out by reliever Mike Rima and Victoria's exuberance.

Thamann's eagerness marred what could have been a big night for the catcher. He went three-for-three and walked twice.

The teams meet again tonight at 7 in a doubleheader and the Mussels' first season will officially end Thursday.

Thursday's Logger-Mussel meeting will be preceded by an exhibition between the North Korean national Babe Ruth team and Victoria Firefighter League's All-Stars.

Grays Harbor's triumph, coupled with Walla Walla's 3-2 loss at Bellingham, gave Loggers a three-game lead over Padres and the Northern Division title. Walla Walla has only two games remaining on its schedule.

The Southern Division race is still wide open after Bend trimmed Eugene 6-4 to leave the two teams tied for first place. Both teams have won as many games as they have lost and both have two games remaining.

If the teams finish in a tie, a playoff will be held Friday night.

Mohorcic Gets All-Star Berth

Big Dale Mohorcic, a righthander with the lowest earned-run-average (1.41), has brought all-star honors to Victoria in the Mussels' first season in the Northwest Baseball League.

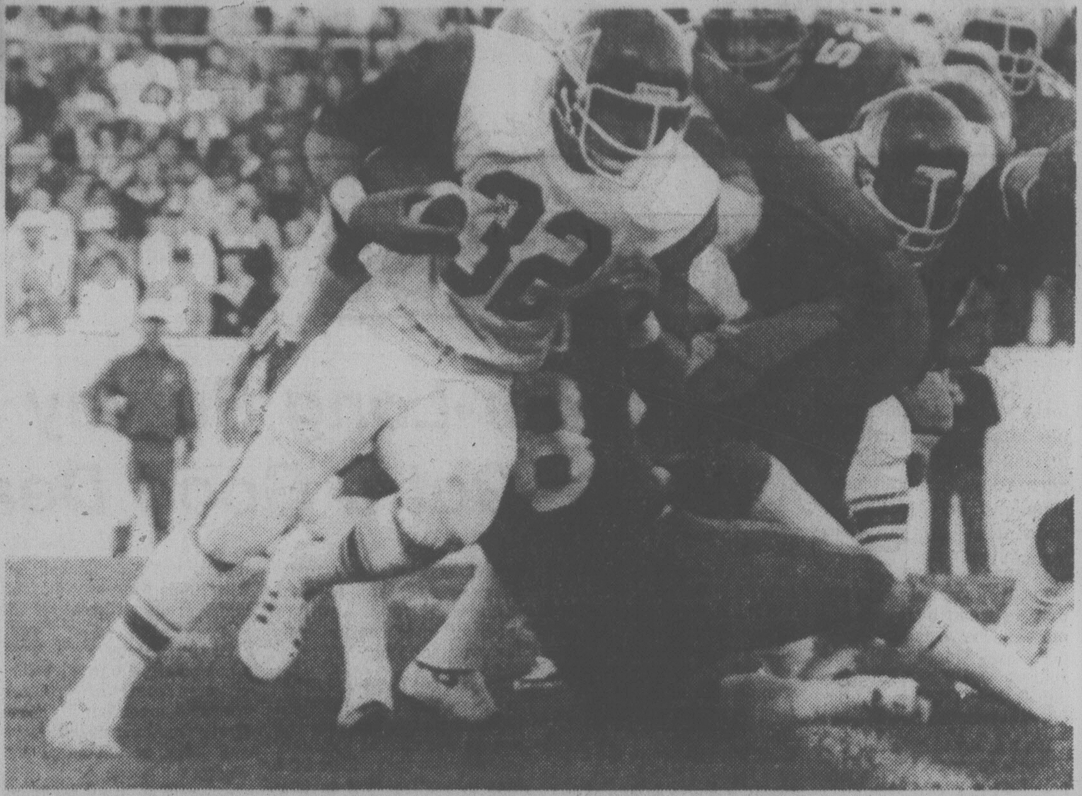
Mohorcic, who is scheduled to start one of two games against Grays Harbor Loggers at Royal Athletic Park tonight, is one of four pitchers picked by NBL managers.

Dave Jannusch, who ran his won-lost record to 13-1 by pitching Grays Harbor's 7-6 victory over the Mussels Tuesday, also was named to the all-star team dominated by Northern Division players. Two Bellingham hurlers — Jack Hobbs, 11-3 and the strikeout leader with 117, and reliever Rob Pietroburgo, 4-3 but with seven saves — are also on the all-star pitching staff along with Walla Walla reliever Randy Miller.

Grays Harbor's Bill Bryk was voted manager-of-the-year.

Only six Southern Division players made the all-star team. They are Danny Thomas, as designated hitter; outfielder Nick Belmonte of Boise Buckskins; first-baseman Emile Drzayich of Boise; utilityman Kevin Jacobson of Eugene Emeralds; Darrell Cias of Salem and Ray Corbett of Eugene, who tied for the catcher's position.

Completing the 1978 all-star team are: Jerry Johnson, Walla Walla, second base; Jim Gattis, Grays Harbor, third base; Mobil Cox, Walla Walla, shortstop; Paul Stevens, Grays Harbor, and Al Richmond, Walla Walla, the other outfielders.



BREAKING OUT for short gain in Canadian Football League game Tuesday night in Winnipeg is Ken Starch, running back with Montreal Alouettes. This run and all other efforts of Alouettes were somewhat futile since Blue Bombers took starch out of Montrealers by romping to 36-10 triumph. (CP Wirephoto)

Bombers Destroy Als In Explosive Outbreak

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers manhandled the defending Canadian Football League champions Montreal Alouettes Tuesday night, sending them home smarting from a 36-10 loss and carrying two injured quarterbacks.

The final statistics showed the teams fairly equal in total yardage and first downs but the figures misrepresented the facts.

The game could have been called after the second quarter because by that time the Bombers had a 34-10 lead and Alouettes had lost their two top quarterbacks.

The second half was full of nightmares for the Alouettes, who lost two fumbles and had a long pass to the Winnipeg five-yard line called back by a holding penalty.

Ralph Brock mastered the heralded Montreal defence in the second quarter, much to the delight of a record crowd of 27,201 fans. He threw four touchdown passes as the Bombers put 33 points on the board to supplement a single in the first quarter. The 33-point total is believed to be a CFL record.

Brock completed 21 of 31 pass attempts for 297 yards, throwing two touchdown passes to Richard Crump and one each to Mike Holmes and Joe Poplawski.

Bernie Ruoff kicked five singles, three of them off missed field goal attempts, four converts and a 27-yard field goal.

The Montreal points, all in the first quarter, were scored on a 35-yard field goal and convert by Don Sweet and a 19-yard touchdown pass from Joe Barnes to Peter Dalla Riva.

Larry Lawrence started at quarterback for Montreal but left limping in the first quarter from what was later diagnosed as an achilles tendon injury that will keep him out for the season.

Barnes replaced Lawrence but also had to be helped off the field in the second quarter when he was sacked by Marvin Davis. The extent of the injury wasn't immediately known but it is believed he aggravated a knee ailment.

Gerry Dattilio finished the game, completing 17 of 26 pass attempts for 218 yards.

The Alouettes managed just 38 yards in total rushing.

Gord Paterson of Winnipeg emerged as the games top receiver, taking six passes for 92 yards but it was the efforts of Crump that earned him the player-of-the-game honors. Crump carried five times for 44 yards and caught four passes for 78 more.

The win didn't move the Bombers out of fourth place in the Western Conference but it did improve their won-lost record to 3-4. Montreal stayed in second place in the East with a 4-3 mark, two points behind Ottawa.

In tonight's action, Calgary Stampeders will play in Ottawa against the Roughriders in an interlocking game, while in the Western Conference, British Columbia Lions and Edmonton Eskimos play the league's inaugural game in the brand new Commonwealth Stadium.

The Calgary-Ottawa game is scheduled to be televised on Channel 8 at 5 p.m. with the B.C.-Edmonton game on Channels 2 and 6 at 7 p.m. The B.C.-Edmonton game will be broadcast on CKNW(980) and CFAX(1070) at 6:30 p.m.

Connors' Best Surface, Claims Cautious Borg

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Open tennis championships have started with an entirely new flavor. And at least two top players, Bjorn Borg and Tracy Austin, have yet to acquire a taste for it.

Both won their opening-night matches easily Tuesday, but Borg was troubled by the pacing of the surface, a fast, synthetic covering, and Austin felt the fans were a little stand-offish.

"The players are going to have to take more chances," said Borg, who is seeking his first U.S. Open crown. He obviously had some misgivings about the man considered his strongest opponent. "This is Connors' best surface. He's grown up on it."

Borg, the three-time Wimbledon champion, claimed he was more cautious than usual but he had no trouble taking down South African Bob Hewitt 6-0, 6-2.

Austin, the 15-year-old fifth-seed in the women's draw, downed Trish Bostrom 6-0, 6-1.

As the men's first round continues today, defending champion Guillermo Vilas was to play Cliff Drysdale, Connors was to battle Tom Gullikson, Vitas Gerulaitis was to meet Pascale Portes of France, and it was to be John McEnroe vs. Sherwood Stewart, Brian Gottfried vs. Australian Phil Dent and Arthur Ashe vs. Ross Case of Australia.

Borg's and Austin's matches were the christening for the brand new National Tennis Centre, the $10 million effort by the U.S. Tennis Association to give the Open a home suitable to its long-burgeoning popularity. The move also took the Open away from the slow clay-like courts of Forest Hills, a change that is likely to benefit Americans.

Set among 15 acres that were the grounds of the 1964 World's Fair, the modern centre features a stadium holding a 20,000 centre court arena and a 6,500-seat grandstand. The old stadium at the tradition-laden West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills seated only 12,000.

PARALYZED PLAYER CERTAIN OF INCOME

NEW YORK (AP) — Darryl Stingley of New England Patriots, paralyzed during a National Football League exhibition game in Oakland on Aug. 12, will receive more than $1,000 a month for life from the NFL if he never plays another game.

The wide receiver was injured when he and Raiders' safety Jack Tatum collided in mid-air. He has been in Eden Township Hospital in Castro Valley, Calif., near Oakland, since the accident.

Under the collective bargaining agreement between the league and the NFL Players Association, Stingley, if he is unable to play, will get:

—$1,000 a month for life,
—$50 a month for each of his two dependent children,
—his 1978 contract in full, about $55,000,
—about $30,000 in 1979, the option year of his contract,
—all medical bills paid under the NFL insurance plan.

Stingley also would receive Workmen's Compensation and Social Security disability benefits.

Playoff Final Goes to Limit

Dave Hughes fashioned a two-hitter Tuesday while pitching Capital Builders to a 4-1 victory over Victoria Athletics at Heywood Avenue Park.

The win forced a deciding game in the best-of-seven Heywood Men's Softball League playoff final at the same site at 6:15 tonight.

Hughes, who has pitched all three Capital wins in the series, retired Athletics in order in all but three innings. Larry McKinnon singled in the second, John Iverson hit a home run in the third and Bernie Talbot drew a walk in the seventh.

Barry Milne set the pace at bat for Capital by driving in two runs.

Two players from Capital have received individual awards for regular-season excellence. Al Mann was selected as the league's most valuable player and Marv Carver collected the pitching award.

Barry Moen of Webb and Trace won the batting title, Larry Shaw of Hygrade Radio picked up the sportsmanship award and Shirley Carver collected the Memorial Trophy for outstanding service to the league.

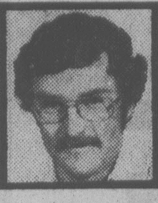
Keogh River Studies Help Steelhead Effort



OUTDOORS

stewart lang

"It's the most intensive study of steelhead being conducted anywhere in North America."

That's the way Fish and Wildlife Branch anadromous fisheries co-ordinator Dave Narver described work now underway on the Keogh River near Port McNeill.

Part of the joint federal-provincial Salmonid Enhancement Program (SEP), the Keogh study involves a multifaceted approach to boosting natural or near-natural production of our native sea-run rainbows.

The branch, which has operated two counting fences on the Keogh for the past three years, is in the process of testing the effectiveness of stream improvement devices and determining the basic population dynamics between steelhead, coho and dolly varden char.

"That interaction is really important," said Narver, "because if you enhance a stream aimed at one species you may severely influence the other . . ."

The branch is "creating more living space" on the Keogh by placing boulders and other structures such as gabions (rock-filled wire baskets), large rock "rip-rap" and cabled logs in the stream — anything to create shelter for the juvenile steelhead.

Narver said the branch will have 75 structures, which were developed in the midwestern United States for resident trout, installed by the end of this year.

Early results look promising.

"These are techniques are going to prove useful for fish and game clubs to use under some direction," he added. "This is the kind of really productive work they can do."

Another facet of the study concerns the "idea of classifying habitat with the number of steelhead parr produced" and relating this to "the number of smolts going out of the system."

This information can then be taken to other streams and by means of aerial photography or helicopter flights "you can map the stream at an appropriate flow level, type the habitat from the photographs and make a pretty good estimate of what the stream should be producing."

Non-productive water — which might be looked at for stream improvement purposes — is also revealed by such surveys.

Lake-pen rearing of steelhead, first started in the Vedder River on the Lower Mainland, plays another role in the over-all Keogh study.

Floating pens have been built in O'Connor Lake, where the steelhead are planted and grow to smolt size in one year. The growing fish are fed artificially but the pens are deep enough that the fish can seek "an appropriate temperature." This eliminates the expensive procedure of having to control water temperature.

Hatcheries have a great capacity for rearing eggs but generally run out of room as the fish grow. Thus, the simple pen facility serves as an important supplement to the hatcheries at relatively little cost.

"We improve the efficiency of the hatchery operation by outplanting them in these pens around mid-summer where they reach a size of eight-to-the-pound by the following spring," said Narver.

One other Keogh research project proposed for next year involves stream fertilization. Patterned after the highly-successful lake fertilization experiments used to enhance sockeye salmon populations, this project will try to improve the low-nutrient conditions found in most B.C. coastal streams.

Immature insects feed either on the decomposing leaves or the algae they produce in highly-productive streams. On the coast, floods generally sweep most of the vegetative matter out of the system before it gets a chance to decompose.

The Keogh experiment will try to stimulate algae growth — and hence the base of a food pyramid — by dripping nutrients into the stream at a controlled rate.

If the benefit-cost ratio of stream fertilization is anywhere near the 35-1 ratio of lake programs, this project — in conjunction with the others on the Keogh — could very well provide the icing on the cake for biologists attempting to bring back a portion of our severely depleted steelhead populations.

Jonassen Sidelined

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian defensive end Andy Jonassen of Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League will be out of action for about three weeks following an appendicitis attack.

ORANTES REPEATS

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Manuel Orantes of Spain won the United States pro tennis championship for the second year in a row Tuesday night, crushing Harold Solomon 6-4, 6-3 in a romp on Longwood's clay courts.

Orantes, seeded fourth in defence of his title, needed one hour and 34 minutes to breeze past Solomon, a long-time rival on the pro tennis circuit.

The victory was the second for Orantes since he defeated Eddie Dibbs for the U.S. Pro title here last year. The 29-year-old Spanish veteran last won in Tokyo last fall.

OLYMPIC SPORTS KICKS OFF THE SOCCER SEASON

SOCCER TALK with Glen Johnson

Today we are featuring Soccer Boots by ADIDAS. Great care should be taken when choosing boots as this will inevitably affect your performance, both kicking and dribbling the ball, as well as affecting your foot traction when competing on the field.

1. For the young player the STAR serves as an excellent all round boot as it can be worn on both dry sand fields and wet grass fields.
2. For senior players we feature several suitable models depending on your budget and level of soccer played. Two pairs of boots are necessary for senior players, as the type of studs worn in different conditions will affect your foot traction and in the end your success in the field.
   a. A pair of multi-stud boots should be worn on all-weather fields or dry grass fields — i.e. ARGENTINA, CHILE, LA PLATA, WORLD CUP.
   b. A pair of screw-in stud boots should always be worn on wet heavy fields. — i.e. BECKENBAUER, INTER, WORLD CHAMPION.

Boots for senior players should be purchased as tight as possible as the leather will stretch to fit your foot.

Call in at our store and we will do our very best to satisfy your needs.

Gibson Among Favorites For National Junior Title

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — The battle for the Canadian junior men's amateur golf supremacy started today at the Lingen Country Club with several golfers conceded a chance to win the Canadian title.

Among the favorites are Eric Kaufmanis of Aylmer, Que., James Duff of Chateauguay, Que., Jean-Louis Lanarre of Candiac, Que., Rick Gibson of Victoria and Matthew Shaw of West Paradise, N.S.

last year's champion, Jim Rutledge of Victoria, has turned professional.

Included in the field of about 150 are 10 four-man teams competing for the interprovincial team title, which will be decided Thursday following completion of the second round of play. The field will then be pared to 70 golfers for the final two rounds with the junior champion declared Saturday.

The top three scores of each team will be counted towards the team title. Defending-champion Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia are expected to battle for that honor.

A strike by Air Canada ground crews has forced the golfers to scramble for any available means of transportation and many were struggling in Tuesday and rushing to play a practice round on the 6,600-yard course.

Club professional George Gilmurray said the par-72 course looks deceptively easy, but will handcuff golfers not concentrating 100 per cent.

"Some of the holes look easy, but pin placement can make the greens treacherous," he said.

The 18-hole course features two par-fives longer than 500 yards and three par-fives of more than 450.

Gilmurray said the 530-yard fifth hole and the 479-yard ninth hole, which has a hidden water hazard and three bunkers surrounding a large green, will make or break the aspiring champions.

Gibson and Duff played last week at the Canadian amateur men's championship held at Laval-sur-la-Lac, Que., and the experience could help them in this event.

Kaufmanis did not play at the amateur championship, but the University of Indiana golfer is regarded by many here as one of the finest young prospects in the country.

Kaufmanis won the Canadian juvenile title last year after finishing second to Shaw in 1976 and second to Rutledge in 1975.

The juvenile title, for golfers under 16 years of age, will be decided at this tournament and Gibson has been rated by the organizers as the favorite.

Jordy Hilton, executive director of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, said Gibson may become the first juvenile to win the junior title, open to golfers under 19 years of age.

Organizers said the experience and talent of the Quebec team should be enough to overwhelm the rookie team from Ontario and the team from B.C., of which only Gibson is rated close to the top. No other povincial team will challenge, they said.

SAGE, DUCH HONORED

Reelie Voted Most Valuable

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mike Reelie has been named most valuable player and Geordie Dean rookie of the year in the Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League.

Both are forwards with Coquitlam J-Hawks.

Reelie was also chosen as a forward to the league's first all-star team, while Dean was selected forward for the second team.

Ron Sage of Victoria McDonalds was named the most sportsmanlike player.

Burnaby Cablevision, which won the league championship this season, dominated the first team roster with the selection of forwards Dan Perreault and John Swan, defencemen Terry Bingley and Derek Dickson and goalie Rod Bannister.

Meanwhile, Mike O'Reilly of Burnaby will miss the first game of the Minto Cup final because of a suspension handed down Monday.

O'Reilly was suspended for one game for his part in a bench-clearing brawl during the last game of the finals against New Westminster.

Dan Richardson of the Salmonbellies was suspended for three games and will miss those contests at the start of next season.

Burnaby opens its Minto Cup series against Whitby, Ont., Builders Sept. 4. The games will be played in New Westminster.

STAR CZECH GOALIE SOUGHT BY KINGS

TORONTO (CP) — Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League are considering signing goaltender Vladimir Dzurilla, a star goaltender with the Czechoslovakia national team the past decade.

The Kings recently lost free agent goaltender Rogatien Vachon to Detroit Red Wings.

Dzurilla, 35, has been granted permission to leave and the Czech Hockey Federation has agreed to allow him the chance to play professional hockey.

"His joining us is not out of the question," said George Maguire, Kings general manager.

Three-Day Format, 30 Sports at Richmond Event

Games Expansion Planned

The British Columbia Summer Games will be expanded in the future, chairman Ron Butlin has announced.

"The government of British Columbia, after reviewing the tremendous success of the Penticton Games, has asked that the games be expanded rather than effect any cutback," Butlin stated.

There will be some changes for the 1979 Summer Games at Richmond, however.

It will be a three-day event with 30 different sports events and approximately 3,500 athletes. "Instead of each sport competing for two days (as was the case at Penticton) the new formula will see all of the sports competing for three days in Richmond," Butlin said.

Butlin also reported that the 1979 Games will involve the physically handicapped.

Requests for bids for the 1980 Summer and the 1981 Winter Games will go forward to communities in early September.

ARGOS ACQUIRE BROWN

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League have acquired Elton Brown from Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

City Youth In Soccer Skills Final

Victoria's Adam Keith will represent British Columbia in the national Adidas-Coca Cola soccer skills competition at Toronto, Sept. 23-24.

Keith, the Victoria area under-14 champion for the past three years, recently won the B.C. championship at Swangard Stadium, Vancouver.

Keith competed in five skill tests against the champions of other soccer districts in the province.

The skill tests were:

Juggling the ball with one foot only (300 times);

Juggling the ball with alternate feet (300 times);

Heading the ball (100 times);

Keeping the ball in the air from the halfway line to the penalty box and then shooting at goal;

Five shots at a boarded up goal from the penalty spot.

Ex-Champs Head Entry

Two former champions top the field for this year's Metro-CFAX 36-hole pro-am golf tournament at Cedar Hill, Saturday and Sunday.

But it isn't likely that professionals Bill Wakeham of Cowichan and John Morgan of Victoria will have things their own way.

Stiff opposition is expected to come from some relatively new pros on the trail and some leading amateurs.

Professional Cec Ferguson, runner-up for the Alberta Open last weekend, Bob Beauchemin, who is enjoying his best year as a professional, and Jim Rutledge, former Canadian junior champion who turned professional this year, are expected to supply the main contention for the title won last year by Dave Barr of Kelowna.

Barr will not be defending his honor as he is playing on the U.S. circuit.

Wakeham won the championship in 1973 and Morgan in 1975.

Other top contenders are amateurs Bill Hobbis of Calgary and Dave Donaldson and Grant Milliken of Gorge Vale.

First prize for professionals is $800.

Entries total 192 including 30 professionals.

Nets' Sale Set

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Details for the sale of New Jersey Nets of the National Basketball Association have been worked out and a final agreement should be reached by the end of the week, Joseph Taub, the primary investor, has announced.

BENEFIT RACING TONIGHT

A young racer needing treatment for leukemia and Wayne Bull will be the main recipients of funds raised tonight at the inaugural Western Speedway "Benefit Night".

Bull, a 22-year-old player in the Sidney Softball Association, is paralyzed after suffering a broken neck in a swimming accident Aug. 5.

Racers and owners of cars are donating their time, Speedway employees are donating their services and all proceeds of the program involving stock, superstock and open superstock classes will go into the benefit fund.

"Hopefully, we can turn it into an annual money raiser," said Speedway manager Tony Mortel.

Admission has been reduced to $2 for adults and students and 50¢ for children aged six to 12.

Time trials start at 7 with racing at 8.

Meningitis Peril Over For Injured Turcotte

NEW YORK (CP) — Veteran jockey Ron Turcotte is recovering from a life-threatening bout of spinal meningitis that complicated the crippling injuries he suffered in a spill at Belmont Park on July 13.

"The danger from the meningitis now seems all over and his condition is improving," said his wife, Gaetane, at New York University Medical Centre.

Turcotte, 37, a native of Grand Falls, N.B., suffered severe spinal injuries in the spill. A five-hour operation was performed on his back July 14 and several days later he had a second operation described as "corrective surgery."

Paralysis set in the lower part of his body and he lost sensation in his legs.

Mrs. Turcotte said that the main thing now for her husband is to get over the complications before he can even think about rehabilitation. For the present, she said, her husband has ruled out all interviews.

Orioles Pick A's Clean for Season

By The Associated Press

You could say that Baltimore Orioles have Oakland A's number. They've had it all year.

The Orioles have won all 11 games they've played with Oakland this season, but they won't have the A's to kick around any more in 1978. The season series between the clubs is over.

Baltimore, which has won eight straight games, are just the second team to sweep a season series in the American League. The Orioles did it in 1970 when they beat Kansas City 12 times. It has been done three times in the National League, but not since 1899.

Oakland has lost nine in a row and 15 of 16.

Elsewhere in the AL, New York Yankees edged California 4-3 in 11 innings, Boston bombed Seattle 10-5, Milwaukee blanked Cleveland 6-0, Detroit beat Minnesota 4-2, Chicago topped Kansas City 9-3 and Toronto was a 4-1 winner over Texas.

In the National League, Ken Forsch, a mainstay in the bullpen for most of his eight years in the majors, was thrust into the starting rotation a week ago for Houston Astros.

Tuesday night he started for the second time this National League baseball season and came away with a nine-hit, complete-game 6-3 victory over St. Louis Cardinals, his second straight win.

In other games, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Montreal Expos 4-1, San Francisco Giants blanked New York Mets 2-0, Philadelphia Phillies beat San Diego Padres 9-5, Atlanta Braves nipped Chicago Cubs 4-3 and Pittsburgh Pirates blanked Cincinnati Reds 5-0.

Dempsey, Plunkett Victims of NFL Cutbacks

By The Associated Press

Centre Len Hauss, the anchor of Washington Redskins' offensive line for more than a decade, and veteran kickers Jerrel Wilson and Tom Dempsey were cut Tuesday as the National Football League's 28 teams reduced their rosters to 43 players.

Jim Plunkett of San Francisco '49ers got his notice Monday.

Two players will be added to the rosters before the regular season opens this weekend, so some of those cut will find their way back into the league in the next few days.

New York Giants are at Tampa Bay Saturday night, 12 games will be played Sunday and Baltimore visits Dallas on Monday night.

The start of defensive end Carl Eller's 15th season with Minnesota was short-circuited when the Vikings placed him in limbo for his failure to attend last Sunday's practice. Officially, he was declared exempt, which means he is neither cut nor on the roster.

Defensive tackle Ken Novak, Baltimore's No. 1 draft choice two years ago but unable to break into starting spots occupied by Joe Ehrmann and Mike Barnes, and Colts fullback Larry Watkins also were among the unlucky players told to report to the head coach with their playbooks and football shoes.

Hauss lost his job to Bob Kuziel, a fourth-year pro from the University of Pittsburgh.

Jim Mandich, a tight end obtained by the Redskins from Miami a year ago for a pair of draft choices, also was cut by Washington.

Wilson, who spent 16 years with Kansas City Chiefs and won four punting titles before winding up with Houston this year, was cut by the Oilers, along with cornerback Zeke Moore, who spent all 12 of his NFL seasons with Houston.

Dempsey, the rotund place-kicker who owns the 63-yard field goal record he set with New Orleans eight years ago, was cut by Buffalo.

Plunkett saw the writing on the wall last week—but not all of it.

"I think I can assume I'm not going to start," Plunkett said after completing one of his last 18 passes as the San Francisco 49ers compiled a 1-3 pre-season record.

What Plunkett failed to read was the fine print that said he would be cut along with seven other players.

The 49ers also placed all-pro wide receiver Gene Washington on the injured waived list and announced that Steve DeBerg, a third-string quarterback a year ago, would be their No. 1 man this season.

DeBerg wasn't the only young quarterback to earn the starting nod for a 1978 NFL regular-season opener.

June Jones III, listed as the No. 4 quarterback on the Falcons' depth chart when the exhibition season opened, was named Atlanta's starting quarterback for its opener.

Jones, who will replace Steve Bartkowski, the Falcons' starter last year, earned the starting berth by leading them to two pre-season victories.

Atlanta cut seven players including five-year veteran quarterback Kim McQuilken and placed defensive tackle Brent Adams on the injured reserve list.

Starting quarterback decisions were also announced in Cincinnati and Baltimore.

Ken Anderson, the Bengals mainstay in recent years, had an operation Tuesday on his injured right hand and will miss at least the first five games. John Reaves will assume his duties.

The Baltimore Colts had better news.

Bert Jones, who suffered a separation of his right shoulder in last Saturday's preseason finale against Detroit Lions, thinks he will be ready for the Colts opener against Dallas Cowboys, Monday.

Joe Washington should also be in uniform for the Colts. Washington, acquired in the trade that sent holdout Lydell Mitchell to San Diego Chargers, announced he will report.

In other trades, Seattle Seahawks picked up veteran defensive tackle Bill Gregory and a draft choice from the Cowboys for two draft choices, while New Orleans Saints acquired eight-year veteran linebacker Floyd Rice from Oakland Raiders.

Detroit Lions acquired rookie defensive tackle Karl Baldischwiler from Miami Dolphins in exchange for a future draft choice while Buffalo got kicker Errol Mann, the NFL's leading scorer last season, and two other players from the Raiders for past considerations.

Dallas placed four players on waivers, including second-year running back Larry Brinson.

Veteran punter Larry Seiple was placed on the injured reserve list and Miami placed five other players on waivers.

Seiple, a 12th-year pro, suffered a severely sprained knee in the Dolphins' pre-season victory over Tampa Bay.

Veteran punter Mitch Hoopes was one of seven players released as Philadelphia Eagles reduced their roster, while New England Patriots made still another switch in punters, their fourth in 10 days, waiving newly acquired Neil Clabo and reactivating three-year veteran Mike Patrick.

Running back Johnny Musso and linebacker Waymond Bryant were placed on the injured reserve list by Chicago Bears.

San Diego Chargers waived six players including safety Clarence Duren, a starter last season, and defensive end Wilbur Young, who started for Kansas City in 1977.

Minnesota Vikings trimmed seven players from their roster, including five-year veteran defensive back Joe Blahak and running back Ron Harris.

Kansas City cut five draft choices including fourth-round pick Danny Johnson, a linebacker from Tennessee State, and three free agents from their roster.

(NOTE: Senior fares apply only when B.C. Ferries allow senior citizens free passage)

Like many commodities, the cost of providing these services has gone up considerably in the past few years. More realistic bus fares are needed to help maintain the existing level of service. Even with the new fares, however, the rider still pays about half the cost of providing these services.

We think you'll have to agree. Sailing by bus is still a beautiful B.C. bargain.

New E&N Group Goals

The Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway steering committee, flush with its success in stimulating a surge in traffic on the Victoria-Courtenay run this summer, has petitioned CP Rail for a further expansion in service.

Committee chairman John Cooper says a letter has been sent to J.A. Forbes, head of CP Rail's passenger service, urging an extra train leaving Courtenay each day and establishment of a connecting link with Port Alberni.

Earlier this summer the committee was successful in getting CP's subsidiary, VIA Rail, to put on a second Dayliner following a dramatic increase in business on the line. The Dayliner operates in tandem with another car leaving Victoria each morning.

In other matters, a special three-day excursion rate has gone into effect. The rate allows a considerable price reduction for three-day trips beginning any day but Friday. The special fare for a return trip between Victoria and Courtenay is $10, compared with the regular $16.

A Canadian Transport Commission ruling permits the company to discontinue the passenger service Dec. 13, but a CP Rail spokesman said recently the company may decide to continue if the passenger traffic remains as high as it has been over the summer months.

OUTHOUSE CHAMP KNOWN SUNDAY

DUNCAN — The final championship to decide the fastest outhouse in the world will be held at Cowichan Bay Sunday.

Seagull Express, skippered by Grant McHardie, will be fighting it out with Gotta Go-O, skippered by Ron Rukus, in the final points race of the season between Cowichan Bay Outhouse Club's racing craft.

Last Sunday, when the outhouses raced at Maple Bay, Seagull Express captured first place for 10 points to tie with Gotta Go-O on season's points. Jiffy Biffy, skippered by John Waldin came second while Cheeks Edge, Ed Nelson, took third spot.

Pen and Parole Costs to Drop

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian corrections service will reduce costs by eliminating 100 jobs in 1979 and not going ahead with a plan to increase its staff by 300, public affairs administrator Claude Tessier said Tuesday.

The corrections service, which combines the federal penitentiary and parole services, is required to trim $45 million from its budget and 400 man-years from its staff plans for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1979, Tessier said in a telephone interview from Ottawa.

The corrections service is to lose a total of $70 million during the next 19 months. The reduction is part of a $2-billion cut in federal government spending proposed earlier this month by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Tessier said resignations and retirements will take care of a major part of the staff reduction. Term employees will go before full-time workers, he said.

Tessier said there is a freeze on hiring while the staff reduction plan is examined and that a study group has been formed to make proposals. It must report to the federal treasury board by next week.

Correction officials have said most of the budget cut can be achieved by delaying construction projects.

Tessier said projects close to completion will proceed.

He cited a new maximum-security prison in Edmonton, scheduled to open Sept. 6; a corrections community college centre in Calgary, which opens Sept. 7; a new parole service office in Lethbridge, Alta; and Kent Institution in Agassiz, B.C., which opens in early November and will take 180 prisoners from the old British Columbia penitentiary.

He said the newer sections of the old penitentiary may be used as a reception centre for a drug-treatment program or to house prisoners who must be protected from other prisoners.

Tessier said the service could reduce costs by giving parole officers larger case loads and by adding cells to existing prisons instead of building new prisons.

Fleet School Trafficker Sentenced

A four month sentence in Edmonton's military prison was handed Pte. John Edward Walker, 20, when he was convicted in a court martial Tuesday of two counts of trafficking in marijuana.

Walker, of the CFB Esquimalt fleet school, had been charged with five counts of trafficking, but he was found not guilty on one, another charge was dropped on a technicality and a third was dropped for lack of evidence.

Appearing on drug-related charges in a court martial starting today is Pte. Patrick David Cohoe, 19, also of the fleet school.

Battered Wives Trying To Maintain Marriages

TORONTO (CP) — Battered wives, some afraid to be alone and others fearful of not being dutiful, have a desperate desire to maintain their marriages, despite the consequences.

In a study presented Tuesday to a convention of the American Psychological Association, battered wives were shown as women who believe they are fulfilling the duties of a good wife.

The study, for the family clinic of the Texas Research Institute of Mental Sciences in Houston, involved 63 women. Thirty-three reported incidents of conjugal violence within the preceding 18 months.

The beaten wives had less education, smaller incomes and more children than the wives who were not beaten, the study said.

"Twelve per cent had been beaten severely during pregnancy. Six per cent had been beaten daily."

Injuries reported included broken jaws and noses, cracked ribs, a fractured skull and loss of consciousness from choking.

Many women blamed themselves for the incidents. They knew they should not stay in the relationship but a protective attitude toward their husbands prevented them from discussing the violence freely.

Only nine per cent said either they or their husbands abused their children but many wives said their children had seen their husbands' attacks.

Another group among the 1,500 delegates to the week-long convention were told that women with traditional female jobs, such as secretaries, do not find their work as dull as women's groups say they do.

A report from the University of Southern California and Texas A and M University said women who ventured beyond the traditional job fields were more afraid of success and more pessimistic about a women's promotion possibilities.

WORKING WIVES HITTING BOTTLE?

TORONTO (UPI) — Working wives apparently run an increased risk of becoming alcoholics, a new study of U.S. women reports.

The study says it is too early to tell whether the problem is a permanent one, caused by women copying the heavier drinking of male co-workers, or whether it is temporary and due to the stress of wives learning to cope with non-traditional working roles.

Compared to either single working women or full-time housewives, the study says, married women who go to work are likely to drink more heavily and have more problems with alcohol. The problem is worst, it says, among middle- and upper-class women.

Paula Johnson of the University of California at Los Angeles and the Rand Corp., reporting on the study at the American Psychological Association annual convention Tuesday, said married men show no similar link between working and problem drinking.

New Drug Not Addictive?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The makers of a newly-approved, non-narcotic pain-killer say their drug can relieve severe pain without subjecting the patient to the risks of addiction.

The drug, Stadol, is made by Bristol Laboratories and won marketing approval last week from the U.S.Food and Drug Administration.

The Bristol-Myers Co., parent of Bristol Laboratories, said Tuesday stadol can be used as a replacement drug for such highly addictive pain-killers as morphine and demerol, which are both narcotic.

Stadol is a brand name for butorphanol tartrate and will be prescribed in injectable form for moderate-to-severe pain in cancer patients, those recovering from surgery and other chronic pain sufferers.

BLOOD CELLS TESTED IN CANCER TREATMENT

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Cancer Society will clinically test a substance made from human blood cells to determine its value in treating advanced cancer.

The substance, leukocyte interferon, has reduced the size of tumors in animal experiments and in a few scattered applications with human cancer patients, the society said Tuesday.

Most clinical testing with interferon on cancer has been done in Sweden. At the Karolinska Institute in Stockholm, researchers have reported promising results in the treatment of children and young adults with osteogenic sarcoma, a bone cancer, after the use of high doses of the substance.

In the United States, 15 breast cancer patients have been treated with interferon at M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Clinic in Houston and six patients with lymph-tissue cancer have been treated at Stanford University Medical Centre in Palo Alto, Calif.

"Early indications suggest that interferon may have the capacity to bring about objective tumor reduction," the cancer society said.

A TASTE-TICKLER FROM DOWN UNDER

As most cooks can attest, a unique and innovative dessert idea can be as well-received by family and guests as an eight-course meal. Guaranteed to be both unique and innovative is the Cheesy Kiwi Parfiat.

Layers of cookie crumbs and a cream cheese mixture are combined with slices of emerald-green kiwifruit to produce a light, colorful taste-tickler.

Cursed on the one hand by a fuzzy-brown exterior, the kiwifruit is blessed on the other by an ambrosia-like taste. In addition, the kiwifruit contains more than the recommended daily allowance of Vitamin C, comparable to a small- to medium-sized orange. The bonus is that kiwifruit is low in calories, with only about 50 to 60 calories per medium-sized fruit.

According to growers in California, kiwifruit is becoming known as the "fruit with a future," as production in New Zealand and California increases annually. It's available the year 'round — from New Zealand in the summer and fall and from California during the winter and spring.

One amazing characteristic of the kiwifruit is that it has a shelf life rivalled only by apples; unripe fruit can be stored in a plastic bag in the refrigerator for several months. Even ripe fruit will stay fresh this way or two or three weeks.

CHEESY KIWI PARFAIT

3 eggs, separated
1 8-oz. package cream cheese
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
2 cups vanilla wafer crumbs
4 ripe kiwifruit, peeled and sliced

In glass bowl, beat egg whites until they form stiff peaks. In separate bowl, mix egg yolks, cream cheese, sugar, salt and vanilla.

Fold egg whites into cream cheese mixture, and slowly blend in whipped cream.

Layer parfait glasses with cookie crumbs, cheese mixture and slices of kiwifruit. Repeat layers, ending at top with cheese mixture.

Garnish with kiwifruit.

Chill for 2 hours before serving.

Helpful Hints with Yogurt

By RUTH FREMES

eating right

Dear Ruth and Zak:

I noted with interest your article on homemade yogurt as I have been making my own yogurt for quite some time. You said that some readers report no success. Here are some diagnostics they might think about (some of these points were raised in your article but bear repeating.)

—Is the milk too warm when the starter is added? It should not be more than 45°C, or the starter will be killed.

—Are you pasteurizing the milk before incubation? The milk should be heated to 80°C or more (a double-boiler is best for easy clean-up), and allowed to cool to the proper temperature before adding starter.

—Pasteurizing is important, as the 40°C incubation temperature of the yogurt is also a good incubation temperature for other organisms. These may spoil the yogurt during incubation or storage.

—Is the starter old? Starter may be stored up to 5 days before using. After it is 5 days old, the chance of getting a good batch from it decreases rapidly. This is true even if the yogurt is still perfectly good for eating. If you like to make yogurt, but do so once a week or less, get dry starter and use it each time.

—Did you stir well? If not stirred long enough, the yogurt will thicken towards the bottom of the container, but be liquid near the top.

—Is the container clean? Impurities may affect the growth of the culture.

—Was the yogurt disturbed? It should be left strictly alone during incubation. No peeking allowed. I make mine at night while everyone is asleep.

I use a commercial incubator to get a constant incubation temperature and to control the incubation time precisely. Longer incubation results in tarter yogurt. My gadget makes the yogurt in individual cups, which are all ready to carry with a lunch.

The economics of the situation are pleasant enough, as one quart of yogurt costs $1 more than a quart of milk (approximately), and since I make an average of two quarts a week, the yogurt maker has paid for itself almost three times over in the year and a half I have had it.

I use a candy thermometer to measure all temperatures referred to above. This results in fewer spoiled batches.

Yogurt made in unheated, insulated containers should be started at 45°C. It is also a good idea to put the yogurt in a warm place, for example on top of the refrigerator, near the back where the warm air from the compressor rises. This will keep the container from losing heat so fast. The temperature of the warm place chosen should not exceed 49°C.

Some of your readers may have noticed a clear liquid on top of the yogurt. This is called whey. It does not affect the taste of the yogurt and may be stirred in or discarded. Whey is more prevalent on skim yogurt, and the addition of powdered milk to the starting milk helps to prevent its forming.

Readers who sweeten their yogurt with sugar or fruit should note that the yogurt should be refrigerated for three hours before any sweetener is added. If this is not done, the yogurt will take on a beer-like smell.

Choice of starter should be made according to taste, as yogurt cultures vary from brand to brand. But choose a plain yogurt with no gelatin. Yogurt made with gelatin is not suitable for starting homemade yogurt.

To those planning to buy a yogurt maker, the automatic timer is a must. It has been indispensible to me, and well worth the extra cost over the non-automatic model.

Please pass these tips on to your readers, so that those who were unsuccessful at creating this delight may change their luck, and those who may have shied away at first may find the courage to try their hand at making yogurt for the first time.—L.T., Toronto.

Dear L.T.:

Many thanks for your helpful hints. Your use of an automatically-timed yogurt maker should make it easier, and as you say, it is worth the price if you are a habitual consumer of yogurt. The use of a vacuum thermos jar, as we suggested in our recipe, will require careful manipulation of time and temperature.

Thank you for sharing your experience with us and with our readers.

Dear Ruth and Zak:

Thank you for the recipe for yogurt which I made successfully.

Tell me, other than being a means of getting milk into your diet, does yogurt have any other nutritional value? My husband and I don't especially like the flavor of yogurt and have no problem in drinking at least two cups of milk a day (skim), which I think is the minimum even a senior citizen should have. Am I correct?

Would it be possible to fold in a well-drained fruit into the yogurt as you put it to set in the fridge, or would that prevent the gelling?—C.G.F., Gimli, Man.

Dear C.G.F.:

You are correct that the nutritional value of yogurt is so similar to that of milk that you could have either or both, depending on your taste. You are very wise to include a minimum of two glasses of milk in your diet every day. This should go a long way towards balancing the nutrients in your diet. You are wiser still to make the milk you drink skim. Cutting down on fat, especially saturated fat, could only help most adults control their blood cholesterol. Since fat is a source of calories, drinking skim milk could help you control your caloric intake and keep you trim, if you need it.

It is advisable to allow the yogurt to set in the refrigerator for several hours, before you fold in the fruits. There is no reason why you wouldn't mix in the fruit just before you eat the yogurt. Use fresh fruit, or well-drained canned fruits, as you suggested in your letter.

Dear Ruth and Zak:

This is a rather lengthy note and I realize space is at a premium but would appreciate your comments on some of my questions.

I work in a large office where several of my fellow workers are very food conscious. We all read your columns faithfully and discuss them over coffee. I am constantly being told I am too thin and do not consume enough calories.

I am a 52-year-old female, 5'5'', medium frame and weigh 106 lbs. I do considerable walking on my job although I do sit part of the day. I exercise for 15 minutes each evening. Each day I breakfast on one slice 100% whole wheat toast with corn oil margarine, tea with skim milk (Sundays I have fruit also).

Lunches I alternate with soup and crackers, and ½ pint of skim milk, or sandwich and milk or small salad, roll and skim milk.

Dinner (weekdays) alternate with fish, chicken or lean beef (¼ lb.) broiled with two or three green vegetables (frozen), one whole tomato or canned, one slice whole wheat bread, one serving canned or fresh fruit and tea. (Sundays as above with a baked or boiled potato with carrots or turnip).

Evening snacks—apple, banana or stewed prunes with slice whole wheat toast and tea.

Once to twice a week a serving of cheese and two or three times per week a danish pastry or such. I do not take any vitamins.

Do you consider my meals well balanced and may I have your opinion on the caloric intake and desirable weight.

Is it possible to consume too much fruit and roughage?—E.H., Toronto.

Dear E.H.:

Your weight is on the slim side. If you have weighed the same for many years and have been in good health, we suggest there is nothing to worry about.

Your diet appears to be well balanced, though relatively low in calories. You have good eating habits and certainly have room to eat more when you wish. Do not shy away from adding another slice of whole wheat toast or a bran muffin and another glass of skim milk to your regular diet.

As far as we can tell, you should eat adequate vitamins and minerals. You can get more by including a fruit at breakfast time regularly, rather than only on Sundays. We don't think you can consume too much fruit as long as they are fresh, drained-canned or unsweetened-frozen. You can also have all the roughage you can without having any digestive problems, as long as you get it from a variety of sources. You will find roughage in cereals, bread, fruits and vegetables as well as nuts, beans, peas and lentils.

COOL AS A . . . BEET?

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's pioneers constructed root cellars in or near their homes to store root vegetables for the winter and now the consultants at the food advisory division of Agriculture Canada have a more modern method so home gardeners can keep the fruits of their labors a little longer.

Root vegetables are often harvested late and can be stored under cool, moist conditions and retain their freshness throughout the winter months, the consultants say.

They include the root crops such as beets, carrots, parsnips and rutabagas as well as cabbage, celery and potatoes.

To ensure that the vegetables don't dry up and shrivel during the winter months, be sure to place them in perforated polyethylene bags.

Carrots will keep for four to five months if properly wrapped and stored at a temperature of zero degrees C. Rutabagas can be kept for six months; parsnips two to four months and beets, one to three months.

The consultants recommend that cabbages be trimmed before being put into perforated bags to help retain moisture and color. They are best stored in the dark and will keep fresh for three to four months.

The consultants suggest that celery be stored in the cellar. Lift the plants with roots intact and set them close together in boxes of moist soil.

ZUCCHINI GOOD RAW

Zucchini can be just as good raw as it is cooked. Use it to spruce up any green salad or top it off with yogurt. For a novel idea, chop it up finely and mix it in with bread batter Food consultants at Agriculture Canada have done all the preliminary work for you and developed this recipe for "Zucchini Bread". All you have to do is make and enjoy it.

ZUCCHINI BREAD

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
Dash cloves
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup oil
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup milk
1½ cups grated zucchini
½ cup raisins

Sift together dry ingredients. Combine oil, sugar, eggs and vanilla. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk to sugar mixture. Stir in zucchini and raisins. Turn into greased 9x5-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350-degrees F. until skewer inserted in centre of loaf comes out clean (65 to 75 minutes). Cool in pan 10 minutes; remove from pan. Makes 1 loaf.

ENGLISH MUFFINS

½ cup lukewarm water (first amount)
1 tsp. granulated sugar
¼ tsp. ginger
1 pkg. granular yeast
1 cup lukewarm water (second amount)
3 tbsp. granulated sugar
½ cup skim milk powder
About 3¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour (divided — see below)
1 egg
3 tbsp. melted butter
1½ tsp. salt.

Into a measuring cup measure the first ½ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon sugar and ginger. Stir. Sprinkle yeast over and let stand 10 minutes.

Into a large mixing bowl measure the 1 cup lukewarm water, 3 tablespoons granulated sugar, skim milk powder and ONE CUP of the FLOUR. Stir and beat to mix until smooth. Beat in yeast liquid. Now add egg, melted butter, salt and ONE and ONE-HALF cups FLOUR and beat until smooth.

Sprinkle kneading board with ¼ cup flour and turn this soft dough out on it. Sprinkle dough with another ¼ cup flour. Knead in flour — about 50 times. As dough becomes sticky sprinkle with a little more flour and continue kneading 150 times in all or until flour is worked in.

Return to greased bowl, oil top of dough, cover and let rise covered 3 hours at room temperature.

Flour kneading board all over with ¼ cup flour. Turn dough out on it, pat out, then GENTLY roll to 18x12" oblong. It is quite thin. Cut out with sharp 3½" round cutter and place on sheets of wax paper sprinkled evenly with corn meal. Let rise 2 hours. I had 18 cut out muffins.

Heat an ungreased griddle (or electric frying pan) to 350 deg. Fahr. (not as hot as for pancakes). Carefully lift risen muffins to griddle on egg lifter and bake 20 minutes turning each over at halftime when bottom is rich gold. Continue until all are baked.

NOTE: (1) If you have surplus muffins they may be freezewrapped and frozen; (2) To serve, split with two forks and serve with butter and jam or marmalade; (3) Split and toast.

SAVORY RICE

In a heavy pot melt 2 tablespoons margarine. Saute in it ⅔ cup raw long gain rice until gold then add 1 cup celery, 1 medium onion, chopped and ½ green pepper, chopped and stir over medium heat for 5 minutes.

Add 1 chopped canned pimiento, ½ teaspoon salt and 1⅓ cups hot water. Cover and cook over low heat for 30 minutes.

Pretzels Twist Taste Buds

By MIMI SHERATON

Among the most unforgettable gastronomic experiences I have ever had while travelling was my introduction to homemade pretzels.

As plebeian as that soft, yet crisp, salt-encrusted twist may have been, it shares top honors with memories of far more luxurious firsts, such as fresh foie gras, whole roasted truffles, ripe green figs picked from a tree on a sunny morning along the Adriatic and raspberries swathed in creme fraiche.

Basically, pretzels are a form of bread; their German name, brotzels, means, in fact, little breads.

The pretzel symbol dates back to pre-Christian times, when a dot within a circle stood for the earth and sun.

There's no doubt that home-madepretzels are delicious, and it's a far easier task than one might assume, considering how rarely it is performed.

PRETZELS

1 ounce powdered dried yeast
1 cup warm water
½ teaspoon sugar
2 teaspoon salt
About 4 cups flour, sifted
Butter
6 cups water
2 tablespoons bicarbonate soda
1 tablespoon carbonate of ammonia or cream of tartar (see note)
1 egg yolk beaten with 1 tablespoon milk
Kosher coarse salt for sprinkling
Caraway seeds for sprinkling (optional)
Egg wash (1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon cold water)

1. Dissolve yeast in one-third cup of warm water. Add sugar, cover loosely and set in a warm corner for about 15 minutes, or until yeast mixture becomes frothy.

2. Add yeast to warm mixing bowl along with remaining two-thirds cup of water and the salt. Gradually sift in the flour, stirring as you do so, until you have a stiff dough. If too much flour is added, and dough becomes crumbly, simply knead in a little more warm water.

3. Either using a dough hook of a mixing machine, or working with your hands on a floured wooden board, knead dough for about 10 minutes, or until it becomes smooth, elastic and begins to blister.

4. Butter the inside of a clean bowl, place dough in it and roll around the bowl until the dough is lightly coated with butter. Cover loosely with a towel and set in a warm corner. Let dough rise for about 40 minutes; it does not have to double in bulk but should be puffy and spongy.

5. Preheat over to 475 degrees. Butter a large cookie sheet.

6. Cut off about one-eighth of the dough and roll it into a long thin rope, working on a lightly floured board or rolling the dough between your hands. Roll outward toward the ends. The rope should be about 12 inches long and one-half inch in diameter. Twist into pretzel shape. If that size is too large (remember it will double in thickness during boiling and baking), shorten the rope and rewind. Take larger or small amounts of remaining dough to achieve the size pretzel you want. This amount of dough will make eight to 10 pretzels measuring six inches long and three inches wide.

7. When all pretzels are formed bring six cups of water to the boil in a Dutch oven of about two-and-half quart capacity; the pot should preferably be made of enameled cast iron. Add bicarbonate of soda and carbonate of ammonia or cream or tartar. Let water boil until powders dissolve.

8. Carefully drop two or three pretzels at a time into the boiling water. They will sink to the bottom and rise to the top when done — about two or three minutes per batch. Remove boiled pretzels from water with a slotted spoon, letting them drain for a second or two. Then place on cookie sheet.

9. When all pretzels are boiled and on the sheet, brush tops lightly with egg wash and sprinkle liberally with salt and caraway seeds if you use them. Pretzels should not touch on the sheet but they need be only a half-inch apart.

10. Bake for about 12 minutes, or until golden brown. Break one pretzel to see if inside is done. Let finished pretzels cool for a minute or two, then remove from pan with a metal spatula and cool on a rack.

11. Pretzels do not keep very long and are best eaten within a few hours after being baked. However, if you want to keep them overnight, place thoroughly cooled pretzels in a dry, airtight container. They can be freshened in the oven, but dampness will melt the salt.

12. You can make pretzels of any size or thickness, and if you prefer them crisp, follow the above recipe exactly, omitting only the boiling process.

Yield: 8 to 10 pretzels.

Note: Carbonate of ammonia is the substance usually called for in pretzel recipes, but it is difficult to find in local drugstores. It is an acid, which, when combined with bicarbonate of soda (an alkali) effervesces in the boiling water and acts as a leavening. I have found that cream of tartar (tartaric acid) performs just about as well.

V Is for Variety in Serving Veggies

hilda beastall

Vegetables are coming freely from gardens and allotments to those who have been willing and able to give them the necessary attention.

It but remains for the cook to think of interesting ways to serve them.

First think of raw salads of one or two kinds; then of mixed salads of three or more in smaller quantities.

When arranging on either individual plates or on a large serving platter, put the mixture in a mound in the centre, using one other vegetable in slices as a decorative border.

When not a mixture, place the different kinds whole if small, or in slices overlappng in separate groups. This may seem a small detail, but appetite appeal is a great advantage with salads, and appetite is undoubtedly stimulated by color and arrangement of food.

I find that homemade yogurt is the most acceptable type of dressing to everyone, especially if it is not known to be used. Those who like it of course prefer it to mayonnaise, and those who think they don't like it have usually never tasted the homemade kind.

Made as a low-fat yogurt with no flavoring, this type takes kindly to light seasoning such as a few chopped chives, a pinch of sweet basil, dill, lemon juice or a dash of paprika.

For a fine robust flavor for some occasions, yogurt put into a bowl previously wiped around with a freshly cut clove of garlic will pick up just the right amount of flavoring.

With summer-fresh vegetables it is surprising how seldom salt is requested, or a sweetened dressing. This is no doubt due to the natural sugars and salts coming through as part of the good flavor in each kind of vegetable.

I have been asked why high class chefs specify salad greens to be "torn into bite-size pieces" in preference to cutting.

The underlying reason is that every knife-cut in green leaves lessens the food value by loss of vitamins and thus lessens flavor, and also cut edges will turn slightly brown.

Although vitamins were not known by name until the year 1912, French people in general were great vegetable eaters of both the raw and cooked products. They were responsible for the introduction of the salad habit into Britain.

My way of getting around the hazards of nutrient loss is first to shred or cut finely only when necessary, and when it is necessary, to toss the cut greens into a dish containing yogurt and lemon juice. Mix lightly as each spoonful is added so that all cut surfaces are quickly coated to prevent further losses. Oil does the same service and is preferred by many as a dressing.

Lemon juice alone will do the job, but too much juice alone may mask the flavors of other salad ingredients. The yogurt (home-made) has a delicate bland taste which does not interfere with food flavor.

Young children usually like to eat raw carrots, new small green peas fresh from the pods (and the whole edible podded type), the small size green or golden-yellow bean pods, three-inch size zucchini squash, and cauliflower sections.

With these provide an individual custard cup of yogurt for dipping the pieces. When it comes to the peas, just put them in the yogurt and let the child spoon them out.

Started early enough in life, a child continues this normal pleasure in eating raw vegetables. Only those brought up on processed foods find the raw kinds at first objectionable.

For variety we must think of ways to serve cooked vegetables.

The French have been master of the art, passing ideas over for our enjoyment. Green peas, cooked with torn outer green leaves of lettuce freshly washed and with no additional water will gain a freshness of flavor that is surprising, and the lettuce makes a second delicately flavored vegetable.

Curly endive leaves and celtuce leaves can be used in the same way for these do not change the flavor of fresh green peas, in fact they add something of their own that is lacking in plain cooking water.

The vitamin content of the leaves is in the concentrated juice. A small knob of soft margarine added before serving has just the right amount of salt and makes just enough sauce for the vegetables.

With French beans or Bush beans, before the family tires of them plain steamed, try a dish that is also said to be French in origin. Cook for 10 minutes as usual in a minimum of boiling water, drain thoroughly (keep the juice to use later) then cook in a little margarine until lightly browned. Serve with small mushrooms lightly browned in the same frypan and a mound of diced hardboiled egg and Cheddar cheese.

For corner-filling, have a plate of warmed wholewheat buns. At this season a plate of halved or whole peeled ripe tomatoes are never out of place on the meal table as fillers.

Wanting a change in serving young zucchini squash in the four to five-inch size?

These are usually about an inch in diameter. Slice lengthwise into two pieces Steam cook for five minutes in boiling water. Remove from pan and cool a little while two tablespoons of soft margarine heats in a large frypan or skillet.

Beat one egg in a wide soup plate, and have fine wholewheat breadcrumbs and wheat germ in another soup plate. Dip each piece of zucchini carefully in beaten egg and then into crumbs. Fry gently each side until browned, turning with a spatula.

Drain vegetable water into the frypan from new potatoes that are cooking, and from green peas, beans, beets or other vegetables.

Stir and mix until bubbling and thicking, it makes a lovely gravy without any further seasoning. Pour over the potatoes, squash and other vegetables.

And if the cucumbers are producing more than can be used, there is no reason why they too should not be cooked for a change.

Treat the cucumber in a similar way to the zucchini squash above. The cucumber in a similar way to the zucchini squash above. The cucumber should still be young enough to have a tender skin and not be strong and bitter to the taste.

Chop a very little chive stem into wholewheat bread crumbs and wheat germ. Peel cucumber if skin seems tough; slice into quarter-inch rounds, dip into beaten egg and crumbs. Fry in heated margarine until lightly brown on each side and tender.

Serve with thick slices of tomato on open-faced wholewheat buns, warmed or toasted.

The returns from eyen a small home garden plot of vegetables are so bountiful that each kind should be used freely in as many ways and combinations as your imagination can create.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm new in town. My feet were giving me a lot of trouble, so I looked in the yellow pages for a foot doctor. I knew some corns had to be removed, and one toe felt as if I had an ingrown toenail.

I selected a podiatrist who was located on the bus line and whose name I could pronounce. I phoned him and made an appointment.

When I got there, I showed him my feet and told him I didn't want him to DO anything until he gave me an estimate on how much he would charge to do what had to be done.

He got a disgusted look on his face and said, "Lady, I treat patients — I don't give estimates." Then he practically threw me out of his office.

Was I out of line to ask him for an estimate? If he charged more than I could afford to pay, I would have tried another doctor. Isn't that better than letting him do the work and then making him wait for his money?

OUT OF LINE, OR NOT?

DEAR OUT: When you booked the appointment, you should have asked how much the doctor charged for an office visit. No one should expect a free examination, which is what an "estimate" entails. All a professional person has to sell is his (or her) knowledge and time.

DEAR ABBY: I plan to announce my engagement soon, and my problem is this: My fiance's mother wants us to have a big wedding, and I don't want a big wedding.

My fiance's family is quite wealthy, and his mother says they will pay for everything. Abby, I don't want to accept this kind of gift from my future in-laws. Besides, aren't the bride's parents supposed to put on the wedding? Mine can afford only a simple little family affair, which is all I really want.

My fiance's mother already has a "tentative guest list" of 300. She says she "owes" so many people, and she has friends who will not invite HER to their children's weddings if she doesn't invite THEM to hers. (She already picked out the bridesmaids' dresses. How about that?)

Another thing. She told me she wanted me to have a baby right away because all her friends have grandchildren and she is way behind. Abby, I intend to teach school while my husband finishes law school, and we don't plan to have a baby "right away."

What should I do? My fiance is in the middle. He doesn't want to hurt his mother, but he doesn't want me to be unhappy either.

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: I think you are right in refusing to allow your future mother-in-law to use your wedding to repay her social obligations. Tell her as respectfully as you can that YOUR parents will put on the wedding. And make clear that you will have a family when YOU decide you want one.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were divorced several months ago. The divorce was on very friendly terms, and we see each other occasionally at social gatherings, etc. It is very awkward to introduce her as my "ex-wife."

Is there a less embarrassing way?

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Yes. Indroduce her by name only, and skip her marital history — unless somebody asks.

Needy Shun No-Name Food

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — University studies indicate that low-income families who might benefit from lower-priced no-name food products are the most reluctant to buy them.

Prof. Trevor Watts of the consumer studies department at University of Guelph says studies show that higher-income, better-educated persons are more willing to experiment with new products.

"These people have more confidence in their ability to assess the quality of a product," he said. "People who aren't as sure of themselves, quite often those who are less educated and less affluent, tend to feel more comfortable with nationally-known brands."

Prof. Watts predicted a slow increase in acceptance of no-name products, introduced in some Ontario stores last spring.

He said some shoppers may be reluctant to try a new concept while others may not want grocery-cart watchers to notice that their buying habits are determined by price.

Donald Tigert, a financial analyst with Burns Fry Ltd. of Toronto, said no-name products will account for less than five per cent of total grocery sales.

However, he said the concept is good because it gives the consumer an alternate, albeit inferior product.

"Personally, I've tried all the products and found the quality is noticeably less," he said in an interview.

He predicted that affluent shoppers will go back to higher-priced brand names after experimenting with no-name brands.

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:
Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle-	Criticism is hard to take right now, so guard against being over-sensitive.
6-10 Neutral Cycle-	You may be about to change direction, much to the surprise of your friends. Think it out.
11-15 Positive Cycle-	You catch a glimpse of what's really "over the rainbow". Wow!

Life goes on beyond the end of a vacation. If you're attacked by the "back to work blues" and your Bio-dex is low, take heart. Your friends at work will be glad to see you again, and your Bio-dex will improve soon. Maybe this is a good time to plan a winter vacation, or if you can't face the same old job, look around for a more interesting one.

WRONG JAIL

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — County Sheriff Rex Vance says the food at his jail is pretty tasty, but he thought a bill for $8,000 worth of prime rib was way out of line.

The bill, it turned out, was a mistake. It should have gone to a restaurant called "The Salt Lake City Jail".

"We do business with the same vendor," Vance explained Friday, "and apparently they just neglected to add the word 'restaurant' on the end of their title when they ordered the food and ordered as 'Salt Lake City Jail.'"

Vance said he went to lunch at the restaurant the day bill arrived and showed it to the owners.

Booksellers Ignore Recall

TORONTO (CP) — Copies of a book on baby nutrition, Let's Have Healthy Children by Adelle Davis, are on sale in some Toronto stores despite a recall by the publisher following a baby's death connected with advice in the book.

The voluntary recall by hard-cover and paperback publishers in Canada and the United States was issued after reports of the death last year of a Florida baby and the near death of a Waterloo, Ont., baby after their mothers put potassium chloride in formula.

The book recommends potassium chloride, a salt substitute available over the counter in drugstores, as a cure for colic in babies with low blood potassium. Ordinary table salt is sodium chloride.

Some booksellers are acting on the recall, while some are ignoring it and others say they have heard nothing about it.

No law exists in Canada to force the recall of books containing controversial and potentially harmful information, federal officials say.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, a deputy minister in the federal department of health and welfare, said advice on potassium chloride in the book is dangerous but that booksellers are not violating the Food and Drug Act by selling it.

"We have no regulatory control . . . if it's sold simply as a book for general reading and not tied to a specific product in a way that could be construed as advertising."

Dr. Morrison, who is also a nutritionist, said: "I know of no evidence at all that colic is treatable by the use of potassium chloride or that reputable pediatricians would treat a baby that way."

Dr. Grant Gall of the Hospital for Sick Children, where Christopher Brown of Waterloo was treated after being given the salt substitute at 5½ weeks, said that "any mother feeding a baby potassium chloride in the amounts mentioned in Adelle Davis's book could cause toxicity and death in an infant."

The controversial passage in the book refers to physicians giving babies with low blood potassium who suffer from colic 500 to 1,000 milligrams of the substance intravenously or 1,000 to 2,000 milligrams by mouth.

A U.S. wholesale supplier, Nutri Books of Denver, Colo., received a recall notice but will not withdraw the book.

In Toronto, Paul Gilmor, owner of Rolly's Health Food Co. Ltd., said he will continue to sell paperback copies of the book.

"Adelle Davis is a world authority. She's spent her lifetime helping people . . . you're talking about hundreds helped versus one infant who passed away."

Herbal Tonics: Be Careful

By JANE E. BRODY

● An elderly couple from Chehalis, Wash., had been to a health spa that recommended comfrey tea as an herbal remedy for their arthritis.

The wife picked what she thought was comfrey and prepared tea, which the couple drank with lunch. Within an hour they were overcome with nausea, vomiting and dizziness.

The husband discovered that what his wife had picked was not comfrey but a very similar-looking plant called foxglove, the source of the toxic heart drug digitalis.

By the time the ambulance arrived, his wife was dead and his own heart rhythm was so unstable that hospital treatment could not save him.

● Three young women with an interest in health foods bought senna tea as an herbal substitute for ordinary tea and coffee. They suffered such severe diarrhea after drinking just one or two cups that they required emergency medical treatment. They hadn't realized that senna tea, a strong laxative, is a common folk remedy for constitpation.

● A 30-year-old man who avoided alcohol, cigarettes, coffee and other psycho-active drugs began taking daily capsules of Gotu Kola after reading an ad describing the herbal preparation as a general tonic and a "brain food" helpful in treating mental and nervous disorders, memory problems and ulcers.

After three weeks he became chronically nervous and unable to sleep. The preparation was found to consist of ground kola nuts, containing pharmacological doses of caffeine.

Herbal preparations, used for 5,000 years as medicines and tonics and still the mainstay of folk remedies throughout the world, are enjoying a surging revival.

Many people, disillusioned with or distrustful of modern medicine, have turned to them in an attempt to cure whatever ails them or to "preserve" their health.

Others, concerned about the possibly harmful effects of coffee and ordinary tea, have switched to supposedly healthier or safer herbal teas, dozens of which are now widely sold in health food and other stores.

These amateur "naturopaths," unaware that herbal teas may contain any number of potent chemicals that can disrupt the normal functions of body and mind, are often unprepared for the consequences of their innocent foray into the plant kingdom.

While such dramatically ill effects as those described above are not very common, increasing numbers of cases of herbal toxicity have come to the attention of health professionals in recent years.

Those cases that are recognized medically are believed to represent the tip of the iceberg.

Some chemicals in herbal teas can cause such abnormal effects as increased blood pressure or lowered blood sugar. Tannin-rich teas, which include a number of herb teas, have developed cancer of the esophagus.

Although they are sold as foods and thus not subject to federal drug regulations, "herbal teas are drugs, not foods," says Dr. Ara Der Marderosian, professor of pharmacognosy at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science.

"They are," he said, "crude complexes containing many impurities and active components with a variety of possible undesirable effects. Some are actually too dangerous to be used at all."

Some people think that if something is good for you, more is better, and as a result they may consume enough of the active herbal ingredients to produce a toxic effect.

Among them are mistletoe, a "calmative" that contains toxic proteins that can produce anemia and hemorrhage in the liver and intestines; shave grass (horsetail or equisetum, a diuretic and dyspepsia agent), which has toxins that can produce severe neurological reactions, and sassafras tea (made from sassafras root bark), which contains safrole, an established case of cancer and a potent inhibitor of certain liver enzymes.

Doctors Deserve A Full Apology

My uncle had a prostate operation. He was found to be cancerous. After this he was told it was important to have his testicles removed. This all sounds like a lot of hogwash and I wonder if he is in the best of hands. — Mr. N. W.

Dear Mr. W.:

Forgive me for being harsh on you. What you consider hogwash must not be confused by your own ignorance about a very complex medical and surgical problem. It is so easy for you within the framework of your lack of knowledge to condemn the doctors who are so adequately taking care of your uncle. I hope that you have not insinuated your thoughts into the thinking process of your family. This would only serve to add burdens to those that already exist.

As a matter of fact, in specific cases the removal of the testicles can often be a lifesaving procedure. If, for example, the entire cancer of the prostate could not be removed by operation, or if there are extensions of the cancer, the removal of the testicles can be a lifesaving procedure. Unfortunately, after the testicles are removed impotence follows. This is a hard price to pay, but the continuation of life has priorities.

The removal of the testicles (orchiectomy) usually is followed by the use of extrogens (female sex hormones). You can be sure that your uncle is in the hands of excellent surgeons without whose judgement his life and his longevity might have been compromised. Even if only in your thoughts, the doctors deserve your apology.

My neighbor has 19 cats. Now it seems that there is an epidemic of leukemia among them. Can this endanger the lives of the family? I am told that leukemia in cats is not transferred to humans. To me, a germ is a germ and will grow wherever it finds fertile soil. Shouldn't the board of health do something about this problem? — No Name.

Dear X:

Let me assure you immediately that leukemia is not transmitted from animals to man. There seems to be no scientific proof of this relationship.

Some forms of leukemia in chickens and mice may be due to a virus. There are a great many forms of leukemia in man. The exact cause of many of them is unknown. Yet strides have been made in the control of many cases of leukemia that previously might not have survived.

So much for the disease.

Now about the social implications of having 19 cats. As one who owns a cat, I can only sympathize with the chores involved in taking care of 19. Obviously this is done by choice and it is the responsibility of the owner to be sure that this "home kennel" does not present a health hazard to neighbors. I don't know what the regulations are in your own city, but I am certain that your local board of health will gladly co-operate with you if you feel your health is endangered.

"Why does 'quarter to' mean FIFTEEN minutes? I thought a quarter was TWENTY-FIVE cents."

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Had today's deal been played in a non-expert game, I am reasonably sure that South would have incurred a doubled four-trick set at his vulnerable game contract, for a loss of 1,100 points. But when the deal arose in a top-level game, South fulfilled his contract.

Both sides vulnerable.
West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♠	2♡	Pass	2NT
Pass	3♡	Dble.	3NT
Dble.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Actually, South's play might leave the reader incredulous. He captured the opening spade lead with his ace, and laid down the jack of diamonds. West thought for a few moments, and then allowed the jack to win. Declarer next cashed the ace and king of diamonds, felling West's queen — and scurried home with his contract: one spade, two hearts and six diamonds. As is evident, had West taken his diamond queen at trick two, the defenders could have cashed five spade tricks, two clubs and one diamond.

From West's point of view, when South captured the opening spade lead, West felt that South might have started with four spades headed by the A-10. And if West took his diamond queen, and then cashed the queen and jack of spades, he would establish the ten-spot as a second spade winner for South. So West elected to play low on the jack of diamonds lead, hoping that his partner could win the trick.

From South's point of view, he was reasonably certain that West, for his double, rated to have stoppers in both minor suits. After all, West didn't otherwise figure to double when South — on the bidding — might well have had the spade suit doubly protected (A-10-x-x). And if South's premises were correct, then it would be wrong to enter dummy via the heart ace, cash the heart king, and then lead the board's singleton diamond and finesse his jack.

Had he adopted the latter line of play, he would have been slaghtered, since the defenders would then have had it in their power to take five spade tricks, one diamond, three hearts and two clubs, for a total of 11 tricks. Declarer, in this case, would have been set seven tricks, for a loss of 2,000 points.

Ex-Quebecer's Plea Confuses Local Court

A former Quebec resident now living in Langford told Judge Blake Allan in Victoria provincial court Tuesday that English-speaking Canadians cannot receive justice in a Quebec court.

Norman Pincombe, 23, of 2707 Winster, was trying to have a 1975 Quebec charge of robbery with violence waived to Victoria for a guilty plea rather than return to Quebec to face a trial.

Pincombe's bombshell came when his lawyer, Patrick Sweeney of Victoria, asked why he entered a guilty plea to the charge.

Pincombe answered that there was a "good chance of being found guilty being English in a French court."

He stated further that he had no desire to return to the province of Quebec and twice admitted it was "not nice to say there is prejudice in this country . . . but there is prejudice."

The case involves a holdup at the home of a doctor in Waterloo, Quebec, 54 miles from Greenfield Park where Pincombe lived in 1975.

According to a report of the incident read by Crown counsel Richard Anthony, the victim was watching television at home on the evening of Nov. 3, 1975, when two men came to the back door and one asked for the doctor's youngest son, who wasn't home. A few minutes later, two men rushed at him from the front door, struck him in the head and took his wallet, which contained between $300 and $500.

Pincombe told Quebec police and also testified before Allan on Monday that two men known to him stopped him about a half a block from his home, hit him on the back of the head and forced him into their car. Pincombe said the two men asked him for $200 which he didn't have. They then asked Pincombe if he could borrow it from a friend and Pincombe said he knew someone — the doctor's youngest son — in Waterloo.

Pincombe said they picked up one of his abductor's girlfriends and drove to Waterloo, where one of the men and Pincombe entered the back door to the doctor's home.

They then returned to the car and a further discussion was held before the two men left Pincombe and the girl in the car with a warning that Pincombe stay in the vehicle "if he knew what was healthy for him."

Pincombe was picked up by police in Quebec two days later and jailed for eight days, Sweeney told the court.

No formal charges were laid at that time and Pincombe was released after the doctor told police charges shouldn't be laid against Pincombe, Sweeney continued. The doctor's family and the Pincombe family had been friends for about 15 years and that friendship continued following the incident, Sweeney added.

In June of 1976, the Pincombe family moved to Victoria and nothing more was heard about the case.

On May 5, 1978, Pincombe accompanied a friend charged with a motor vehicle offence to the Saanich police station and it was then Pincombe was informed there was a nation-wide warrant for his arrest. Pincombe turned himself in and was kept overnight at Wilkinson Road jail, Sweeney said.

Complicating the case further was the fact that the doctor died this January and is not able to testify in the case.

Sweeney argued that Pincombe was victimized by the two men but said the full extent of Pincombe's involvement was that he didn't leave the scene of the crime when he was able to do so, describing his client's involvement as marginal.

Allan, who stated Monday that the facts supported a three-year penitentiary term, balked Tuesday at accepting the guilty plea.

"Mr. Anthony," Allan said turning to the Crown counsel, "This is not an admission of the offence, this is a denial of the offence."

Anthony agreed and said the only recourse was for Allan to refuse to accept the plea.

Sweeney again stated that his client admitted marginal involvement.

"He wants to plead guilty here in hopes of getting a light sentence instead of getting a longer sentence in Quebec," Allan insisted.

"Even if all this is true," Allan continued, "He still says he had no idea an offence occurrred. He suspected they did something."

Allan called the fact Sweeney was trying to convince the court his client was guilty a "strange paradox."

"There's nothing here on which I can convict this man other than what he says."

All sides then agreed to adjourn the case until Sept. 19 so that more information can be obtained and Allan is expected to decide then whether to accept the plea or to return the case to Quebec.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 31-year-old man had to be subdued by three deputy sheriffs in a Victoria provincial court Tuesday afternoon before he was dragged away to jail.

Ronald Charles Woods was to face a trial starting at 2 p.m. on a charge of possession of stolen property under $200.

However, Woods failed to appear before Judge William Ostler and crown counsel Wayne Smith requested a warrant for Woods' arrest for failure to appear for trial. Ostler granted the request and defence lawyer Robert Salmond, who had also expected Woods to appear, withdrew from the case.

At 2:40 p.m., Woods arrived and demanded the trial go ahead. Smith refused to comply with the request and Woods began shouting.

A deputy sheriff stationed himself at the doorway after summoning more help. Just as two more sheriff officers arrived, a melee began and Woods had to be restrained by the three uniformed sheriffs.

Woods, whom one observer said seemed to be "high" on something, then lay down and had to be dragged from the courtroom.

"I'm sick and tired of this abuse of police officers," Judge Blake Allan said in Victoria provincial court Tuesday before handing out a 30-day jail term to a 21-year-old.

Kevin Mitchell McLay, address not known, pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting a police officer Aug. 24.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang said Victoria city police had been called to the 700-block Wilson at about 3 a.m. that date after reports of a street fight.

When police arrived, Lang stated, they saw someone breaking glass at 704 Wilson and arrested the man.

Lang said McLay came up behind one of the arresting officer and kicked him in the arm. A struggle ensued in which several more kicks were directed at police.

Lang said that the street disturbance resulted from a party at 712 Wilson.

McLay had previous convictions for trafficking in narcotics, possession of narcotics and carrying a concealed weapon, the last one on Jan. 5, 1976, when he was fined $50.

"I was really drunk," McLay told the court. He said there had been quite a brawl outside before police arrived and that he didn't recall anything that happened.

Keep Mining Road Open, Chabot Told

The Omineca mining road has been successful in stimulating exploration and in the development of several mineral deposits with production potential and should be maintained, says a brief to Mines Minister Jim Chabot.

The brief, prepared by ministry staff, said further expenditures should be directed at maintaining the road at a standard useful for light industrial purposes and at reducing the environmentally sensitive characteristics of the road.

The B.C. Wildlife Federation had asked Chabot to halt work on the road it says "is going nowhere to nothing" with disastrous effect on wildlife habitat.

The road, originally completed in 1939 and extended in the 1960s to provide assistance to mining companies, now runs 500 kilometres north of Fort St.James to Moose Valley in central B.C.

The ministry brief states that in extending the road officials have been aware of the fish and wildlife values in the area and have worked "to adopt construction methods which will reduce the disturbance of streams and vegetation."

"In the 1976 summer season, the ministry paid for an auxiliary conservation officer to be stationed at Germansen Landing during the hunting season," the brief said. "There has been a restriction placed on the use of guns in mining exploration camps and on the use of off-highway vehicles."

CABLE FEE INCREASES AUTHORIZED

A $10 hike in installation fees and a $1-a-month increase in monthly rental has been approved for L. and C. Cablevision Ltd. subscribers in the Ladysmith—Chemainus area.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission also has approved the addition of an antenna site and radio service to include four Seattle and one Edmonds, Wash., station as well as five Vancouver, one New Westminster and one Victoria station.

Mair Sticking to Guns On Movie Intimidation

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Tuesday he will not withdraw his accusation that Vancouver Crown prosecutor Richard Israels acted in a reprehensible manner in dealing with a controversial Japanese film.

Mair said Israels had intimidated the Varsity Theatre and Odeon Theatres by threatening court action if the film, In the Realm of the Senses, was shown a second time.

Senior Crown prosecutor Bruce Donald criticized Mair for his remarks, and in a letter to Attorney-General Garde Gardom said he sanctioned the threat to take legal action.

He also stated that Gardom, in a meeting with him last week, approved the action.

Mair said he met with Gardom Tuesday and the attorney-general passed on Donald's complaint.

Mair, who is responsible for film classification, told Gardom, however, that he does not intend to take back one word.

He said the theatre should have been charged if it was breaking the law. If not, he said, it should have been left alone and threats should not have been used.

The minister said that if police and the prosecutors feel a movie, passed by the B.C. film censor, is obscene they still have the option of prosecuting under the Criminal Code of Canada.

"However, you either prosecute for the crime you allege has been committed or you keep your mouth shut," he said.

Bailed B.C. 'Baron' Huddles at Embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Vancouver resident sought on West German fraud charges met here Tuesday with Canadian embassy officials, an embassy spokesman said.

The spokesman, who declined to be identified, said Herman von Pfetten was here while free on $100,000 bail pending a hearing Sept. 7 in Denver for extradition to West Germany from the U.S.

The embassy spokesman said Pfetten was arrested Aug. 10 in Denver on charges of defrauding German nationals from 1964 to 1967. Pfetten became a naturalized Canadian in 1972, the spokesman said, and the German warrant for his arrest was issued in 1974.

He said he did not know where Pfetten was staying while in Washington.

Pfetten, 46, is described as a wealthy investment broker who lives in Vancouver. In Denver, he identified himself as a baron.

The Denver arrest warrant was issued by a U.S. District Court on the basis of a complaint filed by the U.S. attorney's office. Canada does not have an extradition treaty with West Germany covering the charges involved, but the U.S. does.

CAMPFIRE BANS ALL LIFTED

The B.C. Forest Service said Tuesday it has lifted the last of the campfire bans imposed throughout the province during the recent forest fire emergency.

The ban, which covered the Penticton and Ellis Creek watersheds from which the City of Penticton draws its water supply, was lifted at midnight Monday.

"Campfires are now allowed in all forest regions," Russ Campbell, provincial forest fire prevention officer said.

"However, the danger of fire in the forests is always with us and the slightest spark from a match, cigarette or campfire can start a blaze."

He said there were 2,187 forest fires in B.C. so far this year compared to 1,722 for the same period last year.

CN-CP Rates Rising?

Interventions opposing increased telegraph rates between Canada and the U.S. are invited by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission.

Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways are proposing rates ranging from 8 to 132 per cent higher for telegram and associated services of CNCP Telecommunications in an arrangement reached with Western Union Telegraph Co.

In addition, the proposal would reduce the word content of a night letter from 100 to 50.

Next year the two operations would receive additional revenue of $217,600 and $152,000, respectively. They said the increases are within anti-inflation guidelines and would have minimal effect on their corporate rates of return.

The application may be examined at the CRTC in Hull, Que., Montreal or Vancouver; at any CNCP Telecommunications business office; at CNT in Toronto or CPT in Montreal. Comment should be addressed to CRTC secretary-general, Ottawa K1A 0N2, before Sept. 15, with copies to CNT and CPT.

Ottawa Agrees To Land Deal

RICHMOND (CP) — The federal government has agreed to assist the province in purchasing a wildlife habitat adjacent to this Vancouver-area municipality, Jim Nielsen, British Columbia environment minister, announced today.

The federal-provincial agreement covers an estimated 500 acres of intertidal lands which are a major staging area for migratory waterfowl and shore birds and a critical habitat for juvenile salmon and other species of fish.

Nielsen said he has been encouraging Ottawa to join with the province to save the privately-owned Sturgeon Banks area for the benefit of wildlife research and conservation.

Federal Environment Minister Len Marchand said in a news release the area was in danger of being developed for urban and industrial use.

"Negotiations with the landowners concerned are expected to resume and I am confident of an early settlement for the area," he said.

'Unsafe' Chamber Off Mark

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health Minister Bob McClelland's statement that the hyperbaric chamber at Vancouver General Hospital was closed because it was unsafe is not accurate, technician Rick Russell said Tuesday.

Russell, who was involved in the construction of a similar unit at Esquimalt, was brought here to put the hospital's unit back into operation.

The dispute over the unit was touched off last weekend when Dr. William Trapp, who has treated patients in the chamber since its installation in 1965, said there were at least two unnecessary deaths before the hospital board and the provincial government were convinced to re-open the unit.

He said it was closed last November because of a lack of funds.

McClelland, said however, that the chamber was closed because it was unsafe, and that the government later made funds available.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Burnaby man with a history of epileptic seizures drowned July 7 after being left alone in a Vancouver General Hospital (VGH) bathtub for an hour, a coroner's jury heard Tuesday.

The inquest told that when staff began searching for Danny Melvin Barnes, 26, they were unable to enter the bathroom for 10 minutes because a key failed to open the lock. A security officer had to force entry.

Nurse Carolyn Lay, on duty the day of the death, said that because Barnes was about to be discharged and his seizures apparently were under control, she would not have felt it necessary for Barnes to have supervision.

The man's family physician, Dr. Peter Heindrick agreed. He said Barnes suffered from severe epilepsy but he could not see any reason why Barnes could not take a bath by himself.

VGH nurses and doctors testified under the protection of the Canada and B.C. evidence acts which prevent use of their testimony against them at any future court hearing.

Dr. Rodney Brammall, who conducted an autopsy, said Barnes died from drowning. Barnes was found with a white froth about his mouth and a large bruise on his head, although Dr. Brammell said the injury was not insufficient to have rendered Barnes unconscious.

Brammall said he believes Barnes either slipped in the bath, hit his head, and slipped under the water, or that he suffered an epileptic attack before going under.

Hospital orderly Paul Huang testified that after the body was found, nurses in the ward said Barnes was suicidal.

Neurosurgeon Dr. John Wada said Barnes was unco-operative with taking his medicine and that Barnes had a difficult family situation.

Notes from Barnes' diary, however, indicated he was looking forward to leaving hospital.

The same diary also revealed that Barnes recorded July 7 that his drug intake was to be reduced to two times a day from three, something no doctor or nurse could explain.

BANK UNION REGROUPING FOR LATER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for a banking union whose certifications at 20 banks were rescinded by the Canada Labor Relations Board said Tuesday the union has managed to lay the groundwork for future efforts.

Jean Rands, spokesman for the Service, Office and Retail Workers Union said the union has already begun sending leaflets to bank workers explaining what went wrong, and will meet in the fall to plan further strategy.

Summer Jobs in B.C. Cost $5.5 Million

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than $5.5 million in federal funds went to British Columbia students this summer for jobs that ranged from putting on puppet shows to handling a banquet of traditional Salish Indian food.

The federal government program, called Young Canada Works, created 3,033 jobs through 578 projects between May and September.

Lasting between six and 16 weeks, the projects paid about $120 a week to employees and $156 a week to project managecs.

As in its first year of operation in 1977, the program this year provided substantially more money for constituencies represented by Liberal MPs than for ridings representzd by opposition members.

One of the more mysterious project descriptions in the book involved recreation.

Costing $24,510, it was described in the catalogue as being "to implement the second phase of a developmental program restructuring the traditional approach to summer community recreation."

Delta community recreation supervisor Stan Batt explained the project was the second year of a structured recreation program involving specialized teams who rotate to a different playground each day of the week. The teams provide instruction in their specialty — sports and fitness, art and music, heritage and history, community special events and volunteer training and outdoor recreation.

Batt said that while the program is more expensive to run than the traditional summer playground program, it attracted more participants and got a good response from the community.

A number of other projects involved improvements to local sports facilities such as golf courses, ski hills, a riding club and even a yacht club.

A number of projects were aimed at cleaning up communities and cemeteries. Typical was a $5,597 project providing four jobs "to clean up and prepare for future regular maintenance by the village of Cumberland of the Japanese and Chinese cemeteries near Cumberland."

Two Survive on the Rocks

PITT MEADOWS (CP) — Two prospectors whose boat capsized in the turbulent Pitt River last Thursday spent four days shouting encouragement to each other from adjoining rocks they were perched on until their rescue.

Don Young, about 45, and his son Bill, 14, of Kelowna were thrown into the river on Aug. 24 when their aluminum boat was hit by a floating log 2½ kilometres north of Pitt Lake near this community 40 kilometres east of Vancouver.

They were held there, Young on a small island and his son at the base of a nearby cliff, until the rain-swollen current receded on Monday.

"They were in remarkably good condition considering their ordeal," said Bob Stevens, 30, first aid attendant at the B.C. Forest Products Co. Pit Lake camp.

Stevens, who swam 50 metres across the river to rescue Bill, said the two were wearing only shirts and jeans.

The two became marooned as they were guiding their boat up the North Pitt on a prospecting trip.

Young had a cigarette lighter and was able to light a fire on his island, but his son had no source of warmth as he huddled against the cliff on the west side of the river, Stevens said in an interview.

It rained for the first three days, but by Monday afternoon, the river level dropped suddenly more than a metre and Young swam to shore where he was picked up by a logging truck.

PERJURY CHARGE FOR CONSTABLE

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP Constable Thomas Whelan, 22, has been charged with perjury as a result of testimony given at a recent preliminary hearing held in provincial court.

Whelan has been suspended from the force until the court has dealt with the charge, a senior RCMP officer said.

At a preliminary hearing held before Judge Wallace Craig on Aug. 15, an RCMP officer testified that he had purposely damaged a car owned by a suspected drug dealer.

An offical transcript of the hearing shows that in earlier testimony, the officer denied deliberately damaging the car.

Imposed Juvenile Charges Appeal

SURREY (CP) — Municipal council has appealed a provincial court decision imposing maintenance of a convicted juvenile on the district, municipal manager Dan Closkey said Tuesday.

The court ordered the municipality to pay $73 a day to maintain the juvenile in a local group home. Closkey said the municipality is worried about having to pay for other juveniles.

He said council is upset also because the juvenile was a resident of nearby Delta, althought the offence was committed here.

The court decision marks the first time section 20 of the Juvenile Delinquents Act has been used in British Columbia to make a municipality pay for the maintenance of a juvenile. Maintenance of juvenile delinquents has been the responsibility of the human resources ministry.

Closkey said the juvenile home which was assigned to shelter the youth also is appealing the decision because it wants to be able to choose who it accepts in the home.

Closkey said the municipality has asked the attorney-general's ministry to explain the decision, but there has been no response.

Council also has asked the Union of B.C. Municipalities to adopt a resolution asking the provincial government to pay the full cost of maintaining juveniles in group homes.

Tests Confirm Disease

VERNON (CP) - Provincial laboratory tests have confirmed Salmonella bacteria was the disease that sent about 30 people to hospital and forced a restaurant in this Okanagan community to voluntarily close its doors last week.

Harry Kirk, chief inspector for the North Okanagan Health Unit here, said Tuesday the tests confirmed early findings of local laboratories.

The recently-opened restaurant closed its doors for two days when it was first suspected the bacteria came from its premises. About 28 people who patronized the restaurant went to hospital complaining of severe stomach cramps.

Kirk said health authorities will probably never know where the bacteria originated. While they suspect conditions found in the restaurant, he said they can't be certain.

"It could have been spread by the contamination of food or brought in by a human carrier who may not even know he was infected," he said.

Kirk said his department feels the commercial problem has been solved but expects that recurrences of bacteria symptoms—which is termed food poisoning—will turn up here for several more months.

He said people who may have been infected have returned to their families and there is no way of knowing whether the disease has been checked in these individual situations.

It was absolutely essential, he said, that people who may have been in contact with the infection should take special care to practice personal hygiene.

Booklet On Rape Requested

VANCOUVER (CP) — The RCMP and city police say they will ask the British Columbia Police Commission to fund a booklet explaining how women should react to rape.

The booklet urges women to consider intelligence and good judgment, and not just physical strength, if sexually attacked.

The pamphlet, based on a report by Aspen, Colo., police, suggests women reduce chance of injury by not antagonizing the rapist.

The booklet states struggling works only about 50 per cent of the time and that a rapist often retaliates with more physical violence.

A Sign Summer's Ending

A small sign appeared three weeks ago that our wonderful summer weather would inevitably be waning. No matter how good or bad it may have appeared to us as individuals it must come to an end but with something to look forward to, the next season will be welcome.

In the first days of August which seemed unusually early for the event, tiny coral flower buds were noticed on the Laurustinus shrubs.

These fine evergreen plants are more commonly seen around older homes yet surely few shrubs give more value for the purchase price and newer home owners should give it more consideration.

Most gardeners know that Laurustinus is botanically Viburnum tinus which will indicate there are no problems in growing the plant here. Soil for viburnums with a clay base is just as acceptable as a looser more humusy soil, and slightly acid is also acceptable. A gravelly or sandy soil just needs humus added to hold moisture over dry weather. When the shrub reaches a spread of over eight feet or so, the soil area is completely sheltered from sun so that winter rainfall remains to be used as needed by the roots in summer.

While small, the plants must have normal watering supplied from the time spring rains cease.

Laurustinus has a long flowering period. Governed by fall and winter weather a six-to-eight foot spread of shrub will be blooming from some time in November until the following late April or may. The buds are coral colored, appearing at the tips of new leafy growths. At first they are pinhead size, gradually growing larger. During the colder weather of winter they remain coral in color, but open a few during any period of milder temperatures showing their chalky white inner petal color. Clusters give a pink and white lacy effect especially in spring at the peak of blooming.

The only damage suffered by our very large specimen in its 30 years has been tip growth frost-killing by prolonged periods of freezing temperatures on two occasions. The flowers were frozen with the young growth of the current year. This shrub grows in a fully exposed position — no shade from sun and until this year no protection from all the winds of the compass. This August the buds seemed earlier which may result from more equal warmth day and night.

Of interest to observe is the production of flower buds first on the north side of the shrub. The only sun reaching that portion is from the northeast during the longest days of late May and throughout June.

New tip growth first appears in that portion, so perhaps it is only natural that it should be the first to mature into bloom. From recalling other years, the blossoms on that north end are also the first to open.

Laurustinus is indeed a fine sight during winter and spring with its dark green leaves and masses of pinky white buds and flowers from ground level to the crown. For the rest of the year, new growth appears in early summer but there never appears any browning of old leaves except following a bad winter. The old leaves simply die and fall on the inside of the shrub where no light reaches, making good compost and protection for the roots.

Start with a small plant and give it space to grow. After the first two or three years, growth is more rapid and you begin to enjoy the year round beauty of this old-fashioned shrub called Laurustinus.

Inverted Racism Alleged

TORONTO (CP) — The head of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association says some senior officers have withdrawn traffic summonses issued to non-whites simply because of complaints about racial prejudice.

Al Evelyn, association president, said Tuesday the weak-kneed attitude of the officers encourages non-whites to lay unfounded accusations of racial prejudice.

Evelyn said he did not know whether the officers were following instructions or acting on their own.

Victor Telford, acting police chief, said Tuesday he knew of nothing that would justify Evelyn's claims.

He said that if Evelyn has information, it should be checked by the force's internal investigators.

Evelyn said there was only one case of the so-called inverted racism that he could prove.

Embassy Haven for 10 Soviet Squatters

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Three Soviet families who have been squatting in U.S. consular offices to highlight demands for Soviet exit visas said Tuesday they have been allowed to use a small apartment in the embassy.

The 10 squatters moved into the one-room apartment Monday night after U.S. diplomats failed to persuade them to give up their sit-in.

Until then they had been camping out on three yellow sofas in the consulate waiting room and were taken once a week for showers in the apartment's bathroom.

U.S. officials declined comment on the squatters' move but issued a statement saying they had attempted to get the 10 squatters to leave the embassy during the weekend.

The squatters comprise an Armenian woman and her two small sons who entered the embassy Aug. 11 and seven Pentecostalists who rushed past Soviet police guards into the building June 27.

The apartment, normally used by diplomatic couriers and other short-term visitors to Moscow, has one room and a hallway as well as a separate bathroom and shower, a stove and a refrigerator, but only two beds.

One of the Pentecostalists, Pyotr Vashchenko, said his group is happy with the new quarters. "Now we can pray whenever we want without hindering other people's work," he told reporters who visited the apartment.

Mrs. Eliza Ovsepyan, a 35-year-old housewife whose mother and sister live in Los Angeles, appeared close to tears as her sons, aged nine and five, played with toys apparently provided by embassy families.

"My mother is old and anything could happen to her; I may never see her again if I do not get a visa soon," she said.

Her sons used the beds while the eight adults slept on the floor.

During their stay in the building, the 10 squatters have been fed by sympathetic embassy families.

A senior U.S. diplomat expressed sympathy for the squatters but said their stay is not helping them and "making it more difficult for the embassy's task of assisting others who also need and deserve the embassy's help," the embassy statement said.

He said the mission would continue to try to help the 10 to emigrate if they left the building but the families decided to remain.

HATCHBACK WARNING

WASHINGTON (AP) — Owners of hatchback vehicles were warned by the U.S. government today to avoid driving with children in the luggage compartment and to keep the hatchback closed while the engine is running.

A spokesman said the agency has received reports of at least 12 accidents in which passengers were ejected through the rear hatchback, resulting in five deaths and 13 injuries.

Sex Barriers Buried at Sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard, removing most of its sex barriers today, will be sending more women to sea.

Only 24 of the service's 707 women now are on sea duty, but the coast guard said many more are being assigned to its vessels.

Under the new policy which removes restrictions based solely on sex in the training, assignment and career opportunities of its personnel, all women graduates of the Coast Guard Academy, like the men, will be assigned to sea duty; mixed-sex crews may be assigned to any coast guard unit, afloat or ashore, which can provide reasonable privacy; all officer career fields and all enlisted ratings will be open to military personnel of either sex.

Women first went to sea with the coast guard in 1977, but until now they have been limited to duty aboard two large cutters with modern facilities.

"Henchforth there will be absolutely no arbitrary restrictons based solely on sex in the way the coast guard uses its people," the order said. "Of course there are anatomical differences which cannot be ignored, but these can be accommodated as incidental matters, in areas such as medical support, and not allowed to override the really important factors."

Sit-In Over Job-Loss Fear

MONTREAL (CP) — About 65 employees of Cadbury Schweppes Powell Ltd. ended a 19-hour occupation of the office of Quebec Industry Minister Rodrigue Tremblay Tuesday after he assured them he would do everything in his power to preserve their jobs.

The workers are among the 500 union members Cadbury plans to lay off in November when it transfers its Montreal operations, established more than 60 years ago, to a five-year-old plant in Whitby, Ont.

Hector Aubin, president of the union local affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, emerged from a 90-minute meeting with Tremblay saying: "I have new hope that the company won't close its doors here."

But Tremblay told reporters after the meeting that the only hope for the union is probably to accept measures that would increase the company's profits in Quebec.

The company has economic justification for the move, Tremblay said, noting that "Cadbury is facing tremendous difficulties" after losing $11 million in the last three years.

The minister said the company argues that it will save $5 million a year with the move to Whitby, because production is more efficient in the newer plant and workers' salaries there average one dollar less an hour.

But Aubin said it is "premature to dicuss cuts from our union contract unless the company offers certain long-term guarantees to us."

Tremblay said his department has little power to influence Cadbury to stay in Quebec, because it does not subsidize companies for financial losses incurred in the province.

He said the occupation of his riding office in east-end Montreal had been unnecessary because he had already met once with union representatives and was willing to do so again. Besides, Tremblay said, "I don't produce or sell chocolate."

Is Kenya Prepared For a Non-Kikuyu?

UNEMPLOYMENT, LAND-HUNGER TRIBALISM THREATS TO PEACE

By THOMAS LIPPMAN
Washington Post

NAIROBI — Ticking off on his fingers the names of possible successors to the late president Jomo Kenyatta, a knowledgeable Kenyan observed that "ideologically, there's not a penny's worth of difference among them. The differences are only of style."

That assessment is widely shared by informed Kenyans and foreign observers here. They say that none of the legally-eligible candidates for the presidency would bring any radical changes into office with him, either in domestic policy or in foreign affairs.

Assuming that Kenya's new president is chosen according to the constitution, a course to which the major political figures say they are committed, this peaceful nation of almost 15 million is expected to continue on the moderate, pro-Western, capitalist course set by Kenyatta.

Indeed, the transition government under interim president Daniel Arap Moi wasted little time in pledging itself to do just that.

"No change, says Moi," reported Monday's Nairobi Standard in big front page headlines, delivering again Moi's encouraging message that things will be just the same as they were under Kenyatta.

But it may not be that easy.

By mid-November, a successor to Kenyatta will have been chosen — probably Moi, observers here say, but possibly one of three our four other prominent politicians who might challenge him.

Some Kenyans already are looking beyond the succession into the future.

Though relatively stable and prosperous by African standards, Kenya has deep-seated problems — unemployment, land-hunger, tribalism, a population explosion — that were kept under control largely by the force of Kenyatta's personality.

Over the next decade, analysts here agree, these issues are likely to surface and test the ability of the new generation of leaders to deal with them.

Kenyatta was the only president this country ever had.

Few African nations have managed to achieve an orderly transfer of power after the charismatic figures who led them to independence passed on, and Kenya wants to be an exception.

The question is whether the political system Kenyatta left behind is strong enough to function over the heads of the personal and tribal ambitions of those who accepted it while he was alive.

"Whoever takes over, the inevitable weakening of the central authority could allow matters to slip out of control," a western diplomat said. He was assuming, as do others, that no successor will command the authority and respect that Kenyatta did, no matter how strong his electoral mandate.

Kenyan officials agree that a bitter public fight over the succession, or — worse yet — an extra-constitutional move by any individual or faction, could bring turmoil or repression, as they have to neighboring countries. So far there is no sign of either.

That does not mean that Moi will inherit the presidency unopposed, nor does an orderly transition guarantee, diplomatic and political sources said, that whoever takes charge will be able to control parliament, satisfy the rising aspirations of the people or keep the army out of politics.

As vice-president, which he had been for 11 years, Moi was sworn in as interim president the day Kenyatta died. He has limited powers and the constitution provides that a full successor be chosen within 90 days.

Although ambiguous on some points, the constitution is clear in specifying that the successor must be nominated by a political party.

Since Kenya has only one party, the Kenya African National Union, it is assumed that the contest, if there is to be one, will take place at the party convention, for which no date has yet been set. If only one candidate is validly nominated, which is apparently what is going to happen, there is no balloting — he is declared to be elected.

Moi, the most experienced and best-known politician in Kenya, is agreed to be the front runner, but not a sure bet.

He is not a member of the Kikuyu tribe, which has dominated the country's economic and political life, but opinion is divided over whether this is a liability or an asset.

He has the support of powerful Kikuyu cabinet ministers who are said to believe it would be beneficial for the country to have a non-Kikuyu president for a while.

The constitutional requirement that the president be selected from among the elected members of parliament eliminates some personalities who might challenge Moi if they could run.

Among these are former vice-president Oginga Odina, a leader of the Luo tribe, and former foreign minister Njoroge Munai.

The latter led a faction within the party that sought last year to change the rules so that Moi would not automatically succeed to the presidency even temporarily. The move failed, but this group could still be heard from at the convention.

Among those who are legally eligible and considered potential challengers are the minister of finance, Mwai Kibaki, minister of state at the presidency, Mbiyu Koinage, and Peter Kenyatta, Kenyatta's eldest son.

None is noted for strong views that are different from those of Moi on any issue, but the manner in which the selection is handled and the harmony that can be built around the winner is the issue, observers here say.

Baby's Heart Stricken

TORONTO (CP) — A two-year-old, badly deformed baby, whose mother rejected doctors' advice to place him in an institution, died last week from a heart attack, his mother said Monday.

Susan Simpson said that since his birth Aug. 31, 1976, her son, Ronald, had 13 operations, some of them adding to medical knowledge about a rare condition known as Apert's Syndrome.

The disease, which affects one in 160,000 infants, is a result of the presence of an abnormal gene in the egg or sperm.

Children afflicted with the condition often are intellectually and physically handicapped.

Mrs. Simpson said Ronald, the couple's only child, had his face reconstructed in an operation last week, but died shortly afterward from a heart attack.

HBC Plans To Rebuild After Fire

LA RONGE, Sask. (CP) — The Hudson's Bay Company says it will be back in operation before the end of September on its burned out location in this northern Saskatchewan community.

Manager Doug Boulay said a temporary structure will be erected at the same site as a building which was destroyed by fire last week.

Boulay said the structure will house the food and retail section of the store.

Construction will then start on a new permanent headquarters behind the original site.

Damage from the fire was estimated at $750,000.

Sculpture Ban

CALCUTTA (Reuter) — Tourists will no longer be allowed to climb India's 700-year-old Sun Temple at Konark or touch its famous erotic sculptures because of concern for their safety.

Canada Dollar Slips To .869

Times News Services

The Canadian dollar slid below the 87 U.S. cent level in morning trading on New York money markets today as the U.S. dollar slumped in Europe and Japan.

At noon the dollar was quoted at 86.93 U.S. cents, down 17-100 of a cent from Tuesday's closing rate of 87.10 cents.

Word of the huge U.S. trade deficit in July drove the U.S. dollar down almost six yen at the start of trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange today. It recovered less than a yen to close at 189.725, 2.4 per cent lower than Tuesday's closing rate.

The drop, the biggest since the 1973 revaluation of the yen, came after similar action Tuesday on the European and New York markets following the announcement that the U.S. trade deficit in July was $2.99 billion, almost double the June amount. The dollar lost more ground today on all European foreign-exchange markets.

The British pound sold in London for $1.95 (U.S.), up from $1.93575 at Tuesday's close.

Uncertainty over the dollar kept trading in gold fairly steady in London and Zurich, the two major bullion markets. The price rose in London to $206.50 an ounce from $204.125 Tuesday night and in Zurich to $206.75 from $202.75.

"The trade deficit wiped out all the gains from American efforts to defend the dollar earlier," one trader in Tokyo said. "It will probably continue to slip back down tomorrow."

Hospital Award Upheld

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court judge has upheld an arbitration award on a new three-year contract for union workers at 103 provincial hospitals.

Justice George Murray ruled Tuesday that the arbitration panel which made the award performed all its functions properly, and dismissed a challenge by the hospitals' bargaining agent, the Hospital Labor Relations Association.

The association had maintained that the arbitration panel failed to do its work properly under the government's Essential Services Act.

The Hospital Employees Union, which was the first B.C. union to request arbitration under the new act, had countered by saying the decision by the arbitration panel could not appealed. The government backed the union.

CANNERY ROW could be the name of the ever-growing pile of empty beer cans, awaiting recycling in the Allan Paper Stock Co. Ltd. depot at 538 Hillside. A company spokesman says the cans are destined to be chomped by a special crushing machine purchased from Vancouver and expected to be delivered soon. The company took in 103,150 dozen empty cans and bottles from Victoria-area licensees in the eight-day period from Aug. 17 to 25. There are already two other temporary storage sites in use and the firm is still looking for additional warehouse space. Surveying the pile is Allan Paper employee Dave Mason.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an unprecedented move, China has begun to offer oil to the American market, it was reported today. The Washington Post quoted industry sources as saying Gulf Oil Corp. recently was offered crude oil by the Chinese through an intermediary.

BREWERY WORKER VOTE IN DOUBT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 1,000-member Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers, Local 300, began voting today on the latest contract offer from B.C. breweries.

Union leaders are neither recommending acceptance nor rejection.

However, union spokesman John Langley said Tuesday the workers were not likely to accept the offer because it seemed to contain little improvement over one made more than two months ago.

Eric Harris, chief negotiator for the breweries, said the strike-lockout would not be settled for some time if the the workers vote against the current proposal.

Negotiators for both sides held an unscheduled meeting in Vancouver Tuesday. The nature of the meeting wasn't known but there were hints it was connected with the pattern of returning to work should the contract offer be accepted.

Langley, contacted today, declined to comment on the meeting.

The offer was made Friday after five days of bargaining under mediator Clark Gilmour.

Both sides have agreed to disclose no details of the offer until after the union vote, but the outstanding issue when talks broke off in late June concerned a cost-of-living clause.

Meanwhile, local brewmasters said Tuesday that if the union votes to accept the offer and end the three-month dispute it will take up to 25 days to get new supplies to the stores and pubs.

The dispute began May 26 when Carling O'Keefe employees went on strike. Molson's, Labatt's and Columbia breweries locked out workers June 8.

Peacekeepers Killed 54?

BEIRUT (AP) — Syrian peacekeeping forces killed 54 Christians in their crackdown in northern and eastern Lebanon and left most of the bodies to rot, Christian spokesmen said today.

A spokesman for the Phalange, the biggest Christian party, said the bodies of 30 young men were decomposing in a valley of pines near the village of Kour, 56 kilometres north of Beirut.

Kour was the main target of Syrian operations begun Friday to disarm Christian militias outside Beirut. The village, on a hill commanding a road network in the Batroun region, was overrun by helicopter-borne Syrian troops backed by tanks.

The spokesman said 18 Christian bodies were recovered from Kour by a Red Cross team, "but the rescue team was not able to go down the valley to get the 30 other bodies."

After tightening their hold on Batroun, the Syrians turned to the neighboring province of Bcharre in a similar three-day operation of house-to-house searches for arms and Christians.

Six bodies of young men from Bcharre were reported found in woods near the city Tuesday. Bcharre's two representatives in parliament rushed to the presidential palace in Beirut to accuse the Syrians of "intolerable massacres."

President Elias Sarkis sent Col. Sami Khatib, the figurehead Lebanese commander of the peacekeeping forces, to

ICE CREAM CAN BE A REAL HEADACHE

MONTREAL (CP) — Many people have experienced it: A sudden, usually short-lived stab of pain in the forehead while eating ice cream.

It's called the ice cream headache, and Dr. J. M. Mumford, a British dental surgeon, told the Second World Congress on pain here Tuesday it happens when the palate, or roof of the mouth, is exposed to cold.

Mumford, who has researched ice cream headaches at the University of Liverpool's dental school, said that since that type of headache is similar in sensation and location to the pain experienced by some in cold wind, it seems reasonable to associate it with the cooling of the forehead.

Hijacker Asylum?

BERLIN (UPI) — An East German armed with a .22 calibre pistol hijacked a Polish airliner with 71 passengers to West Berlin today and asked for asylum in the West for himself, his wife and daughter and seven other persons aboard the plane.

The hijacker surrendered his weapon and himself to U.S. Air Police as the aircraft, a Soviet-made TU134 originally flying to East Berlin, landed at West Berlin's Tempelhof airport.

The remaining passengers were served coffee in an airport waiting room. Eighteen of them left in the same plane for East Berlin six hours later and the rest were driven there in buses, a U.S. Air Force spokesman said.

Officials said the U.S. is considering how to resolve a series of complicated legal questions.

New Strike Threatened At AirCan

Times News Services

Air Canada braced for further labor trouble today as the airline's 2,700 flight attendants initiated a mail-ballot strike vote.

Merl Day, business representative for the Canadian Air Line Flight Attendants Association, said strike ballots had been mailed to members across Canada and results should be known within 10 days.

The flight attendants' union, without a contract since June, is seeking a 10-per-cent increase plus a cost-of-living bonus in a one-year contract retroactive to June 30. The union also wants sick leaves and maximum flying time untouched in a new contract.

Air Canada says supervisors can replace attendants in the event of a walkout.

Meanwhile, the Crown corporation's aircraft were idle for the sixth straight day after last week's wildcat strikes by members of the machinists' union.

A scheduled afternoon bargaining session between representatives of Air Canada and the International Association of Machinists was postponed today, as the International Association of Machinists (IAM) asked for more time to brief three new members of the union negotiating committee.

Union spokesmen said they were still hopeful they could meet with management later in the day.

The internal briefing session was made necessary when three of the four Montreal-area members on the national bargaining committee of the IAM resigned Tuesday, refusing to accept the union position on contract clauses dealing with job classification and disciplinary action.

Although the key union negotiators resigned abruptly, negotiations to end the total shutdown of Canada's major air carrier reportedly made "some progress."

Bargainers for both Air Canada and IAM said Tuesday's talks — their second day of meetings — reflected an improved atmosphere. A two-hour meeting Tuesday was the longest face-to-face encounter yet in meetings between the two parties.

Labor Minister John Munro said today it would be counter-productive for him to get personally involved at this stage of the dispute that has grounded Air Canada.

As long as Air Canada and negotiators for 7,500 ground-service workers are meeting, "I am not going to get involved."

Barry Shaw, chairman of the the IAM's negotiating

MORE JOBS OPEN STATCAN REPORTS

OTTAWA (UPI) — There were 46,600 full-time, part-time and casual jobs open in the May-June-July period, when more than 900,000 Canadians were unemployed, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

The government agency reported that the average number of jobs vacant on a daily basis during the three-month period ending July 31 was up 20 per cent over the previous quarter.

Vacancies for full-time jobs increased by 19 per cent to 41,000 from 34,500 in the previous three-month period.

For every 1,000 existing jobs in the May-July period there were five vacant.

WEEKLY EARNINGS INCREASE BY 6.7%

OTTAWA (CP) — Average weekly earnings across the country rose by 6.7 per cent to $268.80 in June from $251.86 in the comparable month a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Highest weekly wages in the latest period were in the Yukon, where workers earned an average $369.44. In the Northwest Territories, average weekly wages were $318.19.

Average weekly wages in British Columbia were the third highest.

By province, average weekly wages in June were: B.C. $304.91; Alberta $278.01; Ontario $268.11, Quebec $267.46; Saskatchewan $254.08; Manitoba $240.34; Newfoundland $245.11; Prince Edward Island $193.26; Nova Scotia $224.79; New Brunswick $232.15.

'All Blame On Wolfe'

The wildcat strike by former public works employees at the Legislative Buildings Tuesday accomplished all it set out to do, a union spokesman said today.

Union representatives met for about two hours with Government Employee Relations Bureau (GERB) officials John Penny and Mike Davison on Tuesday.

After a "still unacceptable" revised offer of a Dec. 31 deadline from Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, the British Columbia Government Employees Union (BCGEU) finally won its position, said BCGEU Victoria representative Don Burns.

The union now has a clear, written document extending the contentious severance pay option to next March 31, Burns said.

At the same time, the union continues to blame Wolfe for the three-hour strike.

Burns said the strike that shut down the process of government for three hours was caused by Wolfe's interference in an agreement that had earlier been worked out between the union and the Government Employee Relations Bureau (GERB).

Wolfe issued a letter Aug. 14 to the 250 workers whose public works jobs are being phased out telling them the option of taking severance pay would be dropped Sept. 30.

But the union's existing agreement with GERB was that the severance pay option would continue until all employees had been offered alternative jobs within the government service.

Most of the men had not received other job offers when the Wolfe letter was sent out imposing the Sept. 30 deadline for the severance pay option.

The job alternatives often involve different types of work at different pay scales; and as most of the men hadn't yet been told what other jobs were available, they felt it unfair to have to decide whether or not to accept the severance pay option.

In some cases the severance pay could total six month's work or about $8,000.

Gas Price Jumps 4 Cents

Victoria gasoline prices went up between four and five cents a gallon today in response to an increase in the costs of crude oil.

Major service stations today are charging 92.9 or 93.9 cents per gallon regular and $1 a gallon for premium gas.

"We're charging 99.9 cents a gallon for premium gas but only because we can't show $1 on our pumps," a spokesman for Esso said today. "The price really should have gone over $1."

Stations are passing along a price increase in crude oil of three cents per gallon plus 1.2 cents for transportation and refining costs allowed by the federal government. These are maximum increases at the wholesale level.

This follows an increase of three cents per gallon earlier this month at the retail level by major service stations to provide more income for retail outlets.

Ironically, the price of gasoline was reduced by the same three cents per gallon later this month when the federal government cut its tax surcharge from 10 cents to 7 cents.

Heating oil prices today also went up about four cents per gallon.

Federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie in Ottawa said today much of the increases that are passed along to consumers will depend on market conditions.

Warplanes Bomb Anti-Somoza Students

MANAGUA (UPI) — National Guard warplanes today bombed and strafed sections of Matagalpa city held by anti-Somoza students armed with machetes, homemade bombs, pistols and rifles, killing at least five people and starting scores of fires.

On the ground, troops led by the son of President Anastasio Somoza poured heavy machine gun fire on the municipal palace, overrun by the estimated 500 students who were said to control two-thirds of the city.

A UPI reporter said at least five people died in the pitched battle, and several bodies could be seen lying in the streets, flies swarming over them in the tropical heat.

Four National Guard warplanes bombed, rocketed and strafed the municipal palace and other areas of the city for more than five hours Tuesday, sparking many fires, but heavy rains stopped the bombardment until shortly after dawn.

The students strung barbed wire Sunday throughout downtown Matagalpa, 90 miles north of Managua, and created a no man's land that the National Guard could not enter because of the gunfire.

Witnesses said the students, who declared the areas they held "Free Territory of Matagalpa," were poorly armed with homemade bombs, machetes, pistols and rifles.

Residents were calling the outbreak "The War of the Youths" and many of them were offering the students food, water and shelter.

The National Guard, commanded personally by Mayor Anastasio Somoza Portocarrero, the president's son, sent in reinforcements by helicopter Tuesday to prevent a complete takeover by the students.

The National Guard controlled only the Matagalpa army barracks and some suburban areas, witnesses said.

Violent anti-Somoza outbreaks were also reported in Diribamaba, 30 miles south of the capital, where one person was reported dead and two wounded in street clashes, and Jinotepe.

President Somoza Tuesday defied demands, including some by right-wing National Guard officers who allegedly were plotting to overthrow him, that he step down.

Food Prices

Summer-Long Survey Shows We've Got a Good Deal Here

Two University of Victoria students who spent the summer conducting a pricing survey in city supermarkets say local shoppers are getting a good deal compared to Vancouver.

But they say there's a big price spread between the most expensive and the cheapest local stores, and consumers won't get bargains unless they're aware of pricing differences.

In an effort to help educate Victoria shoppers Peter Kappel, fourth year economics, and Deborah Golby, first year law, did weekly reports on prices in 28 of Victoria's retail food stores. They rated the various outlets by using a 65-item food basket.

The Victoria Times published the reports, including a list of the stores involved and how they ranked.

Ranking was determined by summing up the total cost of the 65 items after using a multiplying factor known as weighting. Under the system food items were given different "weights" according to their importance to the average family. Hamburger, for instance, had a weight of one, while milk had a weight of four.

So at any given store the cost of a pound of hamburger was multiplied by one while the price of a quart of milk was multiplied by four.

A food's "weight" is determined by Statistics Canada which does research to determine what food, and how much of it, is consumed by the average family.

Stores having the lowest prices on the most important items in an average family's budget were rated the highest, because they offered the best over-all saving to consumers.

The 65 items in the food basket were selected to reflect as much as possible the shopping lists of the average family. Consequently a large number of heavily weighted items were chosen, and then the basket was fleshed out with items representing food stuffs from all areas of the store.

Brand names were used when possible to provide consistency from store to store (it would not be fair to choose Green Giant corn at one store and York at another), and where the same brand was not available in all 28 supermarkets the researchers chose either a high or low price for the product. Not all stores, for example, carry Mom's margarine, so the study team simply selected the cheapest margarine available.

The methodology was based on a nearly identical study undertaken by the federal government in Ottawa a few years ago.

The purpose of the study was to see if the public availability of food pricing comparisons would lower prices and shorten the pricing spread between stores.

In an interview, Kappel and Golby said a full analysis of the project, which was funded by the provincial department of labor, will not be finished for some weeks. But based on their experience they felt able to make some personal observations.

Kappel said Victoria supermarkets do a good job, especially when compared to Vancouver operations.

"Because of all the independents here our prices are lower than in Vancouver which is pretty hard to believe," said Kappel.

He said there are more large independent food stores in Victoria and they are aggresive, which forces the major chains to remain competitive.

In Vancouver and some other centres a few large stores can capture the bulk of the market and set prices with little regard for what the competition is doing.

Golby said, however, this is not to say Victoria shoppers have it made.

She said consumers should still pay a lot of attention to where they shop, otherwise they'll pay a lot more than they have to.

"We really noted a lot of items that were way out of line from store to store," she said.

The bargains are there, but shoppers won't get them unless they do a little bit of comparing.

Golby said it would be unrealistic to expect shoppers to check out 65 items week after week, but a quick mini-survey could be done by checking the prices on some major items at a few different stores.

If you want to get a rough idea on how a store's prices rank, look at the meat (especially the bacon), the produce, and at tinned goods.

Add to that a few of the special items you buy each week and you'll be able to determine which store in your area gives the best deal.

Golby said there was a large gap between the cheapest and most expensive stores in the city — so shoppers stand to save a lot of money.

"It's not just a matter of a few dollars," agreed Kappel.

Did stores increase their competitiveness and lower prices because of the survey?

The researchers say they're not sure of that yet, but certainly there were a few stores that did respond, although most seem to have remained fairly stable in their ranking throughout the summer.

"One store apparently kept pretty close tabs on the survey, comparing themselves with other stores, and made themselves competitive," said Kappel.

When the first report was published, June 7, this storeranked 28th, making it the most expensive supermarket in the area. It apparently changed its pricing policy over the summer. Its ranking varied over the four-month study, dropping to 19th for a number of weeks before climbing back up to the 24th spot for the last report, Aug. 28.

The store that started out as number one was ranked third in the final survey after dropping to 11th spot in early August.

Kappel and Golby said that had their survey received better media coverage it probably would have had more of an impact.

The Daily Colonist ignored the study.

The researchers said that although many of the retailers were a bit upset by the project, none of them tried to apply pressure, or to fix results by altering prices on target items.

"They pretty much took a hands-off approach," said Kappel.

He went on to give area supermarkets a few words of praise, saying that the big food stores are often unjustly blamed for high food prices.

"Supermarkets have been getting the short end of the stick . . . I really don't think that's where all the criticism should go."

Kappel said that food marketing boards disrupt the market and generally lead to higher prices on the grocery store shelf.

"The consumer shouldn't be misled into believing that marketing boards work in their favor — they are designed to promote the interests of only one group, the producers."

Record Turnout Seen For Saanich Fall Fair

Officials of the 110th annual Saanich fall fair and exhibition are predicting a massive turnout for this year's event at the Saanichton Fairgrounds over the Labor Day weekend.

"All sections are up this year. We should have a landslide," vice-president Carole Robertson said today, adding that entries are coming from as far away as Chase. There are a good number of up-Island entries.

She said the grounds will be open Saturday, Sunday and Monday at 8 a.m. and there will be ample parking off Mount Newton Crossroad on Wallace Drive. There will be free bus service from there to the grounds.

For the first time this year a gate system will be in operation, enabling officials to know how many people attend. Robertson estimated at least 10,000 people attended each day in 1977.

The cost is $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for senior citizens and children over 11 years of age, with children 11 years and under being admitted free.

A daily list of events follows:

JESTER'S JAPE GOT NO SMILES

A prankster who dressed up Tuesday to play a "little trick" on some friends ended up getting a dressing down from Saanich police.

A police spokesman said today the man, whose name has not been released, donned a silver beard and long black trench coat before entering a clothing store in Town and Country Shopping Centre to pull a prank on employees.

However, a woman shopper spotted the man as he was getting into the attire in his car parked opposite a bank in the centre at 3:15 p.m., and, suspecting a robbery, alerted police.

Ten officers in seven cars moved in, surrounded the store, and seized the bewildered man as he emerged from the store.

The man explained sheepishly it was only "a little trick." But police were not amused.

"I guess you could say he was cautioned severely," the spokesman said.

Four Charged After Breakin

A 16-year-old juvenile and three 17-year-old youths were to appear in court today charged in connection with an early morning break-in at the Medical Arts Building, 1105 Pandora.

The four were arrested, two inside the building and two outside, after an intruder alarm was activated at 12:30 a.m. and alerted police.

A city police spokesman said three offices were entered including a medical laboratory, the building superintendent's office and a doctor's office.

The thieves entered the building after smashing a basement window.

PENINSULA WATER COSTS CUT

$3M Helps, But Not Parity

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis' announcement of $3 million fund to help pay for peninsula water is welcome but will not bring price parity with the core municipalities in Victoria, Saanich Peninsula Water Commission chairman Joe Taylor said today.

"I am pleased and surprised by the announcement from Mr. Curtis but I don't want people to get their hopes up too far."

For example, Victoria City charges only 35 cents per 1,000 for water while Sidney charges $2.

In one year's time, Sidney's price will be able to be cut about 32 cents, which would make it about $1.78, which will still be $1.43 above the Victoria City price.

"The announcement by Mr. Curtis is very welcome, very welcome indeed, but we are a long way from parity."

The main expense in peninsula water is for local distribution which is not reduced by the pipeline or the Curtis announcement. For example, Sidney buys water for 77 cent per 1,000 gallons but must charge $2 per thousand. The extra $1.23 is the high cost of distributing water to a small number of customers. As Sidney grows, this cost will decline.

Tuesday night Curtis announced the province is setting up a $3 million fund, the interest from which would pay the annual debt on $4.6 million to construct a water pipeline to the peninsula reservoir.

With the $4.6 million figure declining each year the $3 million should be more than enough to cover all debt costs over the 20-year period, Curtis said.

He said that, in addition, the wholesale price the peninsula pays the Greater Victoria Water District may be rolled back to 18 cents per thousand gallons from 30 cents. The Victoria area pays only 18 cents.

Taylor said both moves are welcome and will reduce costs for Sidney-area water.

At the present time, he said, it is costing the commission 70 cents per thousand gallons for water.

A rollback of the price to the GVWD would reduce the cost by 12 cents from 70 cents to 58 cents on the day it takes effect. Date for the rollback has not been announced

In addition, when the water pipeline is completed in September, 1979, costs will be reduced about another 20 cents, Taylor said.

But the significant cost remains local distribution charges, currently $1.23 per thousand, and while this cost can be expected to decline it will drop only by small amounts, Sidney sources said.

Return with $5 entry fee to Victoria Times Great Inner Tube Race, Victoria Press Box 1978, 2621 Douglas, Victoria. Make cheques or money orders payable to Hampton Park Hustlers. No entries under 16 years of age. All entries must be received by Sept. 6.

Will Grace Accept Offer?

After two years in the Great Inner Tube Race, Saanich alderman Whitey Severson was about to hang up his bathing suit.

"But I don't know. Maybe one more time. It's great fun, you know, even it you do get a little wet.

"Tell you what, if I can get someone interesting to join me I'll do it one more time.

"Let me see, maybe Mel (Saanich Mayor Couvelier) would be available or hey! Grace McCarthy! Find out if she's available on that day."

That day is Sunday, Sept. 10, when the Great Inner Tube Race will be held in the Gorge.

Two people obtain an inner tube and paddle their way from Craigflower Bridge to Gorge Park, cheered on by thousands of spectators on the shore.

Trophies are awarded to winners in three categories: Mens doubles, womens doubles and mixed doubles.

Inner tubes can be obtained from most tire shops and junkyards.

All competitors must register in advance. An official entry form is printed above. The event is organized by Hampton Park Hustlers and sponsored by the Victoria Times.

The $5 entry fee goes to help amateur sports in the district. Most teams will be entering at least one tube in the race. Entries from lacrosse and hockey teams have done particularly well in previous races and Vancouver Canucks always have a strong entry.

But inner tube racing is a . . . well, unusual sport and anyone can win. In addition to races, there are trophies for best costume, oldest entry and to the team that has come the furthest to participate.

Entries in past years have come from Washington, Oregon, and Alberta as well as from across B.C.

There is also a parade competition, which will be held immediately before the race. Cars or pickup trucks are decorated with or without inner tubes and many entries this year are expected to have a Capt. Cook theme. There is no need for advance registration for the parade but anyone going in the inner tube race must register in advance.

With only a few days left until race day, challenges are being tossed back and forth between athletic teams, community organizations and other groups.

Individual challenges are also being hurled. What are you doing on Sept. 10, Grace?

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Surging oil and gas issues sent the Toronto stock market sharply higher in active mid-afternoon trading today.

The TSE 300 index was up 6.41 at 1215.35 with gains in two of its four most heavily-weighted groups.

Oil and gas issues, boosted by a $5¾ jump from top-weight Dome Petroleum, rose 41.13 to 1564.95. Industrial products were up 1.10 to 988.09. Financial services fell 6.52 to 1124.06 and metals and minerals 1.23 to 1016.61.

Forest issues led the eight gainers among the other 10 groups within the 14-unit TSE composite index. Buildings issues led the two losers.

Dome Petroleum was halted by the TSE following a halt at the American Stock Exchange because of an imbalance of orders there.

Prior to the 1½-hour TSE halt, Dome Petroleum was up $6¼ in heavy trading. The company said there are no developments to account for the active trading in its stocks.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. EDT totalled 2.92 million shares compared with 2.74 million at the same time Tuesday.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rose here today as a rally gained momentum despite a quarter-point jump in the prime rate.

At 2 p.m. local time, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead 3.12 at 883.32.

The Dow, off by nearly seven points late Tuesday, began gaining toward the close and cotinued its rise today. Advances outnumbered declines 3-to-2 among New York Stock Exchange-listed, and NYSE volume totaled 25.94 million shares in the first five hours of trading.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices moved lower in moderate activity at noon Wednesday on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 11:30 a.m. EDT was 333,400 traded, up from 124,600 shares exchanged up to the same time Tuesday.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — Share prices drifted lower on lack of interest after an attempted rally today, but many closed slightly above the day's lows, dealers said.

Government stocks were neglected and lost around 3-16 to ⅜ while leading equities had falls of from one to three pence, with buyers holding back due to continuing election uncertainties, dealers added. The Financial Times index closed at 503.0, off 2.8.
